DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Augustine Pechie was pleasantly surprised Saturday morning when information came to him that his car, stolen in Providence Thursday afternoon, had been recovered in Warren, R. I., and that the police of Providence were holding two youths to face a charge of stealing the car.

A Providence paper Saturday printed the following story about the affair:

Detected in possession of a stolen machine along South Souta Main automobile by Officer Peter Bourreau while they were pushing the street, Warren, early yesterday morning after the gasoline supply gave out, Hurculano, 19, and Arthur Sousa, 18, brothers, of 127 Broadway, Providence, are awaiting arraignment this morning on a charge of theft of the car in this city.

The policeman started an investigation when he noticed the young men pushing the car and saw that it had but one number plate. It was found that the youths had taken the number plate off a wrecked car owned by Joseph Dalgnault, which was hit at the Franklin street crossing by an electric Wednesday noon. After spending the night in the town hall lockup the young men were escorted to Providence yesterday by Inspector Cusick.

The police say that the prisoners took a touring car owned by Augustine Piche of 5 Main street, Danielson, Conn., from the parking space in the rear of the Union station Thursday afternoon. Driving to Bristol, they are said to have remained there for the evening. The Connecticut number plates on the car were thrown away near Mount Hope. The young men returned to Warren early yesterday morning and their troubles commenced.

Saturday morning the funeral of Theodore Bosquet, drowned in the Assawaga river Thursday afternoon, was held from the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bousquet, Franklin street, with a high mass of requiem of which Rev. John Roux, M. S., was celebrant at St. James church at o'clock. The service was attended by a large number of the boy's schoolmates from St. James' school. Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery. The bearers were Alcide Lemoureaux, Henry Socquet, Silvio Bernier and Vinder Guilimete, Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arangements.

Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the undertaking rooms of A. F. Wood funeral services for Mrs. Carrie Augusta Kies, wife of Frederick E. Kies, were conducted by Rev. William Fryling, pastor of the Congregational church at Wauregan. The bearers were Everett Swan, Harold Wignoll, Wilfred Chandler and William Winslow. Burial was in Westfield cemetery.

To those who are watching the developments in the anthracite coal conference and at the same time wondering how difficult it is going to be to get a supply of that kind of fuel for next winter, a viewpoint obtained in Wilkesbarre, Pa., by Alfred L. Reed is of special interest. In this hard coal region Mr. Reed discussed the coal situation with a prominent Busines man. Included in the especialy impressive things this man said that Wilkesbarre people are giving as much thought in many cases to changing their heaters over into oil burners as are many residents in New England. So it would appear that even in the coal region all is not as rosy in prospect as it might be.

It will be good news to thousands of eastern Connecticut people who have been waiting for some announcement on the subject that the next big Dollar Day in Danielson has been fixed for Saturday, August 25. The Dollar Day in March was a highly successful one, and business interests here hope not only to dpulicate it, but also surpase it next month.

Tomorrow (Tuesday) brings the end of Killingly's fiscal year. Figures will be available within a few days on the matter of town indebtedness. While no predictions are being made by officials, it is anticipated that the final balance sheet covering the activities of the year now drawing to a close will show that there has been another reduction in the debt.

With the registrars meeting this week to make an enrollment of voters preparatory to the caucuses to be held in September, it is of interest to anounce that Thomas Bradford is taking steps to put a third ticket in the field for the annual town meeting on the first Monday in October. Mr. Bradford says that there will be no slip this time, as was the case last year, and that the citizens' ticket will appear on the ballots. As Mr. Bradford outlines his proposal the citizens' ticket will be a non-partisan one. The principal object is to present a list of candidates selected solely on merits and business ability and without regard to party affiliations, which amounts to saying that political considerations will be eliminated. It is not unlikely, if they will accept nomination, that some of the present officials of the town will be named on the citizens' ticket.

The prospect of a third ticket in the field assures a lively town election and hurrying and scurrying about to line up the voters for several weeks prior to the election.

Some local lovers of the sport were at Noose Neck hill for a week end trap shooting conest.

Mrs. Charles Kennedy has been seriously ill at her home on Furnace street.

Henry C. Fredette of New Berford spent the week end with relatives in Danielson.

Adolph Coldwater has returned from a stay of a few days at Ocean beach.

Miss Alice Morrissette is attending the summer school at the University of Chicago. Miss Morresette, a former teacher in Killingly, has been eaching the past few years at Thompsonville, this state.

After a week in which Frank Weeden, escaped maimc, furnished much interest because of reports that he was in this section, the subject has died down. Weeden likely has made his way out of the territory.

There is a possibility that the Chamber of Commerce may be requested to make representations to the post office department relative to the handicap being imposed on the local service through shortage of department funds. Clerks are working four and five hours a day overtime and are not getting any extra compensation therefor, but they are doing it in order that the mails may be kept moving and everyone as near satisfied as possible. More clerks are needed to handle the business of the local office, which this month has shown a $700 increase over the business for the corresponding month of 1921, but no money is available for paying them.

It is believed that the office might obtain some relief through representations of the Chamber of Commerce.

PUTNAM

Camp Woodstock, the Y. M. C. A. camp for Hartford, Tolland and Windham counties, has entered upon its last week of the present season. The third camping period, of one week only, opened last Friday, and will close at the end of the present week. Many of boys from the previous period stayed over for the last week and about forty new boys arrived in camp, making a total of about 75 youths, varying from nine to seventeen. These are distributed among ten tents, the rest of the tents which are no longer needed being taken down and stored.

The week's activities started Friday afternoon when a baseball team composed of members of the first five tents played members of the last five tents, winning sixteen to ten. In the evening the Indian ritual, which features the opening night of each period, was carried out. In this ceremonial in which each camper wears a blanket, feathers and Indian war paint, each boy pledges his allegiance to his tent which is organized as an Indian tribe, and later through the big chief, the tent leader, to the camp. These ceremonies are held around the big camp fire. The coming week will be one of activity, for the leaders and directors will endeavor to put as nearly as possible the same number of hikes and other big times into this week as into the ordinary two weeks periods.

The second camp period, which ended Friday last, closed in a spiurge of glory with the visit of Governor Templeton to the camp. There were addresses by his excellency, by the chairmen of the county organizations in each of the three counties, by Clarence W. Bowen of Woodstock, and by Elmer T. Thiennes, Hartford Y secretary, and who is a very popular camp director. Following the presentation of the Patriot cup by the governor as told in Saturday's Bulletin, there was an aquatic meet. There was an athletic meet in the morning before the arrival of the governor, in which Philip Michel of West Suffield was the individual star, winning four first places.

The camp emblem, the highest camper award, was given to five boys the past period.

In two years which the camp has been conducted probably not more than fifteen boys have won the right to wear this highest award. Donald Eaton of Stafford Spring, Philip Michel of West Suffield, Franklin Perry of Putnam, John McClaren of Rockville, and Walter Pelton of Windsor. All of the camp ten leaders also received the award. These awards were made by Mr. Thiennes at the closing camp fire, following an excellent Indian pageant in four acts which 25 of the campers put on under the direction of Putnam Livingstone of Thompson. The pageant represented early days in the town of Woodstock, and the historical facts in it were obtained from Mr. Bowen.

During the afternoon more than 300 signed the camp guest book, and looked on at the sports and heard the speeches with real enthusiasm.

The camp equipment has been improved 100 per cent.. In his short talk Mr. Thiennes spoke of what the camp desired to do, first to buy the property, then to erect more permanent structures, and third to improve and add to the equipment.

John S. Dingwall will leave shortly for a trip to Chicago, Montreal, the Great Lakes and Niagara Falls.

Mrs. H. B. Turner and daughter Elna of New Haven are visiting Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Gulnac.

Miss Genevieve Letters is spending the week end with friends in Webster and Worcester.

Mrs. Georgianna Longden is on a visit of several weeks in Maine and New Hampshire.

Allen Thayer and Jerome Andrews, the only local young men who will atten the citizens' military training camp at Camp Devens, will leave tomorrow (Tuesday) for a month's military training. Both have been to the camp before.

Burton D. Bosworth of East Woodstock, Vincent L. McEvoy, Fred W. McCullock, and Albert Bilbeault of Putnam, are planning to attend the disabled veterans' camp at Niantic.

The members of the Putnam Country club held on of club dances at the club house Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter King and Nelson King, returned Saturday afternoon after two weeks' visit at Groton on Long Point.

The continued cases of James Smith and Henry Riel of Putnam, charged with assault, breach of the peace and drunkenness, will not come to trial this morning as expected. During the past week the cases have been settled out of court.

Felix Peloquin of Putnam, was before Judge Geissler charged with being found drunk, Saturday morning. He admitted his guilt. A fine of $20 was imposed and execution of the sentence suspended for six months. Peloquin was placed in charge of Probation Officer Peter A. Gardner.

Mrs. Eva Buck and Herman Hurdel of Fitchburg, Mass., were cut by glass and the latter suffered other head injuries when a car driven by Max E. Hurdel of Fitchburg was in collision with the Cadillac sedan of Guy Zito, local taxi driver. The accident occurred in a heavy rainfall Saturday afternoon, at the corner of School and Grove street. Both cars were considerably damaged. Police investigated the collision, but no arrests were made.

Prentice B. Downe of Bristol, Hartford county, one of the younger campers brought out the original stunt of the day last Thursday. Prentice had been making a collection of the names of campers on a pair of khaki trousers, a custom popular at camp, and desired Governor Templeton's among the rest. According he approached him, wearing the trousers on which many campers had signed their names. The governor agreed to do what was asked, and taking the youngster across his knee, put his John Hancock on the seat of the pants which the camper was wearing, much to the amusement of many of the guests and campers who were looking on.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Strand.

Bearing out the traditions that the smell of blood is the signal for untempered madness on the part of a tiger, no matter how tame he may be otherwise, a scratch on Jack Holt's shoulder and the resulting drop or two of blood nearly ended disastrously for this popular star.

For one of the greatest thrills ever photographed by a motion picture camera, Mr. Holt fought an actual man-to-beast battle with a tiger in scenes for The Tiger's Claw, a Paramount picture in which he stars, and which comes to the Strand theatre Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday.

Since it would obviously be impossible for a man, unarmed, to battle with a wild tiger, a tame animal, one trained to motion pictures, was used for the fight. But unforeseen results were encountered when Mr. Holt received a deep scratch across his left shoulder.

When the smell of human blood assailed the nostrils of the beast, it promptly forgot training. Its guards, realizing at once that something was wrong, managed to get the tiger into his cage, hardly a minute before his animal brain broke loose in a tempestuous manner. Enraged, his jungle instincts aroused, the beast hurled himself against the cage bars again and again, roaring his challenge.

Director Joseph Henabery, for fear the tiger might resume his madness, even after he had quieted down, sent for another beast and the scenes were continued as planned.

Round 8 of the famous H. C. Witwer's Fighting Blood stories will be the second feature attraction. In addition a Cameo comedy, The Dude, and a news weekly will round out the program.

Breed Theatre.

You will see a new side of Bebe Daniels when you go to see Nancy From Nowhere, which is the feature at the Breed theatre today and Tuesday. And despite the fact that Miss Daniels is remembered for her appearances in the rollicking sort of comedies, she will wring your heart and possibly your girl will wring her handkerchief over the romantic story of Nancy, a Nobody who came from Nowhere.

After many adventures she was about to go back there when she was caught and carried off by a very definite Somebody in the person of Edward Sutherland. Oh, yes, there's comedy, too, but romance predominates, with a wonderfully clear-cut emotional characterization by Miss Daniels.

The supporting cast is entirely capable. Mention has already been made of Mr. Sutherland, who played the male lead with May McAvoy in Everything For Sale, and who here contributes another pleasing juvenile to screen literature.

Myrtle Stedman, who was Bill Hart's leading woman in The Whistle, and Hayakawa's in Black Roses, plays the hero's mother. Edward Martindel is also seen, being back with Miss Daniels for the first time since his appearance with her in her very first starring picture, You Never Can Tell. Vera Lewis and James Gordon "team" as the malicious Kellys, and Helen Holly is convincing as the "other girl" in the hero's life.

The photography by George Folsey, must come in for an emphatic word of commendation. The direction by Chester M. Franklin is full of those little "touches"—for want of a better word to describe them—in which his pictures abound, and which are the seal of the inspired director, as distinguished from the fellow who just "makes pictures."

The scenario was written by Douglas Doty from an original story by Kathrene Pinkerton and Grace Drew. Elmer Harris supervised the production for Realart.

Other pictures on the bill include the Pathe news and a Sunshine comedy.

MYSTIC

Baptist Hill, which is undergoing road construction by the state, looks like an old fashioned woodlot, where trees have been dug out, and boulders blown, and the turf torn from its bed, as the workmen have removed stumps, and have struck solid ledge, that extends from the foot of the hill, clear to the New London road. Soon this will be all cleared up, and a fine approach to the hill from Mystic will be provided.

Charles B. Anderson, of West Mystic has had a valuable foxhound named "Cal" run over and killed by an automobile. The driver did not even stop his machine, but the number was secured, and a telephone message from Hartford disclosed the fact that the owner of the Buick coupe belonged to Matthew Hines, of Washington street, Hartford. He was served a notice by the prosecutor, for the town of Groton, summonings him to appear here at a future date. It is now a law that all animals are protected and a driver is obliged to stop and ascertain what damage has been done to an animal that is struck or run down by a car.

John Edgecomb, who has been visiting his sister in Hartford, has returned home.

Marguerite King, of Providence, and Mrs. Norman Spring, of Washington, D. C., are guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred King.

An immense rock has been removed from the property formerly belonging to the late C. W. Wayland, by Mr. Mellow, who now has the place. Mr. Mellow with the aid of workmen has on Saturdays during the summer blown all the big rock out, as it obstructed the view of the whole section of Wall street. It stood about twenty feet high, and was about 18 feet across. The rock that was blown into small pieces was disposed of to Raul Delegrange, and he has used about one hundred loads to fill in the property where his garage and machine shop stand.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund P. Hyde have returned from a motor trip to Holyoke, Mass.

Charles Willard in company with his sisters, has returned from a trip to Plymouth, Mass.

Traffic at the corner of Elm and Cutler streets, Stonington, was held up for a time Saturday, owing to a collision between an automobile and a trolley car. The car of the Groton & Stonington trolley line was approaching the corner, on the 4.05 p. m. trip, when an automobile bearing Indiana registration, No. 58,834 came at top speed from the westward and was not able to make the curve by a short turn. The automobile struck the trolley car on the right side and carried away the forward steps. The car was slowing down to make the curve. The impact bent the mudguard and the axle of the automobile. Noone was injured.

James C. Gilmore, assistant express agent at Stonington, lost the tip of the middle finger of his right hand on Saturday, while unloading express at the station. A screw in a box caught the finger and mangled it seriously.

A young man in the employ of the machine department at the Atwood plant had the thumb of his right hand lacerated, by having it caught in the machinery.

Packard Single-Eight Touring Car

ANNOUNCING THE

PACKARD

SINGLE-EIGHT

Packard Motor Car Company announces the Single-Eight to succeed the famous Twin-Six.

The Single-Eight emphatically surpasses, we believe, any car on the market, in speed, acceleration, braking, steering, smoothness of operation, ease of control, riding qualities, and beauty and distinction of appearance.

Packard Single-Eight accomplishes these superiorities over all previous motor car practices—

First, by beauty and dominance of appearance which unmistakably forecast exceptional brilliance of performance.

Second, by the complete elimination in the Single-Eight motor of the vibration inherent in previous eight-cylinder motor practice.

Third, by the embodiment in the Single-Eight of new engineering principles which result in a wealth of flexible power heretofore unknown.

Fourth, by the provision of braking, steering and control mechanisms of such simplicity and ease of operation as to be revolutionary.

Mechanical and operative perfection, coupled with compelling beauty of design and brilliance of finish, have produced a car nothing short of phenomenal.

It is our confident expectation that the Single-Eight will duplicate the distinction already accorded its companion car—the Single-Six that of being the most distinguished exponent of its type.

POETRY

DISCOVERY

Out of the Eden of my love,
The little house so lean and spent,
The little room where, like a dove,
Under the rafters lives my love,
Back to the bustling world I went.

I wandered down the dusty street,
Men jostled there and wept and swore
But in the throbbing and the heat,
The Babel of the feverish street
Was something that was not before.

Deep into each pale, passing face
I gazed in wonder. What strange gleam
Had in this gray and sordid place
Clothed as with glory each pale face
And lit dim eyes with dream?

Like an explorer, midst those eyes,
By unimagined deeps I trod:
And, lo! where yesterday were lies
And hate in those worldhardened eyes,
I saw the stars of God.

—Herman Hagedorn.

TONIGHT

Mysterious Night! When our first parent knew
Thee from report divine, and heard thy name,
Did he not tremble for this lovely frame,
This glorious canopy of light and blue?
Yet 'neath the curtain of translucent dew,
Bathed in the rays of the great setting flame,
Hesperus with the host of heaven came,
And lo! creation widened on man's view.
Who could have thought such darkness lay concealed
Within thy bosom O Sun! or who could find,
While fly and leaf and insect stood revealed
That to such countless orbs thou mad'st us blind!
Why do we, then, shun Death with anxious strife?
If Light can thus deceive, wherefore not Life?

—Joseph Blanco White.

A young doctor opened a brand-new surgery. He waited all day without a visitor, until at last a breathless man came running up the drive.

"Sit down," said the doctor, soothingly. "What can I do for you?"

"I must get on the telephone — at once," gasped the visitor. "My wife's ill, and I want to ring up my doctor."—Exchange.

There was a man in Texas who went to a revival meeting and was pressed to repent. He wavered for a time and finally arose and said: "Friends, I want to repent and tell you how bad I have been, but I dasn't do it when the grand jury is in session."

"The Lord will forgive," the revivalist shouted.

"Probably he will," answered the sinner, "but He ain't on the grand jury."—Lawyer and Broker.

MIRACULOUS ESCAPE FROM INSTANT DEATH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Jewett City, July 30—Lacey Neilan had a miraculous escape from instant death Saturday evening. The last southbound passenger was pulling up above the depot on the siding, with "meet" orders on the southbound local train No. 71, which was coming in on the main.

Neilan was walking up the track, and got caught in the space between the train and the station and was hurled in opposite direction in an attempt to dodge and both legs were cut by the cars and knocked under the train. Those who saw nearly still that his clothing caught in the under gear and prevented the wheels passing over his body. He received a compound fracture of both legs, several broken ribs and was injured internally. He was taken into the baggage car of the local train by the crew and hurried to the Backus hospital in Norwich. Neilan has been employed in the Ponemah mill.

LOCAL MAN ATTEMPTED SUICIDE TWICE WITHIN TWENTY-FOUR HOURS

After making an unsuccessful attempt at suicide by jumping into the Shetucket river on the East Side early Saturday evening, John Carbray, the well known local boxer, made a second attempt at self destruction shortly after three o'clock Sunday afternoon by slashing his throat with a safety razor blade. He is now a patient at the Backus hospital where he was rushed in the police patrol. His condition is not thought to be serious.

Early Saturday evening Captain D. J. Twomey received a telephone message at police headquarters that there was trouble at 614 Main street, where Carbray's wife lives. A few minutes later William Mitchell found Carbray in the Shetucket river and pulled him out. He was arrested by Officer Laughere and booked at police headquarters on charges of intoxication and breach of the peace. About ten o'clock Saturday night Carbray's mother furnished bonds for him and he was released for appearance in the city court Monday morning.

About 3.30 o'clock Sunday afternoon a telephone message was received at police headquarters from an East Side woman asking that an officer be sent immediately to 614 Main street. Captain Twomey despatched the patrol and two officers to the Main street address and the officers found Carbray in a brook in a nearby field with his throat cut. He was placed in the patrol wagon and rushed to the hospital. The blade which Carbray used to cut his throat was found by the officers.

It is said that Carbray has not been living with his wife for some time. The reason for his double attempt at suicide could not be learned.

Sunday evening Carbray was resting comfortably at the hospital. The razor blade did not cut deep enough to entail any serious consequences and it is expected that the patient will be discharged from the hospital within a short time. Several stitches were required to close the cut.

Sunday Service at Y. M. C. A.

At the 4 p. m. service at the local Y. M. C. A. Sunday, the second part of the feature moving picture, The Chosen Prince (the life of David) was shown. The pictures were very clear and exceedingly impressive. The friendship of David and Jonathan was particularly tender. The other points of David's life pictured in the story included the taking of the blood covenant, the Israelites returning to their homes after their victory in warfare, the contrast in the proud spirit manifested by Saul and humble spirit manifested by David were clearly shown.

Saul was shown seized with a strange malady and David endeavored to sooth him with harp music; it seemed as the friendly relations had been established, but all too soon the wicked Saul begins to plot against the chosen prince.

In addition to the pictures, Scripture was read and prayer offered and Rev. E. C. Dunbar gave a most impressive talk in line with the pictures, especially emphasizing the great value of friendship as illustrated by David and Jonathan. Ralph Marsh operated the machine and L. R. Church acted as usher for the service.

Next Sunday the third part of the picture story will be shown.

LESSON OF THE AGES RECALLED BY ST. PATRICK'S RECTOR

While all was dark and rainy outside Sunday, St. Patrick's church was cheerily lighted for the 7.30 mass, read by the rector, Rev. M. H. May, who preached from the gospel for the Sunday—tenth after Pentecost—Luke 18, 9-14, the parable of the Pharisee and the Publican, considering the concluding words, "Because everyone that exalteth himself shall be humbled and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted." The brief sermon was on the sin of pride which is the failing of those "who trust in themselves as just and despise others."

The proud, hypocritical Pharisee, who enumerated his virtues, won only condemnation from the Saviour, whereas the diffident, humble Publican, who tried to hide from the sight of man, went down from the temple justified. The same sin of pride which caused the angels' fall is still leading men astray, into the paths which tend to eternal destruction; but the soul which seeks, not the applause of men, but the approval of God is content to worship in poverty, humility, to accept the crosses which God in His wisdom sends, to model life and conduct upon the example of that Redeemer Who declared that 'any who would follow Him must learn to be meek and humble of heart, to take up the daily cross with patience and without complaining. To the devout worshippers who enter the temple in the attitude of the Publican, conscious of unworthiness, beseeching in humility, "O, God, be merciful to me, a sinner," God's grace is never denied, but such are certain to go away justified. It is the lesson of the ages, the preacher said, that whoso exalteth himself shall be humbled, while he that humbleth himself shall be exalted in the sight of the Almighty. Reference was made to the consoling fact that the majority of mankind is consciously humble in God's presence, to the numbers of souls like diamonds hidden under the obscurities of life, God's poor, and lowly and unobtrusive, true jewels to adorn the Sacred Heart of the Saviour.

So many received holy communion that Father May required the assistance of Rev. Myles P. Galvin in this portion of the service.

NORWICH MAN FINED IN DANIELSON COURT

(Special to the Bulletin.)

Danielson, July 29—As much because some of the things he said to Officer Christopher Andrews were regarder as impertinent and wholly uncalled for under the circumstances, William O'Neill of Norwich was ordered to appear in the town court to answer to a charge, Saturday morning, that he had been operating a motor vehicle the night before in Danielson with only one headlight burning. Judge W. Woodward imposed a fine of $5 and costs, total of $15.74.

Officer Andrews was merely engaged in carrying out his duty relative to seeing that motor vehicles are properly lighted when he halted Mr. O'Neill, who was prompt to resent the interruption and, among other things, according to Officer Andrews made some comment about town constables.

Not being representative himself of the largest community in the world, Mr. O'Neill's attitude made matters more difficult for him with the result that he was required to make a court appearance.

SALAMUCHA DRAWS FINE AND SUSPENDED SENTENCE

In the city court Saturday morning P. Salamucha of Sixth street was fined $200 and costs for violation of the prohibition laws, a jail sentence being suspended. He appealed and furnished a bond of $500.

A New London man paid $17.50 for breach of the peace and a local man charged with intoxication paid a fine $14.50.

At St. Anne Service in Bristol.

Mrs. M. H. Donahue and her brother, John F. Corcoran, of Norwich, were among those who attended the annual St. Anne Day services at Father Oliver T. Magnell's church, in Bristol, Conn., when ten thousand persons assembled in and about the edifice and there were several miraculous cures, as the result of faith in prayer. The service was one of great fervor and impressiveness, as thousands knelt in the grounds about the church, while a number of those who were able to reach the altar inside left their crutches and the like, as they were cured of their various ailments and infirmities.

Rev. R. J. Guerriero and Chester E. Wright were among others attending the services.

When interrogated Saturday afternoon States Attorney Hull would not discuss the matter at length. Commenting upon the situation in New London, States Attorney Hull said: "It is not worth risking a man's life to go out to get rum-runners. A fine of $200 with a suspended jail sentence gives the bootlegger such a pain that it causes him to smile!" The statement of States Attorney Hull was probably made in view of the fact that within the past week two rum-runners received fines and suspended sentences in the police court.

The youths went into the lobby of the Capitol theatre and going to the ticket window thrust their arms in and drew out a couple of slides prepared for making announcements on the screen. They preceeded down Bank street, followed by the officer who had observed what they did in the lobby. He demanded that they give up their plunder. They attempted to deny what they did, but the officer insisted and threatened them so they dropped the slides on the walk, breaking them. The officer insisted that they should pick up the pieces, which they did. Then he rebuked them and allowed them to go to the boat.

Employes about the union station are still talking of the good fortune that attended the blowing out of a cylinder head on the locomotive that brought the 3.17 train in here from Boston Thursday afternoon. The locomotive reached the station when the cylinder head blew out on the left side of the engine where there was no one to be scalded. Had the head blown out on the right side, people on the depot platform must have received the force of the steam.

A new bus has arrived for the route between New London and the submarine base.

As a result of the Yellow taxics being given a concession at the Union station for the establishment of an office in connection with the conduct of their business, thereby giving the company an advantage over the other public service operators in securing patronage, several of the aggrieved operators have decided to secure taxicabs of a similar design to those of the Yellow Taxi company and with fare clocks installed. Two of the public service men have already placed their order for cabs and others will do so the coming week.

Prohibition Enforcement Agent Joseph Fitzpatrick has taken possession of the Ford coupe, seized by the police several nights ago, when James Romano was detected removing a portion of the cargo of the rum boat Bertha E. Since the raid upon the boat, the cab had been in storage at the police station. The alcohol and liquor obtained from the craft, together with the alcohol and Scotch whiskey seized by the police is in storage in cells at the police station. Altogether there are about 100 five-gallon cans of alcohol and 50 cases of Scotch and rye whiskey in custody of the police.

City Manager Barlow issued his second order within a week to Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney, Saturday, to put a stop to automobile speeding. The latter's order was to put a stop to the high rate of speed of machines on Pequot avenue, between Maple avenue and Converse place, more particularly at Butler's beach, where children bathe. The previous order called for the ending of speeding on Pequot avenue, near Lower Boulevard and upon Mohegan avenue.

PRESIDENT HARDING'S CONDITION GRAVE; HAS SYMPTOMS OF BRONCHO-PNEUMONIA

Physicians Find That "Definite Patches of Broncho-Pneumonia" Have Developed in the Right Lung—Had Suffered During the Day From Weakness and Restlessness, With a Slight Decrease in Temperature and a Rapid Rise in Pulse and Respiration—Mrs. Harding at Bedside All Day.

Presidential Headquarters, Palace Hotel, San Francisco, July 30 (By the A. P.)—President Harding's condition became grave tonight and an announcement was made to that effect after a consultation by physicians in attendance upon the chief executive.

The physicians declared in a statement that "definite central patches of broncho-pneumonia had developed in the right lung as indicated clinically and by the X-ray."

The bulletin, issued at 9.10 p. m., read as follows:

"Definite central patches of broncho-pneumonia in the right lung, as indicated clinically and by the X-ray.

"Nourishment is being taken regularly and the abdominal symptoms are less noticeable.

"While his condition is grave, he is temperamentally well adapted to make a strong fight against the infection.

"Pulse, temperature and despiration are about the same as shown in the previous report.

"C. E. SAWYER, M. D.
"RAY LYMAN WILBUR, M. D.
"C. M. COOPER, M. D.
"J. T. BOONE, M. D.
"HUBERT WORK, M. D."

The development of pneumonia was the one thing which Brigadier-General Sawyer, the president's personal physician, had said less than two hours earlier that he feared above all else, as a complication.

Secretary Work, one of the consulting physicians, left the president's rooms plainly disturbed by the change in the president's condition. He was joined by Secretary Hoover and with one of the physicians, Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, went to another floor of the hotel to talk over the situation.

Dr. Wilbur's countenance was grave.

NEWS FROM SICK ROOM STRENGTHENS OPTIMISM

Presidential Headquarters, Palace Hotel, San Francisco, July 30.—(By the A. P.)—President Harding's illness yielded today to careful treatment and complete rest.

Starting the day after what his physicians described as "a fairly comfortable night," the chief executive more than held his own against development of new complications and his physicians in the meantime were able to make a diagnosis that showed the trouble to be localized in the gall bladder region.

Favorable conditions also were found such as the absence of peritoneal symptoms, freedom in the passages of the lungs, satisfactory functioning of the kidneys and no evidence of injurious effects on the nervous system except fatigue which only absolute rest can dissipate.

Feeling of Optimism

Information coming from the sick room of the president on the top floor of the Palace hotel, far removed from the noise and bustle of the city, seemed to strengthen the feeling of optimism.

For instance, the abandonment of the California program, which would have started tomorrow, appeared to ease the president's mind although he was reluctant to the last to cancel arrangements which had been under way for several months. Also the executive took some nourishment during the day, consisting of a little broth and portions of two or three soft boiled eggs.

The day or rest—the first entire day of rest Mr. Harding has obtained since he was seized with the attack of ptomaine poisoning aboard the naval transport Henderson while returning from Alaska the middle of last week—also was looked upon as highly beneficial.

Doctors Rely Upon Rest

Rest and more rest was what the doctors are relying on to bring about his recovery. To accomplish this only a few persons were allowed to enter his room today except Mrs. Harding and the physicians. Mrs. Harding remained by his bedside all day and the five physicians spent more than an hour with him during the morning and returned later in the day.

The consultation today was said to be largely for observation inasmuch as the seat of the trouble had been found. Another bulletin was promised upon conclusion of this consultation.

Every effort was made to give the executive the needed rest. Newspapermen generally were barred from the corridor within a hundred yards of the president's room and other persons were kept at even a greater distance away.

Inquiries of Solicitude

San Francisco newspaper offices and the hotel offices were flooded with inquiries during the day as to the president's condition. And in the hastily established executive offices, near to the presidential suite, telegrams of solicitude and of hope for prompt recovery poured in steadily throughout the day and tonight. State and city officials personally made inquiries during the day and among others who came to inquire was Senator Oddie of Nevada. A telegram from Senator Hiram Johnson of California, sent from Washington before news of the president's illness had become known in the capital, expressed regret at inability to be in California and share in the welcome to the chief executive.

No attending physicians would hazard a prediction as to when the president would be able to travel, but there was a common agreement among members of his party that when he does regain his strength he will return to Washington by special train with no stops for addresses or receptions en route. The return to the Atlantic Coast by way of the Panama Canal, Porto Rico and the Virgin Islands which was the original plan, virtually ceased to be a matter of consideration during the day although official announcement of its abandonment was temporarily withheld.

The president, prior to succumbing to his illness, had prepared two of the addresses he was scheduled to make on the Pacific coast, the one in the Auditorium here tomorrow on America's foreign relations, and that before the Knights Templar of Hollywood, California. Two plans were considered with respect to the San Francisco addresses, one that it be made public in the form of a statement by the president and the other that Secretary Christian read it at the contemplated mass meeting in the Auditorium. The first plan seemed the most likely of adoption. The Hollywood address probably will be made for the president by some prominent Knight Templar.

No Arrangements for Return Trip

Railroad officials up to tonight had not been requested to begin the making of arrangements for the trip back to Washington, but in some quarters it was thought that the shortest route by way of Salt Lake City, Denver, Omaha and Chicago would be selected. Among some members of the presidential party there was a belief that August 10 or 12 would find Mr. Harding back in the White House, provided, of course, that he makes the recovery that is expected.

PRESIDENT HEEDS THE ADVICE OF MRS. HARDING

San Francisco, July 30—(By the A. P.)—Mrs. Warren G. Harding left the White House in Washington more than a month ago to accompany the President on his 15,000 mile trip despite the fact that she had recovered but a short time from a serious illness and was judged by some as being at that time in a condition where the hardships of the road might prove disastrous, resulting possibly in a recurrence of the illness from which she recently had suffered.

Today the woman who was expected to be nursed has become the nurse. Her husband has been stricken by illness. Five physicians have been called to his bedside in the hotel here in serious consultation. Mrs. Harding has cheerfully assumed the burdens of the sickroom, still smiling in the face of adverse fortune, displaying a courage that has won for her the admiration of every member of the presidential party and, in addition, lending an effective hand in the business office where secretaries and clerks labor with the work of cancelling arrangements made in advance, acknowledging hundreds of messages of solicitude, and responding to continuous telephone calls from anxious friends everywhere in the country.

It was revealed today that it was Mrs. Harding who finally persuaded the President to give up hopes of continuing the journey as it was originally planned. Pleading on the part of others of the chief executive's personal party, including the admonitions of Brigadier General Sawyer, the President's physician and friend, it was learned, had failed to convince him that he must surrender to sickness the pleasures of meeting the people along the line of travel and must let them know of his ailment.

It was Mrs. Harding's argument that it would be better for the chief executive to halt in San Francisco, cancel the advance itinerary and announce to the public the true facts, than it would be to continue the journey and risk the consequences of continued travels under the prevailing circumstances. The logic of this plea compelled the President to yield to that course but only after he had steadily refused in talks with Dr. Sawyer and Secretary Work, also a physician, to permit the announcement to be made that the program was to be cancelled.

GOVERNOR'S TELEGRAM TO PRESIDENT'S BEDSIDE

Hartford, July 30.—Governor Templeton tonight sent the following telegram to President Harding's bedside at San Francisco:

"The president:

San Francisco, Calif.

The people of the state of Connecticut tender their warmest sympathy to their beloved president. Their hearts go out to you and Mrs. Harding in a wealth of affection, and their earnest prayers will be offered Almighty God for your speedy recovery.

CHARLES A. TEMPLETON,
Governor of Connecticut."

$50,000 FIRE DAMAGE IN ESTATE OF H. J. FISHER

Greenwich, Conn., July 30.—Fire this afternoon destroyed a number of buildings on the estate of Henry J. Fisher on Round Hill road five miles from here causing a loss of approximately $50,000. The blaze, origin of which is unknown, started in a barn containing sixty tons of hay and spread to horse and cow barns, the ice house and buildings housing farm machinery.

Firemen from Greenwich, Glenville, Eastport and Sound Beach were hampered by lack of adequate water supply and before they could turn streams on the structures the fire had made great headway. Walloy Rocke, of Glenville fire department fell off the of a barn and suffered injuries to one of his ankles and body shock. He was removed to Greenwich hospital.

The Fisher home is in New York City, but the family now is at Kennebunkport, Me.

IRENE CASTLE DENIES PARIS DIVORCE DISPATCH

New York, July 30.—Irene Castle today returned from Paris with a pet goat.

A group of reporters met her on the dock when the Lafayette came alongside and she got their goats, too.

For the dancer tartly contradicted dispatches from Paris quoting from court records to show that she had obtained a divorce from Robert E. Treman, Ithaca manufacturer. Miss Castle declared she didn't have a decree and hadn't asked for one.

To back up this statement, she said she expected to meet the Majestic when that liner arrived Wednesday bearing Mr. Treman. At the White Star offices it was said first cabin lists did not show Mr. Treman's name, but that he might have engaged passage at the last minute.

So the waterfront is waiting to see what Wednesday will bring forth.

Infer Hooper and Barton Incapable

Dissenting Opinion by Labor Members of the U. S. Railroad Labor Board in Shop Crafts Decision.

Chicago, July 30.—(By the A. P.)—A. C. Wharton and E. F. Grable, labor members of the United States railroad labor board, in a dissenting opinion to a decision made public today, declared that the federated shopcrafts strike of 1922 was due probably to to the incapability of Chairman Ben W. Hooper and R. M. Barton to understand the value placed upon trade union ethics by bona fide trade unions." Chairman Hooper and Judge Barton are members of the public group of the board.

The statement was made in a dissenting opinion to a decision rendered by the board ordering the wages of employes of the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient railroad and the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient Railroad Co., of Texas reduced to the wage scale that prevailed at the termination of federal control of the carrier.

"The chairman of the board and Judge Barton, in referring to the attitude of the employes (in this case) in a manner peculiarly their own, and without foundation in fact said in effect, 'that the employes had admitted that a reduction should be made,'" said the dissenting opinion. "These members of the board, in placing such an interpretation on the statement of the employes, in the opinion of the undersigned, indicates incapability of understanding the value placed upon trade union ethics by bona fide trade unions, and probably due to this same disability may be found the answer to the suspension of work July 1, 1922, by the shopmen and others, which resulted in a loss of hundreds of millions of dollars to the carriers, employes and the public."

"The virulent nature of the dissenting opinion would seem to indicate that its writer has momentarily lost sight of the fact that he is no longer the head of the striking shopmen, but is now a sworn member of a public tribunal designed to protect the people from the sinister effect of railroad strikes," declared Chairman Hooper in his supporting opinion of the decision, which he declared to be just and reasonable.

"The dissenting opinion declares that the 'trade union ethics' involved in the course thus pursued by the representatives of the employes are beyond the understanding of certain of those voting for this decision" Chairman Hooper's opinion continues. "In this the dissenter is mistaken. Trade union ethics cannot be different from the ethics of other people and other organizations. They embody the same principles of right and wrong and cannot embrace the idea that the end justifies the means."

IMMIGRANTS ENOUGH TO FILL AUGUST QUOTA

New York, July 30.—Due to the "savage race" between steamship lines trying to land aliens before the August quota is filled, many thousands of immigrants will be forced, through no fault of their own, to remain on ships in New York harbor for from ten days to two weeks, Immigration Commissioner Curran said tonight.

He denounced the lines, whose officials, he said knew that thousands of aliens would be turned back to Europe after spending their life savings for passage to this country, for what he called "dealing in dividends of human beings, to satisfy their own greed."

Fourteen vessels were jockeying tonight for positions from which they could reach Quarantine with the greatest possible speed when the quota opens at midnight tomorrow. Of these five were British, two American, three Italian, one German, one Norwegian, one French, and one Swedish.

The craft owned by the Fred A. Weeck company was valued at $50,000.

It was reported here tonight that the boat was in the hands of a receiver and that an investigation was to be made in regard to the origin of the fire. Up to tonight no report of the firm had arrived here although word of the fire had been sent to officials.

OBITUARY.

Capt. George Brown Kimberly

New York, July 30.—The death of Captain George Brown Kimberly, one of the few old-time naval officers who emerged from retirement to take a stirring part in the world war, was announced today. Captain Kimberly, aged 71, died suddenly yesterday at his home, 408 West 150th street. The body will be interred at Annapolis tomorrow with military honors.

Despite his advanced years, Captain Kimberly appealed to the navy department for a place when America entered the war, and was assigned to the transport President Lincoln as paymaster.

He made five trips through the submarine zone, and was aboard her when she was attacked and sent to the bottom by two German submarines, with a loss of 36 lives, on May 31, 1918.

Captain Kimberly was one of those members of her crew who were rescued by an American destroyer after they had spent a day in midocean in a small boat. He continued in active service up to, and after the end of the war, going back to the retired list about 18 months ago.

Captain Kimberly is survived by two brothers, Samuel A. Kimberly, of Washington, and Harry H. Kimberly, President of the First National Bank of Hampton, Va., and by a sister, Mrs. Wesley M. Oler of New York.

Worcester, Mass., July 30.—Herman Scherve, widely known photographer, died today at his home in Shrewsbury from heart trouble. Mr. Scherve, who had studios in several New England cities, photographed many famous people, including former Presidents Theodore Roosevelt and William Howard Taft. He was born in Norway in 1866 and came to this country in 1880. Cuno's Ministry in Germany Tottering Tenure of Office Seems to Hinge on the Speedy Production of Foodstuffs—Marketing in Holland.

Berlin, July 30.—(By the A. P.)—Potatoes and fats are two commodities destined to play an important part in determining the Cuno ministry's further tenure fo office. If the government succeeds in effecting an early improvement in the food situation in greater Berlin and other industrial centres, particularly in the Ruhr, the social and political crisis which threw Berlin into a panic last week, will have been overcome.

The government today started out on a hurried marketing trip in Holland and Denmark, having instructed the Reichsbank to surrender a liberal share of its reserves of foreign currencies in order to meet the heavy costs of Dutch potatoes and American and Danish lard, the two articles chiefly missing from the local market. Chancellor Cuno discussed the situation with several leading industrialists, among them Hugo Stinnes who volunteered to assist the government in its forage for food supplies.

The situation in the Ruhr especially is making the government apprehensive and the industrialists have impressed upon the chancellor the decisive influence of early remedial measures there.

The talk of an impending cabinet crisis is dismissed by the political writers and party leaders, who primarily lay stress on the inadvisability of swapping horses while Germany is fording the troubled waters of her foreign relations.

The reichstag leaders generally appear to view a change in the ministry at this stage as a superfluous luxury, the more so as Chancellor Cuno is able safely to count on majority support in parliament for a constructive programme of internal relief measures.

The chancellor today received delegations from the various labor federations, who presented demands relating to taxation laws and other economic issues; they asked for immediate action by the government.

The mark has finally reached and passed the one million notch in the Berlin bourse. Quotations for well known industrials again set new records because of heavy demands.

MAKING ARGUMENT FOR DEFENSE IN MORSE TRIAL

Washington, July 30.—Contending the government had failed to make a case against Charles W. Morse, his three sons and four others on trial here on charges of conspiracy to defraud the shipping board, Wilton J. Lambert, beginning argument for the defense today, declared the jury could do nothing but acquit all the defendants.

Mr. Lambert addressed the jury after District Attorney Gordon had spent three and one half hours reviewing the mass of evidence and demanding the conviction of the eight defendants. Each of the overt acts set forth in the indictments, Mr. Gordon asserted, have been proved.

Mr. Lambert denied there was evidence of delay in the ship contribution program of the Morse interests, or that there had been "shark kiteing," as charged by the prosecution. He read a number of jury instructions, offered by the defense, and allowed by Justice Stafford, declaring they were "compasses" and "beacon lights" for the guidance of the jurors in reaching a verdict of not guilty.

PEKING GOV'T GUNBOATS OPENED FIRE ON AMOY

Amoy, China, July 28.—(By the A. P.)—Two gunboats of the Peking government steamed into the harbor here at 2.30 o'clock this afternoon and opened fire on the fort. The guns at the fort returned the fire.

After ten minutes of firing the gunboats retired to the western side of the island of Kulangsu, an international settlement where they were protected from the guns of the fort.

No casualties were reported as a result of the engagement and there was little damage. The fort is expected to surrender to the northern government. It has been in the hands of adherents of Sun Yat-Sen, South China leader.

FORMER U. S. SCOUT CRUISER SOLD TO GERMAN INTERESTS

New York, July 30.—The St. Paul, one time scout cruiser in the United States navy during the Spanish-American war, has been sold, officials of the American line announced today. Julius Hausmann, of New York, said to be a representative of German interests was the buyer and he will arrange to send he vessel to Germany.

STEAMER GOES DOWN WITH 400 TONS OF HARD COAL

Watertown, N. Y., July 30.—The steamer Carter with 400 tons of hard coal, which left Oswego, Saturday for Coburg, Ont., sprang a leak in a gale on Lake Ontario early Sunday morning and went down. The crew of seven men and a woman, cook, who took to the lifeboat just before the steamer foundered, were picked up by steamer Keyport and landed at Cape Vincent. The Carter was owned by Captain James Quinn, of Kingston, Ont., and Robert Hicks, of Peterboro, Ont. The crew hailed from Kingston.

JURY TO REPORT ON $2,000,000 BROKERAGE FAILURE TODAY

New York, July 30.—The grand jury which has been investigating the $2,000,000 failure of Kardos and Burke, stock brokers, has completed its inquiry, it was learned today, and may hand down indictments tomorrow.

The firm comprised Louis Mongomery Kardos, Jr., and John Burke, former treasurer of the United States and three times governor of North Dakota. Mr. Burke recently offered to aid the prosecution, but he was not called as a witness.

Two fires within an hour in the same shed on Hartford's East Side called out the department Sunday and gave strength to the suspicion of the police that they were incendiary. The total number of fires in the shed now charged to the supposed firebug is nine.

BRITAIN HANDED REPLIES FROM FRANCE AND BELGIUM

Premier Baldwin and Lord Curzon Fail to Voice Hope That Great Britain and France Have Been Drawn Any Closer Together—Secrecy of the Negotiations is Being Maintained—Lord Curzon Has Informed the House of Lords That He Would Give Them a Statement Thursday If It is Within His Power.

London, July 30 (By the A. P.)—The French and Belgian ambassadors this evening handed to Lord Curzon, secretary of state for foreign affairs, the replies of their governments to the British note proposing negotiations with Germany to solve the problem of the Ruhr and the greater problem of German reparations.

Premier Baldwin and Lord Curzon spoke briefly in parliament—the commons and lords respectively—today on the position of the negotiations at that moment. Both were terse; neither voiced any hope that Great Britain and France had drawn closer together. There will be an attempt to discuss the topic before parliament adjourns Thursday as the members are eager to learn the exact aspect of affairs.

No promise was given today that they would likely see the curtain raised. The premier, speaking only an hour or so before the foreign secretary received the ambassadors, told the commons it was very doubtful whether anything would be received which could be published in Thursday's debate. The premier gave one gloomy hint. "I am afraid," he said. "it will only be a continuation of the negotiations."

Lord Curzon informed the lords with an air of weary resignation he certainly would give them a statement Thursday if it were within his power to do so but his manner clearly indicated he didn't think it would.

No hints have come across the channel that Premier Poincare has abandoned or even modified the views which his government has previously held so tenaciously, and on every opportunity he was reiterated the planks in his platform that there will be no beginning of conversations with Germany until and unless Germany formally renounces passive resistance in the Ruhr and that there will be no withdrawal from the Ruhr until Germany has paid France all she demands.

That seems to be the deep gulf which no minor concessions that France makes to Great Britain can bridge.

One outstanding feature of this latest chapter in allied dealings has been the deep secrecy which has enshrouded it. There has been no attempted revelations of details of the British note nor of the French and Belgian replies on any important points, except such as intelligent guesswork based on what knowledge of the policies of the two governments could offer.

Seldom have secrets known in foreign offices and to the cabinets in half a dozen cappals been so successfully hidden. In the previous stages of the debates all the important points have been quickly published and the French newspapers have been the quickest and most sure in their knowledge, making allowances for their natural leanings toward placing French interests in the center of the picture.

The Italian and German ambassadors also visited Curzon this evening but there is no reason to believe that the Germans' visit was connected with reparations, for Germany still is in the position of awaiting a reply to her latest communication. It is believed that the German ambassador wanted to discuss the latest developments in the financial chaos of his country.

It is not yet known whether the Italian ambassador presented any written answer to the British note although the Associated Press correspondent in Rome says that the Italian government has despatched one which takes the middle ground between the British and French. Brussels advices say that Belgium supports France on the main points but that the Belgian reply contains elements of a constructive plan in which respect it is believed to go beyond the French answer.

After the British parliament adjourns Thursday both the French and British cabinets will have charge of affairs during the long parliamentary recess. Premier Baldwin tonight told J. Ramsay MacDonald, the opposition leader, that the British parliament can be summoned quickly in the event of emergency but that if it adjourns without having assurances of progress in lifting the darkest European cloud it will disperse in an atmosphere of deep gloom.

PENNSYLVANIA POLICE SEARCHING FOR BANDITS

Scranton, Pa., July 30.—Police throughout northeastern Pennsylvania tonight were searching for seven bandits who, today, held up a Laurel line electric car at a lonely spot between Moosic and Avoca, shot and killed one passenger, wounded four others, one a woman, and robbed the paymaster of the Ween End Coal company of $70,-125 in cash. Three persons were arrested at Wilkesbarre on suspicion and another at Duryea. None had been identified late tonight and the man taken into custody at Duryea convinced the authorities of his innocence and was released.

A reward of $2,500 for the arrest and conviction of the highwaymen was offered tonight by a local bonding company.

Accompanied by two guards, Arch Henshall, the paymaster, boarded the car shortly after 9 a. m., carrying the payroll for the employes of the coal company at Mocanaqua. Five foreign speaking men were passengers on the car. After leaving Moosic one of the quintet stepped to the front platform and ordered P. J. Durkin, the motorman to stop the car. Durkin efused and was shot through the chest and seriously wounded. As he sank to the oor the motorman turned off the power, stopping the car at the same time another member of the gang, with an automatic pistol in each hand, ordered the passengers to hold up their hands, and began firing. One of the first shots struck Edward J. Murphy, of Scranton, killing him almost instantly. Philip Scribner, a Scranton salesman, and Mrs. Rose Krotovitz, of Lake Winola, also were wounded in the first fusillade. Neither was seriously hurt.

Henshall resisted when the bandits demanded that he give them the suit casesc ontaining the money and he was promptly shot through the thigh.

The five men grabbed the suit cases containing the payroll money, swung themselves from the car and leaped into an automobile in which two companions were waiting with the motor running. They were seen a few minutes later speeding toward Duryea.

CLOUDBURST CAUSES FLOOD IN MARYLAND

Baltimore, Dd., July 30.—A flood in Carroll County believed to have been caused by a cloudburst, has many acres along the north branch of the Patapsco river under water. Hundreds of houses are almost covered with water.

One entire town, Marriotsville, is reported under water. Property damage is very heavy, but no loss of life has been reported. Many towns have been cut off from other parts of the state. No word has been received from them since late this afternoon. Many pieces of furniture are floating down the river.

According to word from Sykesville and Pikesville, on the south branch of the river, these towns also are under water.

Seven miles of track of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad are reported submerged.

At 8.15, half of a stone dam, about 100 yards wide, was swept by the torrent causing the high waters at the bridge to mount even higher. Barns on the Carroll County side of the branch were swept away.

Farmers, however, since the waters began their rise at 3.30 P. M., had removed cattle, pigs and other livestock to high ground and these did not suffer in the destruction of the barns.

A second cloudburst occurred at Woodbine at nine o'clock tonight and Ellicott City some distance away has been warned that ten more feet of water soon would reach the place. All lights and telephones are out of commission.

Hundreds of livestock have perished. Many have been seen floating down the river.

NEGOTIATIONS WITH TURKEY IN UNFAVORABLE POSITION

Lausanne, July 30.—(By the A. P.)—The Turco-American negotiations are in an unfavorable position; it depends upon the decision of Washington whether a convention will be signed at Lausanne.

Ismet Pasha took Riza Nur Bey with him today to give him added strength in his talks with Joseph C. Drew. The first indication that the situation was less hopeful came when Ismet announced that Turkey could do nothing for the United States with respect to the protection of christian populations in Turkey who were Ottoman subjects.

Coming down to the question of the American claims for property, Ismet suggested two alternatives. He proposed that a distinct category of claims to be agreed upon should be mentioned in the treaty and submitted to arbitration, failing an accord in specific cases. The second alternative was that the fixing of a category of claims should be adjourned for later negotiations between the two governments and that when requests for damages fell into the field thus restricted they should be submitted to two appraisers, one of a Turk and the other an American.

As the Turkish conception of a proper category eliminates all losses incidental to insurrection or war. The Americans seem to doubt its reasonableness or availability, nevertheless Mr. Grew in his desire for a settlement agreed to have a joint meeting of experts work out a formula, which he presumably will cable to Washington.

GRILLED TAGICAB DRIVER ON MURDER OF POLICEMEN

New York, July 30.—William J Lynch, a taxicab driver, was arrested tonight, accused of having driven the automobile from which Patrolman Reynolds and Romanelli were shot and killed in the upper East Side on Thursday night, after they had run the speeding taxi down.

Detectives at police headquarters imediately began grilling him in an effort to learn the identity of the male fare, who shot the policemen, and his red-haired woman companion, whose screams had led the patrolmen to give chase to the taxicab.

Lynch, it was declared, was the man whose picture had been picked out as driver of the taxicab by automobilists whose car the patrolmen commandeered for the chase.

Lynch was released after a four-hour examination, in the course of which the occupants of the pursuit car failed to pick him out of a "line-up" of men of similar general descriptions. He denied all knowledge of the cause, declaring he was in another part of the city last Thursday night.

MISSING MAN'S AUTO COVERED WITH BLOOD

Ridgefield, Conn., July 30. — An abandoned automobile covered with blood inside and out and containing a blood-stained iron bar and mallet, was found early this afternoon by state policemen on a deserted road here. The car is owned by Percy Wasile Tringle of 67 Burton street, Waterbury, who has been missing from his home since Saturday noon. It is believed that Tringle was either murdered or badly injured in a holdup.

Tringle works as a taxi driver and it is believed that he was attacked from behind by passengers he was carrying and and relieved of his money. Members of the state police force at the Ridgefield barracks started out this afternoon in an effort to locate either Wasley or his dead body.

Happy days are reported from the camp of Troops 1, 2 and 3, Boy Scouts of America, of St. Joseph's parish, at the foot of Tampton Hill, on Bigelow lake. The scouts experienced some trouble from recent rainstorms which soaked through the tents and called for shifting around. The large tent owned by the American Thread A. A. was secured over the week-end and the boys removed their belongings to that haven and they will remain there until the weather clears up. The campers are engaging in baseball contests, bathing and fishing, besides carrying out various light duties. There are fourteen tents on the field, nine for the boys and others for the quarters of Scoutmaster Jeremiah McCarthy and his assistants. The quarters of Chief Musician C. N. C. ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre.

There's something in our Constitution about all of us being born free and equal, isn't there? Well, we may all be free—but we aren't all equal and you know it. Lots of folks have more brains or more money or more health or more social opportunities than others. Would you marry above your station if you could? Would you marry a college graduate if you had never even been to a district school? Would you marry a member of the Four Hundred if you were a truck driver's child? Would you think there was any chance for happiness in the union of an orphan asylum girl and a young millionaire?

Come to the Breed theatre today and see this important social problem worked out by dashing Bebe Daniels in "Nancy From Nowhere." Not a mischievous hoyden this time, but a wistful little drudge, loved by a very eligible young man.

Other pictures on the bill include the Pathe News and an Educational comedy.

The Tiger's Claw Scores at the Strand

Jack Holt's latest Paramount star picture, The Tiger's Claw, was shown for the first time at the Strand theatre last night and scored a decided hit. This is an excellent production and should prove one of the season's great successes.

Sam Sandall (Jack Holt), an engineer constructing a dam in India, is clawed by a tiger and falls seriously ill from fever. To show his appreciation he marries the half-caste Indian girl who nursed him back to health. In Bhangapur, whither Sandell is summoned to a conference with Henry Fraser Halehurst, the financial backer of the dam project, he meets the latter's daughter whom he had loved in England. Sadell's native wife reveals a plot to him that thugs are planning to give the English folks a feast in a diverted river bed beneath the dam and then blow up the dam and destroy them all. A thug attempts to murder Sandell and in the scuffle Chamett, Sam's wife, is killed.

The blow-up of the dam is one of the most spectacular and thrilling scenes ever screened. Sandell rescues Harriet, but is himself swept on with the flood. He is found later, half dead, and Harriet cares for him. She kneels beside him and tells him how happy she is that he has returned to her. The work of Jack Holt is highly commendable as is that of Miss Novak. The supporting cast, including George Periolat, Bertram Crassby and George Field, is generally excellent. The direction by Joseph Henabery was faultless.

Round No. 8 of the Famous Fighting Blood Stories by H. C. Witwer was the second feature and proved tobe the best to day.

A comedy and news rounded out the programme.

Local men who enjoy a day in the woods and fields, recall the time when the first pheasants were set free in Griswold. Close to 50 years ago the late P. R. Driscoll and W. H. Bennett, with F. C. Whiting (who gives the birds a lively turn now and then today) bought and liberated a dozen golden pheasants. Within two years the Ashland Fish and Game association have placed more than a dozen pairs, which were hatched under hens and brought to the stage where they could shift for themselves.

The Auk tells of the substitution of three hen's eggs for those of the short-eared owl, which is the only one of the owls which nests on the ground. The eggs were duly hatched, then came the trouble. The young chicks expected a mother that would cluck and scratch for them the first day. Mrs. Owl expected three big-headed, blind and helpless owls, unable to stand on their feet for days, and entirely dependent upon her for their sustenance. When Mr. Owl saw his children running about, although he couldn't account for it, he flew away soon returning with three freshly killed field mice, which he laid down for their supper. Then, if owls can be said to weep, he did, when his little brood failed to pull them to pieces with great gusto, as he had always seen his offspring do. The greatest shock came to the foster-mother, when she approached the nest from the air. There her white leghorn chicks scattered in great fright, for the voice of the instinct of their species cried out to them "A hawk, beat it, double quick."

100° in the Shade or 10° below Zero!

One hundred degrees in the shade or ten below zero, meat deliveries to your retailer go steadily on, so that you may be assured of just the kind and quality of meat that you desire.

No city is so far removed from live stock production that it cannot receive its regular supply of fresh meats.

Compare this with the meat supply of thirty or forty years ago. Summer weather then meant salt or pickled meats in the country, and a limited variety of fresh meats in most cities.

Refrigeration, developed by scientists, has made it possible for Swift & Company, and other packers, to prepare fresh meats and ship them long distances in refrigerator cars, so that today, without regard to heat or cold, meat reaches your dealer fresh, clean, and wholesome.

In addition to the fresh meats thus available, Swift & Company prepares a variety of tempting meats for hot weather:

Swift's Premium Cooked Ham, mild and sweet, smoked over hard wood fires, is always delicious.

Swift's Premium Frankfurts, from our modern sanitary kitchens, offer a choice blending of meats and spices.

Swift's Sausage Specialties and Swift's Dry Sausage, ready to serve, help lighten the housewife's summer task.

In addition to these, a score of other Summer Specialties are made available by Swift & Company's research and development work.

Our profit from all sources averages only a fraction of a cent a pound.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

Nearly $25,000 in new building, houses and garages, will be in the process of erection within a short time, according to building permits granted by Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton during the past week. This brings the total for the month close to $150,000 worth of new building to be erected in the city and brings the number above the normal average for the month.

The five building permits issued during the past week are as follows:

To M. J. Solomon to erect a two-story house at the corner of Broad street and Broadway. The new house will be of the cottage type with eight rooms and baths and will be of frame construction. The foundation will be of stone and cement and the house will be 36x39 1-2 feet. The exterior will be finished in clapboards and shingles and the interior will be finished in plaster and hardwood.

To Nickolas Kozak to erect a two-story frame house on Golden street extension. The house will be 26x44 feet and will have two tenements of six rooms each. The foundation will be of cement and stone and the exterior finish will be in clapboards and shingles. The interior will be finished in plaster and hardwood.

To Healey and Washburn to make alterations to the present house owned by Mrs. M. Ensling on Sherman street. The roof is to be raised one story and the alterations will give another apartment. The exterior finish will be in red cedar shingles and the roof will be covered with composition shingles. The interior will be finished in sheetrock and hardwood.

To John Lapkowski to build a frame garage, 9x14 feet, on South Thames street. Mr. Lapkowski is to do the work himself.

To Anthony J. Bernard to erect a garage 12x20 feet on Boswell avenue. The garage will be of frame construction with composition roof.

At the new Palace theatre work is going along smoothly and good progress has been there. The steel work for the marquis has been set in place and has the steel frame for the cathedral window that will be in the front of the building. As the interior work has progressed rapidly and a large part of the floor has been laid and the contractors are now getting ready for the decorators. The large pipe organ is arriving in sections and will be installed within the near future.

Other projects have made equally as good progress during the past week and several have reached the stage of completion while others have not progressed as far. From all indications the year 1923 will be a record year and the amount of building will exceed all previous records.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week there were 11 sales of real estate as compared to 20 sales for the corresponding week in 1922. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $24,475 and $70,850.

There were 12 sales of real estate in New London during the past week, four more than for the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $45,650 and $31,800.

THE STATE SITUATION.

Figures giving the record of building permits granted in the larger centers of the state show a continued downward tendency. In the towns reported, 222 permits were granted in the past week, for buildings costing $565,676. These figures compare with 248 permits granted in the like week o fthe year 1922, for buildings costing $824,582, and 194 in 1922, for buildings costing $502,863.

NEW LONDON.

Arrangements have been completed for the transfer to the Connecticut Power Co., Methodist street, of one of the most desirable sites on the tract of land, formerly the Williams property, recently purchased by F. W. Mercer, J. P. T. Armstrong and Theodore Bodenwein. The new owners will erect a new building in the near future.

The Soltz company have the permit for extensive changes to the store at 10 Main street. There will be a new store front of plate glass and copper, new plumbing and wiring a new metal ceiling and other improvements.

The permit for the erection of a gasoline sales and service station has been issued to E. Clifton Ford. The building, which will be 12x30 feet, of brick, will be erected at the corner of Church and Main streets.

Enough Bran and good eating

If we hadn't told you that Mapl-Flake is 25% bran, you'd never guess it. Yet there's enough bran in Mapl-Flake to be a harmless, natural, non-habit-forming laxative—to "sweep" the digestive tract.

Mapl-Flake is just the thing for you to eat in the morning—appetizing, full of flavor, and genuinely nourishing. It is rich in body-builders—in the mineral salts of phosphorus, iron and lime. It contains those life-giving vitamins which stimulate the appetite and then feed it.

Mapl-Flake is selected whole wheat, sweetened, flaked, and toasted to a delicious brown. No wonder so many mothers are serving it—and their families never dream there's any bran in it.

$1000 in Prizes for Jingles

Write a four-line jingle telling how good Mapl-Flake is and how good it is for you. First prize, $250—and 165 prizes in all. You have a fine chance to win—especially if you're a Mapl-Flaker. Contest closes August 15, 1923. Send your jingles to the Contest Manager, Armour Grain Company, Chicago, Ill.

BRASS BAND WILL BE PRESENT AT GAME TONIGHT AT BATTLEGROUNDS

It will be like olden times tonight at 6.30 when Houston's Brass Band leads the rival teams of the East Side onto the Battlegrounds for the fifth game of the much talked about series for the championship of the East Side. The rival managers have done everything in their power to thrill the real red hot baseball fans of the city by securing the most reputed stars in his locality, but, at last week's game it could be seen that there was something missing and it was decided that a little live music was what was needed to add zest and pep to the already hotly contested series. No doubt the fans will appreciate what Prof. Houston and his twenty piece brass band will do tonight in the line of real jazzy jazz.

At promptly 6.30 the rival teams headed by the band will parade once around the field and disband at home plate so as to give some of the amateur photographers a chance to take a few snapshots of Col. Fowler, Berger, Goldberg and any of their other diamond heroes. Immediately after these few minor details the Married Men will take the field and the battle will be on. "Jumbo" James will be on the mound for his team and rest of his lineup will be the same as last week, with the exception of center field which James says will be covered by a dark horse. It is rumored that the dark horse is none other than Conrad McDowell the much reputed novelist from Hedge Ave. When asked if this was true Mgr. James refused to make a statement.

Mgr. Pedace sprang a surprise last night by announcing that he would use Berger Goldberg in the box again. When asked the reason for this decision after Berger's loss of last week's game, Pedace stated that after Goldberg's heart-breaking speech to his many ardent admirers after the loss of last week's game in regard to his wish for another chance in the box, only a manager with a heart of stone could turn down such an ambitious youngster. He also stated that the fans demanded that he should be given another chance. Mgr. Pedace gave Berger a stiff workout yesterday afternoon and declared that the kid was in wonderful shape.

The only shift in the Single Men's lineup will be Col. Fowler, who will vacate short stop to cover right field. Mgr. Pedace guarantees that nothing will get by the sturdy little veteran as the Colonel will be supplied with a couple of crab nets and a few sheets of sticky fly paper before he takes his position in the garden.

If the Married Men win tonight the series will be a thing of the past but should the Single Men pull through the series will stand even with two games in each team's favor and the deciding game will be played Friday evening. Mgr. Pedace stated last night that there surely will be a playoff Friday, he also said that since "Jumbo" James pitched his team to victory last week that his head has became so large that it is making him roundshouldered and that after tonight's game he will once again be back to normal. The band will play all the popular selections between innings and lead the victors off the field after the game.

REDS GO BACK INTO SECOND PLACE BY BEATING PHILLIES

Cincinnati, Ohio, July 30—Cincinnati went back into second place in the National league race today by winning both games of a double header from Philadelphia while New York was breaking even with Pittsburgh. The first game was won by bunching hits off Winters with two passes and an error by Sand in the third inning. Donohue was hit freely but good support kept the Phillies from overcoming the Red lead. Harris, a recruit from the Piedmont league, made his first big league start in the second game and won 3 to 4 in spite of two bad innings. The Reds made good use of their hits off Weinert and played very fast ball in the field. Tierney was put off the field by Umpire Finneran in the third inning of the first game for disputing a decision at first base, and Parkinson played in his place the rest of the afternoon. Score:

Pittsburgh, July 30—Pittsburgh and New York divided a double header today, Pittsburgh winning the first game 5 to 4, and New York the second 17 to 3. Pittsburgh dropped to third place in the National league race, Cincinnati winning two games from Philadelphia.

FIRPO WILL NOT ASK RICKARD TO POSTPONE HIS BOUT WITH DEMPSEY

Omaha, Neb., July 30.—(By the A. Wilmer.

Firpo will be in New York before September 14 to start training for the bout, he declared.

"While I would much prefer to wait until next year," Firpo declared, "I would not consider asking Mr. Rickard to postpone the date. I will keep my contract as I always have done."

BROWNS TAKE TWO GAMES FROM ATHLETICS

Philadelphia, July 30—St. Louis took both ends of a double header from Philadelphia today winning the first game 5 to 2 and the second 4 to 2. McManus had two home runs in the opening game, accounting for four St. Louis tallies. Severeid hit a homer for the fifth St. Louis run.

In the second game Hasty had one bad inning, the second, and the Browns obtained a lead that the Athletics could not overcome. Scores:

RATNER BEATS TED LEWIS IN LONDON RING

London, July 30.—(By the A. P.)— Augie Ratner of New York tonight defeated Ted "Kid" Lewis, former middleweight champion, on points in a 20 round bout.

The first ten rounds were uninteresting; there was considerable infighting and Lewis was warned frequently for hitting low. In the 12th Ratner forced the fighting, punishing Lewis severely about the head.

Lewis hooked Ratner in the fourteenth, and the blood flowed from the corner of the eye where the blow landed. After some holding in the 17th, Lewis tried for a knockout, with fierce right, but they fell short of the jaw. Ratner countered with a hard straight right, which staggered his opponent.

Ratner showed to greater advantage in the eighteenth, landing a number of hard smashes, but the last two rounds were light, with honors in Ratner's favor.

HARDING IN CANADA.

That was an impressive point that President Harding brought out in his little speech at Vancouver in response to the cordial welcome given him when he spoke of the 3,000 miles of unfortified and unguarded frontier between this country and Canada. To the European mind such a thing would seem impossible and not to be thought of that two nations could live side by side without a fringe of bayonets between.

President Harding said in his address:

"Only a scrap of paper, recording hardly more than a simple understanding, safeguards lives and property on the Great Lakes and only humble mile posts mark the inviolable boundary for thousands of miles through farm and forest. Our protection is in our fraternity, our armor is our [illegible]; the tie that binds more firmly year by year is every-increasing acquaintance through interchange of citizens, and the compact is not of perishable parchment, but of fair and honorable dealing which, God grant, shall continue for all time."

There is free passage between the countries without the bothersome passport difficulties that distinguish European travel. It may be a development of the future that there will be just as free an exchange of commodities. Each country has confidence in the other, there is no jealous looking across the border with hopes of conquest or annexation, but each is determined to go its own way in full respect for the other and in confidence that neither wants to disturb the present pleasant relations.

Whether the peaceful frontier could be maintained were Canada under the dominion of a continental power might be a question, but it is enough to say that the two countries are inhabited by people who understand each other, who get their ideas of government and liberty from the same source—and that helps mightily.

Our unguarded frontier is an object lesson that could well be a hope for all nations.

TROUBLE IN CHINA.

Whether China is headed for chaos and demoralization is a question that is raised by the firing upon American and British vessels in Chinese waters in the last few days. At present the country has in its capital no president, no premier, no finance minister. Three members of the defunct cabinet who have remained issue orders as regents in charge, but there is no money in the treasury to pay troops or otherwise conduct affairs, and soldiers are reported to be adopting the tactics of bandits and harassing people.

One authority on the subject has said recently that the world is face to face with one of its gravest problems in the republic of China. She seems to be a weak sister among the nations. She is very old and has had crises before which have disturbed her little, and nobody knows now just how critical comparatively the situation is. The Washington conference did consider the need for stability in that part of the world and steps were taken which it was hoped would assist China in more firmly establishing itself. Instead, however, conditions appear to have gone from bad to worse, with grave emergencies facing the world.

Some time ago British and American commercial bodies in China appealed to their home governments, described conditions as similar to those preceding the Boxer rebellion and urged that there be interference to bring about greater safety. Some observers believe a foreign loan is essential, but there will be considerable hesitation on that score unless more safeguards can be thrown around expenditures than now appear available. The most populous country in the world, and one of the richest in natural resources, seems helpless when it comes to standing alone. It is true that some of its best ports are dominated by foreign concessions, but it also will be noted that these areas now are the only places where there is a semblance of law and order.

BUILDING A HOMELAND.

Sir Herbert Samuel, himself a Hebrew, Britain's high commissioner in Palestine, has just given us some reassuring reports of the progress that is being made in building a "Jewish homeland" in Palestine, where the problem is complicated by the fact that more than nine-tenths of the population are non-Jews. His optimistic views about the future of the Holy Land have general interest.

Sir Herbert gives assurance that the Zionist immigrants are of good quality, hard workers and not bolsheviists, although but a small proportion of them speak English. It is Jewish capital and enterprise that are building homes by the thousand, establishing agricultural colonies and starting factories in large numbers. The high commissioner says that public security is well maintained and he looks forward in the near future to a self-sustaining Palestine.

Even more reassuring is Sir Herbert's statement that "the Jews desire no position of privilege in Palestine unless it is that of rebuilding by their own efforts and sacrifices a land which has long been allowed to remain derelict; and they seek no share in the government beyond that to which they are entitled under the Constitution as citizens."

Quite an opposite picture of the situation was given a few weeks ago in a Jerusalem dispatch to the London Daily Mail which asserted that almost half of the newcomers seek to leave Palestine within a few months of their arrival, and that the United States consulate was flooded with thousands of applicants unable to obtain work and wishing to emigrate to America. Sir Herbert's words will do much to change the picture.

THE ESTEP INCIDENT.

Squandering the public money by office holders so seldom brings rebuke, much less a penalty, that it becomes a refreshing novelty when we see swift retribution follow misuse of government funds as in the case of President Harding's order for the immediate removal from office of Even W. Estep, superintendent of schools on the Navajo Indian reservation in New Mexico.

The facts in the case are such that every taxpayer—and everybody pays taxes directly or indirectly—can easily understand. Mr. Esten seemed to have an idea that he ought to spend all the government funds on hand before the close of the current year. He was not so much interested in how it was to be spent. The idea was to get rid of it, so that he sent out such an order to all his subordinates.

Not many bureaucrats in federal or state service would be so unwary as Mr. Estep in signing such an order and broadcasting it, but there are too many who would have pursued the same policy with more secrecy. Their game is to convince congress or state legislatures that annual appropriations are inadequate. Then, when larger sums of money are forthcoming by means of this expensive deception, more useless job holders are placed on the pay rolls. The real work they do is political and personal during campaigns, but the public pays. This may be good "politics," but the practice is poor business and dishonest.

President Harding sounded the economy note at the beginning of his administration and he means to apply it. About the only ones who will fail to approve of his policy will be a few bread and butter politicians. To them it is small matter that the United States is the only nation of consequence in the world that is paying its way and reducing the national debt.

WARD'S REINDICTMENT.

There will be satisfaction in the course that has eventually been taken in New York that has brought about the reindictment of Walter S. Ward for the murder of Clarence Peters about whose case there has been too much that made it appear as if great wealth were winning immunity which would have been impossible for other men. Ward will be tried in a little more than a month and will spend the intervening time in jail to which he has been committed by a supreme court justice. This is as it should be. Ward's first indictment was dismissed after he had been at large for some time on bail, but the circumstances of the case had about it so much that invited public comment and made it something of a scandal that the governor of the state took action to have it reopened.

Of course Ward is entitled to the presumption of innocence usual in the cases of all persons accused of crime, pending the action of a jury trial. He is entitled to no privileges except those belonging to any indicted person, but he is entitled to a fair trial and the suspension of judgment until the jury verdict is given. His plea has been that he killed Peters in self-defense, but whether it will be possible for him to sustain this cannot, naturally, be foretold now. Governor Smith can feel satisfaction that the result of his intervention brings about a distinct gain for justice, that leans neither for nor against Ward, but will proceed through its regular processes to a final clearing up of a most astonishing case.

EASY MYSTERY

"When this happened," explained Sergt. McGrew of the detective squad, "the Daltons had not been married very long. Her folks were pretty well to do and did not approve of the match. Young Dalton was getting only about $40 per week and did not have the roll or the job that he has now. They live in a small flat down on the south side and had to pinch every nickel.

"One morning Dalton came in to see me. He was badly worried and no wonder. The story was queer. He said that a burglar had pried open a window in their living room and after giving him and Mrs. Dalton each a small dose of a certain drug had stolen exactly $160. The money was his month's pay which he had received the day before in $20 bills and as it had been too late to put it in the bank he had placed it in the desk for the night. He was tearing his hair.

"I went out to the Daltons' house. Mrs. Dalton told me her story of the burglary and it was agreed with Daltons all the way, except that she said that she herself had seen the burglar as he was leaving the window. When I asked her how the burglar looked she became slightly muddled. First she said that he wore his hat pulled low on his forehead and his coat collar turned up over his ears, so she couldn't get a good slant at him. And right on top of that she said that he had light hair. When I asked her how she could have seen his hair when she was unable to see his face she broke down and cried and became hysterical.

I hunted around for clues. As far as I could discover there were no footprints on the grass outside of the window, but in the shrubbery I found an empty bottle. By the smell I could tell that the bottle had contained the same kind of drug that the burglar had given to the man and his wife. I looked at the label. The name of the drug store had been carefully erased.

"I then examined the window. There were two fresh scratches on the sill, but I found a heavy silver paper knife on the library table and this knife was slightly dented toward the tip. By placing the point of the knife under the window I found that the dents of the knife corresponded exactly with the scars on the window sill. Nothing else in the house had been touched except Dalton's $160.

Mrs. Dalton had several really fine pieces of silver on her buffet, wedding present and none of these was missing. So I was sure that the thief, whoever he was, had known where he was going to find the money and had come for nothing else.

"Anyway, by this time the whole thing looked like a pretty soft job for a burglar.

"Dalton saw me at noon, but I kept all of my ideas to myself and told him that I had found nothing worth talking about. And then I kept an eye on the house without either of them knowing it.

"Early in the afternoon I saw Mrs. Dalton come out and board a downtown street car. I followed her. She went into one of these boulevard shops and bought several small articles, such as kid gloves, silk hose, lingerie garments and so forth. When the clerk handed her the parcel she peeled off three $20 bills from a roll in her purse.

"At that moment I stepped up to her and said quietly, 'Pardon me, Mrs. Dalton, but I would like to speak to you for a minute.' She looked pretty sick and scared, but followed me out quietly.

"I called a cab and on the way back she blew up and cried and confessed to the whole affair as a put up job. Her excuse was that she never had any money to spend on herself any more. I gave her a little lecture on the way wives ought to be loyal to their husbands and all that sort of thing and she listened all right.

"When we got to the house her husband already was there. He had come home early to see if I had any clue yet. Well, when we got in sight of the door the woman was beginning to lose all her nerve again. She just wasn't up to the game that she had tried to put across. I guess that she had never counted on Dalton putting it in the hands of a dick.

"She opened the door of the room where her husband was waiting.

"'Dalton,' said I, pushing her before me into the room, 'here is your burglar and it's up to you to set the penalty.'

"He looked up and when he saw her his face was one grand map of variegated and seasick emotions. Then I shut the door and came away.—Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

William T. Hornaday, who is raising a permanent endowment fund for the preservation of the wild life of the world, is a zoologist of eminence, who has been director of the New York Zoological Park in the Bronx since 1896. Under his administration it has become one of the finest institutions of its kind in the world. Mr. Hornaday also has been an insistent and successful champion of state and federal laws creating game preserves and protesting wild things. To him quite as much as to any man in the country not in official life is due the saving of creatures that otherwise were doomed to extinction under the attacks of "sportsmen" and commercial interests. Prior to settling down in New York for a constructive and administrative task, Mr. Hornaday explored the world far and wide, as a collector for museums and as an expert in the employ of the nation.

Stories That Recall Others

Plan of Operation Fails

A young man entered the office of a loan company and asked to borrow $37.50. When asked what security he could give he said:

"I haven't any now, but I'll have some as soon as I get the $37.50," he replied.

When asked what he wished to do with the money, he said:

"Want to buy an automobile."

"Cars are getting cheap," said the agent, "but you can't get one for $37.50, can you?"

"Nope," said the young man, "but I've got $12.50, and with the $37.50 I get from you I'll have $50, and that'll be my first payment, see," he said cheerfully.

"But what security will we have," continued the agent, "if you buy the car on payments?"

"Why, I'll give you a mortgage on the car as soon as I get it," he said.

"That would only be a second mortgage," said the agent, "as the automobile company will hold a chattel mortgage on the automobile until it is paid for."

"Well, I didn't know that," said the youth. "I guess I'm out o' luck."

Wives of Famous Men

Margaret Leatham, Wife of John Bright.

In direct contrast with the stormy waters of his political career, the domestic sea of John Bright, English statesman and politician, was marked by calm. Margaret Leatham, Bright's second wife, came into his life when he had been a widower for more than six years. A man of domestic inclinations, Bright found in Miss Leatham the ideal companion for his heart and home.

Charming, good to look at, tactful and domestically accomplished, Miss Leatham seems, indeed, to have possessed most of the qualities necessary for a statesman's wife. She helped him in many ways, not satisfied merely to keep his home attractive, but feeling it her duty and pleasure to aid him so far as possible in the arrangement of his appointments, the copying of his addresses and the hundred and one things that fill a political life.

Mrs. Bright was loyal to the extreme, and stuck by her husband in the days of his political adversity It was she, in fact, who made life bearable for him when his enemies were doing their best to ruin him. His career took him away from home often, but there was always time for correspondence, and always love and affection that passed between them.

For nearly a third of a century, 30 years to be exact, they were spared to each other, but in 1878 Mrs. Bright die dleaving a broken and desolated man. To the world he was at the height of his career, but to him life held but little without Margaret, and although he worked as earnestly as before, his efforts lacked the fire that his wife had inspired within him.

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

Now Recommends Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Washington, D.C.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved me from an operation which a physician said I would have to have for a very bad case of female trouble. My system was all run-down for two years after my little girl was born. Then I read of your wonderful medicine and decided to try it. I could hardly drag one foot after the other, and after taking six bottles of the Vegetable Compound I felt like a new woman. I now do all my housework, also washing and ironing, and do not know what real trouble is. My health is fine, and I weigh 140 pounds. When I started taking it I weighed 97 pounds. I gladly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to any one who is suffering from female trouble or is run down. You may use this testimonial for I am only too glad to let suffering women know what the Vegetable Compound did for me."—Mrs. IDA HEWITT, 1629 Penna. Ave. S.E., Washington, D.C.

Such letters from women in every section of this country prove beyond question the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

Athos, Greece's Eveless Peninsula.

"The Athos peninsula in Greece, to which the patriarch of Constantinople, head of the Greek church, has retired because of pressure from the Turkish government, is one of the queerest communities and has one of the strangest governments in the world," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"On the 200 odd square miles of this rough peninsula which lacks little of being an island, it has been unlawful since 1045 for a woman to set foot. Moreover, so far is sex discrimination extended that female domestic animals are barred. Even the eggs and milk that the good monks of Athos eat and drink must come, therefore, from farms safely across the border of the strange monastic republic that Athos harbors.

"The entire peninsula is given up to monasteries of which there are 20, mostly on the slopes or cliffs of Mt. Athos, the 6,350 foot promontory that rises near the outer end of the headland. There are one or more monasteries for each of the countries, or in some cases the communities that accept the Greek rite—Greece, Russia, Serbia, Bulgaria, Anatolia, Constantinople and many others. The religious communities of Mt. Athos were the pampered children of Byzantium in its later days, and great wealth was showered on them by the emperors, a number of whom sojourned there. The monasteries are today one of the richest repositories of the illuminated manuscripts, statues, paintings, mosaics and other works of art produced in the heyday of that gilded Eastern Rome.'

"The monks of Mt. Athos have traditions of the beginnings of their establishments as early as the days of Constantine the Great, about 300 A. D. But history tells of the foundation of the earliest of the present monasteries, that of Lavra, in 969. The latest was established in 1545, a century after the fall of Byzantium.

"Athos is rough and heavily wooded, with many coves and identations, but with few landing places. The monasteries are in every conceivable situation: some on gentle slopes near the sea, some on lofty crags overhanging the beating surf and others inland on shoulders of the Sacred Mountain. All consist of walled spaces in which are churches, chapels, dwelling houses or dormitories, guest abodes, libraries and in the case of the establishments under a non-individualistic regime, refectories. The east has always been turbulent, and Mt. Athos knows its cast; so all the enclosures are fortified. Around the monasteries are olive groves, vineyards and other fruit plantations, worked by the monks and the lay brothers who together make up practically the whole population of this strange region.

"The government of Mt. Athos has been republican in form for more than 850 years—since 1060, six years before the Norman conquered England. Each monastery elects a representative who is sent to the centrally situated village of Karyes, which is the capital. There the delegate occupies a dwelling owned by his abbey and constituting a sort of 'embassy' building. The 20 representatives sit as the Most Blessed Assembly of the Sacred Mount, a parliament more venerable than that of London, if that body be dated from the recognition of the elective principle. The executive of Mt. Athos is a body of five monks chosen by the monasteries voting in groups of four. Four of these executives each keeps in his custody a quarter of the great seal of the 'republic' and the fifth, the secretary, carries a handle which locks the fragments properly together.

"Until the Balkan wars which preceded the World war, Mt. Athos was in Turkish territory. But ever since the advent of the Turks in Europe, the community has been privileged. It submitted to the Sultan Murad II. even before the fall of Byzantium, and was dealt with leniently, though required to pay tribute. The monasteries of Athos for a long time had the only bells permitted to ring in the whole Turkish empire, for bells are an abomination to the Moslem. But the use of bells was limited by the Turks, and the monks fell into the habit of pounding a suspended board instead. In many of the Mt. Athos monasteries it is still the dull thumps and whacks of such a bell-substitute that call the monks to rise in the mornings and to gather for religious services."

JUDGE FINDS FOR DEFENDANT IN CORTICELLI - SLOSBERG CASE

Judgement for the defendants has been handed down by Judge Hinman of the superior court in a memorandum of decision in the case of Corticelli Silk Co., vs. Jacob R. Slosberg et. al. of this city which was filed Monday with the clerk of the court. The action was brought by the Corticelli Silk Company as the result of a controversy over the sale of a part of the silk concern's land off North street near the old Norwich and Worcester car shop.

The plaintiffs in the action claimed that the defendants were desirous of purchasing a strip of vacant land between the plaintiff's mill and land owned by the defendants. On or about April 5, 1923 the plaintiffs sold to the defendants a part of the land. After the deed had been passed the plaintiffs discovered that the dimensions of the boundary line of the lot on the river was stated to be 75 feet instead of 40 feet so that the description of the deed included a portion of the plaintiffs' mill building.

They claim that they did not intend to sell the land as described in the deed and that they had requested the defendants to correct the mistake in the dimensions and reform the deed so that the land conveyed would not include part of the land on which their mill building stood. The plaintiffs then sought relief through the superior court, Judge Hinman upholding the defendants.

SKIDDING CAR CRASHES THROUGH WOODEN FENSE

Mr. and Mrs. Amos Ladue of Fall River, Mass., Mrs. George Lafleur and two small children, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Lemieux of Main street, Baltic, narrowly escaped death Saturday evening when the Chevrolet touring car in which they were riding caught in the trolley track just above the Barrel turn, a quarter of a mile below Baltic, and skidded across the road.

Mr. Ladue who was driving the machine was unable to hold the car when the skid started owing to the wet roadbed, and it shot across the road, crashed through the heavy planks of the fence, ripping up two large posts, and came to a stop with the front wheels over the edge of the 60 foot embankment that falls to the Shetucket river.

The only thing that saved the car and its occupants from being hurled down the embankment covered with sharp pointed rocks and boulders was a heavy piece of plank that had lodged between the rear fender and rear wheel, causing the motor to stall.

Word that an automobile had gone over the embankment into the Shetucket spread quickly to Baltic and within a short time over a hundred automobiles lined the highway traffic entirely. Crews operating the trolleys found it hard to pass through.

The people in the Ladue car fortunately remained in the car until a truck arrived from the Adams garage and held the car with ropes. The people were then able to leave the car which threatened to slide down the embankment at any minute, sections of the dirt bank breaking off rapidly under the weight of the car.

Mr. and Mrs. Ladue were visiting in Baltic and were out for a pleasure trip when the accident happened. The Chevrolet car was practically new, having been run only 1500 miles.

The car track where the accident happened is considered dangerous by motorists. The rails of the track are out of line with the roadbed, and during the evening, Saturday, two other cars had been caught at the same point, one of the cars, a Buick, losing one rear wheel.

The extent of the damage to the Ladue car was a jammed fender, broken bumper, broken radiator, and cracked motor base. Mr. Ladue reported the accident to officer McGuire and said that he was proceeding at a moderate speed when the skid started.

MAKES EARNEST APPEAL FOR WINDHAM HOUSE

The following appeal for contributions for Windham House at Connecticut college is made by an interested supporter of the movement:

One of the contributions to the fund of Windham House is thirty-five hundred ($3500) by Mrs. Rienzi Robinson; President of the Windham County Association of Connecticut College for Women, for a suite of rooms—two bed rooms connected with a study, as a memorial to Dr. Rienzi Robinson.

One other suite has been given by Mrs Harriet Turtellotte. The committee desire four extra suites.

Who will give the other two in memory of some dear ones who have helped to make Windham County what it is?

"He who gives to our educational institution gives twice."

For girls eager for an education such as can be given them at Connecticut College are waiting for dormitory room.

The joy of it!

Are there not enough real sons and daughters in Windham County to build Windham House? Mrs. Robinson is only an adopted daughter. If she can find time and money for this noble purpose surely the real daughters should be interested. Let's build Windham House straightway.

Tan, Red or Freckled Skin Is Easily Shed

To free your summer-soiled skin of its muddiness, freckles, blotches or tan, the best thing to do is to free yourself of the skin itself. This is easily accomplished by the use of ordinary mercolized wax, which of course can be had at any drug store. Use at night as you use cold cream, washing it off in the morning. Immediately the offending surface skin begins to come off in powder-like particles. Gradually the entire outer scarf skin is absorbed, without the least harm or inconvenience. The second layer of skin now in evidence presents a spotless whiteness and sparkling beauty obtainable in no other way. One ounce of mercolised wax usually is sufficient to completely renovate a bad complexion.

Walsh of Bridgeport, and the musical part of the mass was in charge of Henry LaFontaine.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Mrs. Marinda C. Butler Robinson has pledged $3500, it is learned, for a suite of rooms at Windham House, the dormitory to be erected at Connecticut college with funds raised in Windham county, the suite to be in memory of Mrs. Robinson's husband, Dr. Rienzi Robinson of Danielson.

The suite is to consist of two rooms connected with a study, for two girls. Funds for a similar suite have been pledged from another source and it is the desire of the committee to have four such suites.

Mrs. Robinson has been a very active worker for several years in raising the fund for Windham House and the leader in the work done in this county. The success of the campaign to date has been due in large measure to Mrs. Robinson's constant effort and enthusiasm for the cause, in which she is so anxious that Windham county people become interested, that a suitable monument to the people of the county be included in the upbuilding what promises to be a great educational institution for women, having already proved its worth and grown to the point where its facilities are not sufficient to care for more than 300 girls who desire admittance but find the registration so large they are unable to be received. Increased dormitory space such as Windham House would provide would help eliminate this check on the growth of the college.

At the present Mrs. Robinson is at a sanitarium at Melrose, Mass., recovering from a nervous breakdown caused by the sudden deaths of friends within a month of each other. She is slowly recovering, but has been forbidden to interest herself in outside activity for a period of at least six months, so is unable just now to take an active part in the Windham House fund movement. Mrs. Robinson at the present time is furnishing a room at the sanitarium in Melrose in memory of Dr. Robinson, who used to send patients to the institution.

In the town court Monday morning, it was impressed upon Joseph Barbarz, who has a farm in what is known as the Break Neck Hill section of Killingly, that moonshine manufacturing as an industry is frowned upon by the law and that practice of it, no matter how profitable is also high-expensive if one gets caught.

Barbarz's place was raided by state police from the local barracks in a fruitful effort to establish that he was engaged in moonshining. They found an 8-gallon still running full blast and about 200 gallons of mash. The still was seized and the mash destroyed. Barbarz being placed under arrest.

In court Monday he was sentenced to serve 30 days in jail on one of the counts filed against him and to pay a fine of $150 and costs, a total bf $185, on another count. Barbarz was charged with a sale and with keeping with intent to sell. The execution of the jail sentence was suspended and Barbarz paid the fine and costs assessed against him. He admitted to the state police that he had been manufacturing illicit liquor for some time and that he had made a sale of 5 gallons of his product.

Three men charged with having been intoxicated also were presented at Monday morning's session of the court. Two of the men received jail sentences and the other paid a fine and costs.

Mention in this column that Thomas Bradford is formulating plans for placing of a third ticket—a citizens' ticket—in the field for the annual town election in October has stirred the imagination of those charged with the duty of piloting the republican and democratic organizations in town. In this year of political upsets the country over, those charged with the duty of seeing that all fares well with any political organization in which they are interested will pay special attention to nominations that as strong as possible party tickets may be offered voters. It is for this reason that the republican and democratic caucuses may go a long way toward eliminating possible strength in the citizens' party in Killingly this year or give the third party a real fighting chance by naming weak candidates.

While making a hurry trip between Woonsocket and Wauregan, Monday, Vald Rais of Woonsocket ran into a chain of unfortunate experiences. He came into this territory to bring parts for a car being overhauled at a garage in Wauregan and left in such a hurry that he neglected to put his registration and operator's licenses in his pocket. That in itself might not have proved so serious if it were not for the fact that something went wrong with the steering gear of his car and caused it to be plunged into a tree and wrecked, on the South Killingly road. A state police officer who happened along and checked up the accident learned that the driver was without his registration and operator's license and ordered him into court. At a special session of the town court, Monday afternoon, with Deputy Judge Charles E. Francis presiding, a fine of $3 and costs on each count was imposed, and Rais paid.

PUTNAM

Resumption of Wednesday evening concerts and dancing in the square, under the auspices of the Putnam Chamber of Commerce, is scheduled for August. There are to be five of these concerts during the coming month, the first of them tomorrow (Wednesday) evening when the North Grosvenordale band will play.

As was done last year, the ameisite paving in the square will be given a meal treatment to make it suitable for dancing. The concerts and the dancing proved very popular last year and there is every confidence that this will again be the case during the next month. Wednesday evening of next week music will be by the Manhasset band, Wauregan band will play the following week, St. James' band of Danielson the week following, while the final concert of the season—on the last Wednesday evening in August—will be by North Grosvenordale band. The concerts will start each Wednesday evening at 8.30 o'clock.

Armand Bardier has been ordered to appear in the city court Wednesday morning, to answer to a charge that he was driving recklessly when his car figured, Saturday afternoon, in a crash with a machine owned by R. M. Smith of New London, the accident happening at the four corners near the Children's home, in the Sawyer district of this town. Mr. Bardier was traveling along the state highway while the Smith machine was coming down the road that cuts across the state highway and leads toward Putnam Heights. Mr. Bardier has employed counsel to protect his interests and insists that he was not driving recklessly when the accident happened.

There was no session of the city court Monday morning, following a week-end during which there were no arrests in direct contrast to two preceding Mondays that found a docket crowded with business. A lone and venerable lodger spent Sunday night in the police station and was given his liberty Monday morning. He said his name was James Smith and he appeared to be nearly 75 years of age. He told the police that he had been working in Pomfret, when he tired of taking up his pay in cider and quit the job. He has no home and applied at the station for a night's lodging.

Complaint has been made that dogs are running loose in the Grove street section of the city and, among other things, are tearing up gardens and making a nuisance of themselves generally. At present Putnam is without a successor to Captain William Jarvis as dog warden. It is understood that a new appointment will be made in the immediate future and action taken against owners of dogs that are running loose in this city and in nearby territory.

Attorney Edward A. Thurston, 52, who died in a hospital at Fall River, Sunday, was a brother of Radph E. Thurston, in charge of the business of the People's Light and Power company of this city. Attorney Thurston was one of the most prominent members of the Massachusetts bar and was chairman of the republican state central committee for Massachusetts. He had appeared as counsel in leading cases in his home state. His death followed a surgical operation.

Secretary A. F. Alston of the Chamber of Commerce said Monday that it is probable that the pageant depicting the development of the automobile will not be held until the business men of the city have their fall opening day, in September. In the meantime the work of obtaining automobiles from those of the earliest days of motor transportation down to the present marvels of speed and luxury goes steadily on.

Cars that are expected to be in line will date back to the coming of the first automobiles to Putnam a score of years ago and through the successive years to the present time. Mr. Ralston will be pleased to get in touch with people who have old cars or know of those who have them and would agree to have them in line. The pageant also will include an ancient stage coach and generally discarded types of horse-drawn vehicles.

A new and final rush northward for the closing month of the summer vacation season is in full swing and will reach its peak tonight and tomorrow night, when many sections of the State of Maine and Bar Harbor expresses go through this city en route to vacation points in Maine. These trains have been more popular than ever during the present season. They cared for a heavy rush at the opening of July, and it is not unlikely that the amount of business done then will be duplicated or surpassed as those who are to spend August in the northern playground make their trips.

Registrars Herman C. Carver and George Potvin will meet Friday of this week to do the first of the year's work on revising the list of voters of the town of Putnam. Another such meeting will be held Friday of next week. Each year a careful revision of the voting lists are made that they may be brought up to date. Some names are removed, due to deaths or removals from Putnam or for other reasons and new names added, as provided by law. Later the registrars will hold sessions to receive applications of those who wish to be made voters in time for the annual town election on the first Monday in October.

Out on Grove street forms are being built for the foundation of the Tourtellotte Memorial chapel to be erected at Grove street cemetery. The structure is to occupy a location at the westerly side of the cemetery property. Several months will be required for the construction of the building.

The series of camp meetings held at East Douglas have come to a close for the year. During the time services were being held many were in attendance from Putnam and other towns in this vicinity. There was the usual great amount of interest in the gatherings.

Mrs. Joseph Clark Hoppin has issued invitations for a benefit whist in the interest of the fund for the Nurses' Home fund of the Day Kimball hospital to be held at Courtlands, her beautiful estate in Pomfret.

Progress is being made on rebuilding the highway between this city and Pomfret and on the Rhode Island side of the Chepachet route from this city to Providence. The extensive operations that are underway and to be completed in the fall interfere with traffic just now, but will give a splendid highway when completed in the fall.

At St. Mary's church Monday morning Miss Bernice Larrow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Larrow of this city, and Armand Billings of Dayville were united in marriage.

Former employes of the Manhasset Manufacturing company are rounding out thirteen weeks of the strike period today. Their plans are practically complete for the series of out door mass meetings to be held in the interest of their cause.

Rev. and Mrs. John M. Hay left Monday for a vacation to be spent in Quebec and at other points in Canada. Rev. Mr. Hay is the minister in charge of St. Philip's church.

WESTERLY

This (Tuesday) evening at 7.30 in the council chamber of the Westerly town hall will be held the open meeting of the council voted to be held some time in July, at the meeting of July 2, when Harry R. Milner came before it to protest about the condition of the highways. At its regular July meeting the council also voted to hold a special council meeting Wednesday of the following week, that the council might form some constructive programme to present to the citizens at the time the open meeting should be held, which was originally set for the middle of July. The special council session was held Wednesday evening, July 11th, and quite a few of the citizens of Westerly, understanding that this was the date set for the open meeting, were present. When told that the meeting was a special one and not the open meeting, many of them left, as there would be no general hearing on the highway matters. There has always been a great deal of misunderstanding not only among the citizens of the town, but even among the various commissions, such as the water commission, the sewage commission and the town council itself, relative to what the powers granted to the Westerly highway commission are. To make this clear the act as passed by the Rhode Island legislature which created the highway commission in 1916 is printed in substance.

At the time the sewage pipes were laid on High street and the rails of the electric car line to Watch Hill were taken up for the purpose, the merchants and general public were put to more than an average inconvenience, which, it was said at the time, was due to a misunderstanding of the provinces in which various town commissions operated. Even when the rails were relaid the filling along the rails was of such a nature that the loose stones were thrown against the plate glass windows and many were broken.

It is enacted by the general assembly as follows:

Section 1. There shall be a board of highway commissioners for the town of Westerly of three members, who shall be qualified electors of said town, and who shall not hold any other state or town office. At the annual election of officers for said town to be held on the first Tuesday in June, A. D. 1915, the electors of said town qualified to vote for town officers shall elect three such commissioners, one to hold office for the term of one year, one to hold office for the term of two years, and one to hold office for the term of three years, from the date of their said election. At the annual election of officers for said town to be held on the first Tuesday in June A. D. 1917, and at such annual election in each year thereafter, the electors of said town qualified to vote for town officers, shall elect a highway commissioner to succeed the commissioner whose term shall have expired and to hold office for the term of three years from the date of his election. Any vacancy that shall arise in the membership of said board by reason of failure to elect a commissioner at any annual election of town officers, or from any other cause whatsoever, shall be filled by the town council of said town by the election of a highway commissioner to hold office until the next annual election of town officers, when a commissioner shall be elected for the unexpired term by the electors of said town qualified to vote for town officers.

Section 2. Said board of highway commissioners shall have full and exclusive control, management and care of the streets, highways, sidewalks and bridges which are not under the control of the state board of public roads for and within the town of Westerly in all matters relating to the construction, improvement, maintenance and repair thereof, and from and after the first Tuesday in June, A. D. 1916, said board shall have and exercise all the powers and authority which is vested in or conferred upon the town of Westerly and the town council thereof by Chapter 52 of the general laws, entitled "Of laying out and making making highways and driftways," and Chapter 53 of the general laws, entitled "Of repairing highways and bridges," and by all acts in amendment thereof and in addition thereto, and also by provisions of any and all other general and special laws concerning the layout, alteration, repair, improvement, construction, maintenance, and discontinuance of streets, highways, sidewalks and bridges, within and for said town.

Section 3. It shall be the duty of said board of commissioners:

(a) To inspect or cause to be inspected from time to time, the streets, highways, sidewalks and bridges kept and maintained by the town of Westerly, for the purpose of maintaining and keeping the same in good repair and safe for travel, and to promptly remove any obstructions and repair any defects in the same whatever funds are available for such purpose;

(b) To keep a full and complete record of all its official proceedings, and a detailed account of its expenditures, contracts made, and obligations incurred, so that it may be possible to determine the cost of new construction work apart from the cost of improvement, maintenance and repairs;

(c) To make a report to the annual financial town meeting each year showing the work performed during the year preceeding, cost of the same, and containing such recommendations as the board may deem advisable in regard to the extension and improvement of the highway system in said town;

(d) To keep its records and accounts so that they may be conveniently inspected by the members of the town council of said town at any time.

Edgar Tobin, rector of Christ Episcopal church. The other members of the committee are Mrs. Orlando Smith, Jr., Mrs. Harold F. Doyle, Mrs. Jennie Nichols, Miss Grant, Miss H. Louise Ayres, Miss Hose Bannon, Mrs. Willard and Mrs. C. Grant Savage.

The Interstate Amateur Baseball League game originally scheduled on the Clark Thread Mill diamond for Saturday, July 28, between the Clark and Shannock team and which was to be played Sunday, the 29th, that the team might go on the William Clark mill outing, was again postponed Sunday, due to threatened bad weather.

Four prominent residents have been announced as the leaders of the Westerly-Pawcatuck forces in the $250,000 hospital campaign for Westerly and neighboring towns. They are: Arthur M. Cottrell, Mrs. Samuel H. Davis, Mrs. Thomas Perry and Mrs. Frank A. Sherman, who are to act as "commanders" in charge of the thirty teams of workers, or over 300 people, in Westerly and Pawcatuck.

Mr. Cottrell is vice president of C. B. Cottrell & Sons company, manufacturers of printing presses, and was prominent in the class of '97 of Brown niversity.

Mrs. Davis, whose husband is a member of the house of representatives, is a past state regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Mrs. Perry was prominent in war-time community activities and is a vice president of the Visiting Nurse Association of Westerly. Mr. Perry is vice president and trust officer of the Washington Trust company.

Mrs. Sherman was formerly president of the Visiting Nurse association and is now a member of its board of directors. Mr. Sherman is treasurer of the R. A. Sherman & Sons Company, builders.

Mr. Cottrell will have charge of the appointment and guidance of the fifteen man team captains in Westerly and Pawcatuck, each of whom is to recruit a team of ten members. Mr. Cottrell's division will therefore include about 165 men.

A like number of women will form the other branch of the Westerly-Pawcatuck teams under the leadership of the three women commanders, each of whom will be responsible for five teams. This will bring the Westerly-Pawcatuck forces up to about 330 men and women, organized in thirty teams.

There are to be twenty-one other teams, from Watch Hill, Stonington and other smaller communities within the six townships of Westerly, Stonington, North Stonington, Hopkinton, Richmond and Charlestown.

In addition to the fifty-one teams of workers, there is to be an executive committee of over fifty representative men and women, which committee has been nearly completed and is to be announced shortly.

Soon after 3.15 Monday morning fire alarm Box 56, Dixon House square, was rung in by Sergeant of Police Donald Ferguson for an automobile fire in the alleyway between the Rhode Island hotel and the Rhode Island garage. In a manner unexplained, a fire started in the nearly new Dodge touring car, P1061, of Patsy Gabriele of 73 Oak street. When the fire started the owned awakened Ernest Mellow, the night man at the garage, who alone attempted to put out the blaze with fire extinguishers, which resulted in keeping the flames down so that when the fire apparatus arrived the chemical tank made short work of the job. At the time the blaze was at its heighth the hose pipe of the gas monitor was burned and charred near the delivery end.

James McKenna, a plumber in the employ of Robert Drysdale, who resides at the corner of Cedar and Mechanic streets, was struck by an automobile Saturday evening just before 6 o'clock, near the plant of the Doughty Co. Mr. McKenna suffered bad cuts and bruises on his leg and a sprained back. John Warwick's automobile was on the track of the Groton and Stonington trolley and headed up Mechanic street, when the electric car in charge of Motorman Clifford Cawfey came up the street. The whistle was blown and brakes applied but the electric car struck the automobile with such force that it was pushed a distance of 75 feet struck McKenna and overturned on the sidewalk Frank Parker, who was seated in the automobile, escaped injury.

At the parsonage of Grace Methodist church, aturday afternoon, the pastor, Rev. M. S. Stocking, married Mrs. Dorothy May Warner, who was born in Seymour, the daughter of Mr and Mrs. Fred D. Burnham, and Edward Douglas Williams, born in Middletown, the son of the late Herman H. Williams and Laura J. Shipman Williams of Hazardville, Conn. The bride was attended by her sister, Hilda Burnham. Mr. Williams, who is employed as a road builder near Westerly, resides at Hinsdale, N. H., and was attended by Roscoe S. Lewis, a companion roadbuilder. Following completion of road work here Mr. and Mrs. Williams will make their residence at Hinsdale, N. H.

Mr. and Mrs. Erle F. Barker and daughter, Isabell of Pottstown, Pa., are guests of Mr. Barker's father, Charles B. Barker.

FORD OWNERS
YOU NEED NEVER ADJUST YOUR FORD BANDS AGAIN
Not If You Equip Your Brake and Reverse With The Cooper "Automatic" Transmission Band Adjuster
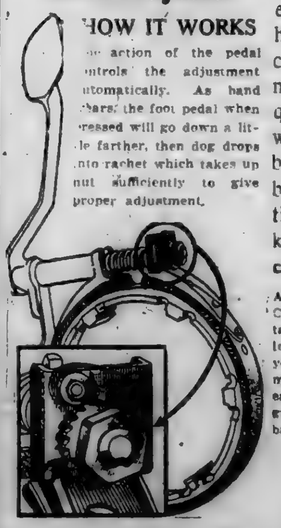
HOW IT WORKS
The action of the pedal controls the adjustment automatically. As hand clears, the foot pedal when pressed will go down a little farther, then dog drops into ratchet which takes up nut sufficiently to give proper adjustment.


Cooper Automatic Adjusters work as perfectly on the hills and highways as on city streets. Don't take unnecessary risks. You need quick, instantaneous stops wherever you are. Your brakes and reverse should be properly adjusted at all times. This little device keeps them right automatically.
As the brake or reverse wears the Cooper Automatic Adjuster will take them up—exactly right—never too tight—never too loose. And you need never remove the transmissions cover during the life of each set of linings. That mussy, greasy, frequent job of adjusting bands is done away with forever.
Easily Installed by Anyone In a Few Minutes.
PRICE $2.00 SET.
SOLD BY OVER 75 CONNECTICUT DEALERS.
Fully protected by Patent applications.

POETRY

FOR A WORD

How shall you ever know the adoration
I spread like samite cloths beneath your feet?
How shall you guess the brooding desolation
Learned from your eyes so passionless and sweet?

There must be some word like the star that pauses
In summer's rose transparency of dusk,
Or like the bird-note heard through chimber's gauzes
Between the hour of dew, the hour of musk.

There must be some one word that is more tender
Than any word my lips have ever learned
Without which I can never, never render
In speech the love your cool, sweet love has earned.

You know as none my heart's forlorn distresses,
Its passionate tides, its daily tint and stress;
Why must there be within obscure recesses
This tenderness of love you can not know?

—William Alexander Percy, in Yale Review.

Holidays

The hollest of all holidays are those
Kept by ourselves in silence and apart;
The secret anniversaries of the heart.
When the full river of feeling overflows;
The happy days unclouded to their close;
The sudden joys that out of darkness start
As flames from ashes, swift desires that dart
Like swallows singing down each wind that blows!
White as the gleam of a receding sail,
White as a cloud that floats and fades in air,
White as the whitest lily on a stream,
These tender memories are: a fairy tale
Of some enchanted land we know not where,
But lovely as a landscape in a dream.
—Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

WOMAN COMMITS SUICIDE BY SLASHING THROAT AT MONTVILLE

Mrs. Peda Adams, 48, of Jersey St., Ansonia, committed suicide Monday afternoon by slashing her throat with a razor in a field near the home of her aunt, Mrs. Belnack, in the Pequot section of Montville where she was visiting. Mrs. Adams came to Montville last Thursday, accompanied by her husband, for a visit with her aunt, Mrs. Belnack. Mr. Adams returned to Ansonia Saturday and was to have called at Montville Monday afternoon to accompany his wife back to Ansonia. It is said that Mrs. Adams has been in a highly nervous state of late and that she was attended by a physician Saturday.

About two o'clock Monday afternoon Mrs. Belnack missed her from the house and started out to search for her. She went to the homes of several neighbors but did not find trace of her neice. Then she went to a neighbor's home about a quarter of a mile away and while returning walked through a field on the brow of the hill near her home. About 500 feet from the house Mrs. Belnack found Mrs. Adams lying face down in a pool of blood.

Dr. J. J. Donohue of Montville was hastily summoned. This was at four o'clock and ten minutes later he was on the scene. He found that the woman had been dead about an hour and a half. In her right hand was an open razor. Both jugular veins were completely severed as was also her windpipe. Mrs. Adams was the mother of five children.

MAKING PROREESS ON ASSESSORS' TAX MAP

Equitable taxation, solicitations, home trade, the Maplewood extension, the West Main street turnout and hospital needs are the subjects touched by the July membership letter of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce. The letter, which has been mailed out to the chamber members by Secretary John J. O'Rourke, follows:

Fine progress has been made by Chandler and Palmer in the making of the tax map for the use of the assessors. The movement to provide a map for a fair and equitable system of real estate assessments should continue until the map is completed. $6,000 was appropriated at the last town meeting for this purpose and the town will get full value for the work accomplished this year.

The following quotation is taken from the 1920 Report of the State Tax Commissioner:—"Previous reports of the Tax Commissioner have urged the use of tax maps by the assessors. Some of the larger cities and more progressive towns have provided them for the use of their assessors. The benefits resulting from the use of a tax map far out-shadow the initial cost. The assessors can easily compare the valuation put upon a particular piece of property with that of similar property in the town. A disgruntled property owner may be quickly satisfied if he sees by the map that his own property is not being assessed at a proportionately higher figure than that of his neighbor. The facilities for the rapid comparison of values of similar property are of great assistance to the assessors in equalizing the grand list and in the smoothing out of inequalities."

This quotation speaks volumes in favor of the map. It is impossible for assessors in this or any other town in Connecticut or elsewhere, to provide an equitable basis for a fair assessment of real estate values without the aid of the map.

The following cities and towns in Connecticut make use of real estate assessment maps in levying taxes:—Ansonia, Bridgeport, Fairfield, Hartford, Harwinton, Meriden, Milford, Naugatuck, New Britain, New Haven, New London, Saybrook, Simsbury, Torrington, Union, West Hartford, Wethersfield, Watertown.

Solicitations

One of the functions of a modern Chamber of Commerce is to protect the general public from spurious solicitations. Within the past month cases of questionable solicitations for magazines, and household appliances, have been investigated and found to be very questionable if not entirely bogus. The public should be extremely careful about giving any money to strangers from out-of-town. Better to be safe than sorry. The Chamber issues a card to all solicitors indicating that they have been investigated and found to be O. K. This card does not endorse any solicitation scheme; it does provide a means for assurance to the public that the solicitations are duly authorized or that they are dependable.

Trade at Home

It is easy in these days of the automobile to go up another city and buy goods which might well be bought at home.

We expect, and rightly so, that our merchants keep abreast of modern merchandising methors. That is their responsibility to the public. And the local public has a responsibility to the local merchant.

Norwich is a community of persons living together for a common good. The keynote of our community's prosperity is cooperation. Norwich is good enough for 30,000 people in which to live and labor. It is good enough also to work for its general prosperity. Loyalty to Norwich whether by manufacturer, merchant, or professional man, as well as the general public is not only commendable, but absolutely necessary for the growth and prosperity of the city which is our home. Be true to Norwich and she will be loyal to you.

At the request of the Willimantic Chamber of Commerce our organization will be represented at a conference with Putnam, Rockville, Willimantic and Norwich for a proposed combined outing at the Storr's College for members and friends, which is contemplated for Thursday, August 16th.

This should prove an enjoyable affair and provide a day's pleasure with members of the Chambers of Commerce of adjoining cities. Full details will be sent to our members when they are completed.

Maplewood Extension

President L. S. Storrs of the Connecticut Street Railway Company conferred in Norwich on July 5th with a committee of the Chamber regarding the proposed extension of the car line to the entrance of Maplewood cemetery. The need for this extension was fully explained to Mr. Storrs who listened attentively to the arguments set forth by various members of the Chamber's committee.

While Mr. Storrs expressed a favorable inclination to grant the request of the committee, he reminded them that the company was already spending $27,000 on the Laurel Hill route. This might prove a deterring factor for accomplishing the work this year.

The officials of the company are, however, confronted with legal requirements, one of which is that no extension of car service is permissable except through legislative enactment. He did promise to have the legal department of the company make a careful study of the legal requirements pertaining to this particular matter and if found feasible would favorably report the extension to the Board of Directors of the company for action.

West Main Street Turnout

The Connecticut Company petitioned for a turnout on the West Side trolley line and a hearing was granted upon the petition by the Court of Common Council, Monday, July 2nd.

The Secretary was instructed by the Directors to have representatives of the Chamber present to join with others in favor of granting the petition. After hearing several citizens, all of whom spoke in favor, the Council granted the petition for the turnout.

According to local officials of the Company the proposed turnout on the West Side will greatly facilitate and shorten the running time of cars on this route on days when public attractions are held at the Fairgrounds.

Hospital Needs

Several conferences have been held in the Chamber's office to consider the needs of the Backus Hospital. These meetings have been attended by various members of the Executive Committee of the hospital and business men of the community.

It must be remembered that our hospital exists through the generosity of our public spirited citizens of bygone years. It is the one humane institution that is absolutely necessary in a community the size of ours. During the past six years $25,000 has been taken from the invested funds to meet the increased maintenance expenses of the hospital.

PRESIDENT USES PRESS TO DISSEMINATE HIS VIEWS ON U. S. FOREIGN RELATIONS

Speech Which Was to Have Been Delivered in San Francisco Last Night Was Given to the Press for Publication—Urges American Support of the Permanent Court of International Justice—Believes It Would be a Step in the Right Direction for the Avoidance of War—Hopes American Commission Now in Mexico City Will Achieve "Definite and Favorable Results"—Declares International Good Faith Forbids Any Sort of Sanction of the Bolshevist Policy.

Presidential Headquarters, Palace Hotel, San Francisco, July 31.—(By The A. P.)—Secretary George B. Christian made public tonight the address President Harding was to have delivered in San Francisco this evening at the Civic Auditorium on the accomplishments of the administration in the international field.

Secretary Christian's statement announcing the President's decision from his sickbed to release the address is as follows:

"The President before leaving Washington and during his journey to Alaska prepared speeches dealing with the fundamental questions of policy and performance on the part of the administration. Most of these have been delivered. One was prepared to be delivered in San Francisco, Tuesday, July 31, and advance copies of this, like others, were furnished the press, awaiting release upon delivery.

"The San Francisco speech was to deal with foreign relations, and was a carefully considered and carefully prepared document. But for his illness, the President would have delivered the speech according to schedule; but his being prevented he now feels that it should go to the public through the medium of the press and for the information and consideration of the people. Therefore, he has directed that the speech be released."

In his address President Harding presented the view of his administration on pending international justice as the next major step to be taken.

"With becoming dignity we have maintained our rights; we have yielded willingly to the rights of others, and we dwell in cherished and unthreatened peace," he declared after enumerating the achievements of the last two and a half years, including the conclusion of peace with Germany, Austria and Hungary, the arms conference and the British debt settlement.

Two International Questions

Two pending international questions were discussed by the chief executive. With respect to one—the recognition of Russia—he declared "international good faith forbids any sort of sanction of the Bolshevist policy." The other question concerned relations with Mexico and in discussing it Mr. Harding said he earnestly hoped the American commission now in Mexico City would achieve "definite and favorable results."

Having in the past two and a half years as he said, "strengthened our friendly relationships and done much to promote peace in the world," the United States, he maintained, should now do its part to bring the blessings of peace and absence of fear of war to the other nations of the world.

"Nations ought no more need resort to force in the settlement of their disputes or differences than do men in this enlightened day," he asserted. "Out of this conviction, out of my belief in a penitent world craving for the agencies of peace, out of the inevitable presidential contact with the World War havoc and devastation and the measureless sorrow which attended has followed, I would be insensible to duty and violate all the sentiment of my heart and all my convictions if I failed to urge American support of the permanent court of international justice.

For Avoidance of War

"I do not know that such a court will be unfailing in the avoidance of war, but I know it is a step in the right direction, and will prove an advance toward international peace for which the conflictive conscience of mankind is calling."

Evidently having in mind published statements by members in the senate and others criticising his St. Louis address in which he proposed a reconstruction of the creative machinery of the court, the President said:

"My own sincerity of purpose has been questioned because I do not insist that we shall accept the existing world court precisely as provided. Personally I would vastly prefer the policy of submitting all controversies in which we are concerned to the court as it sits today, as against any other agency of settlement yet devised. As President, speaking for the United States, I am more interested in adherence to such a tribunal in the best form attainable than I am concerned about the triumph of presidential insistence. The big thing is the firm establishment of the court and our cordial adherence thereto. All else is mere detail."

International Achievements

Prefacing his view of international achievements with the declaration that "when the present national administration came into responsibility, world affairs were in a complicated and very difficult posture," the President said four main tasks were undertaken as follows:

"First, the re-establishment of peace with the central powers, and the orderly settlement of those important after-problems of the war, which directly involved the United States.

"Second, the protection and promotion, amid the chaos of conflicting national interests, of the just rights of the United States and the legitimate interests of American citizens.

"Third, the creation of an international situation, so far as the United States might contribute thereto, which would give the best assurance of peace for the future.

"Fourth, the pursuit of the traditional American policy of friendly cooperation with our sister republics, of the western hemisphere."

"The eminent success and the far-reaching achievements must have their ultimate appraisal by American public opinion," the executive added. "But I submit them with unrestrained pride, and sincere tribute to the historic service of a great secretary of state."

Mr. Harding then proceeded to the enunciation of international achievements, taking up first the central powers which was necessary as the "peace negotiated by my distinguished predecessor, though he was impelled by lofty purposes, had evoked a bitter and undying controversy."

The negotiations resulted, "in treaties which established peace with those countries on an equitable basis, and at the same time preserve for the United States the rights embodies in the Paris treaties which had acquired through participation in the common victory"

Next the executive listed the German-American treaty providing for a mixed claims commission to determine American claims against Germany in connection with organization of which, he said, "The extraordinary tribute, unparalleled in international relationship was paid to the American sense of justice of the suggestion on the part of Germany that the United States should appoint an American umpire."

International Obligations

The settlement of the British debt, the President asserted, was another accomplishment of importance for Great Britain in undertaking the discharge of an obligation of more than four and a half billion dollars, "put a fresh stamp of approval on the sacredness of international obligations," and the settlement itself gave "a new assurance of stability throughout the world."

Mr. Harding also questioned the debt settlement virtually concluded with Finland, the negotiations pending with Czecho-Slovakia and the prospective discussions with Jugo Slavia.

Important achievements also were brought about in connection with rights of Americans in mandated territories, the President asserted, adding as examples the conclusion of a treaty with Japan, securing American rights to all Pacific islands north of the equator over which Japan exercises its madate; similar treaties with France and Belgium, and "negotiations now in progress with Great Britain relating to the British mandated territories in Africa and we look with confidence to a satisfactory treaty."

LOST BOYS FOUND HUDDLED TOGETHER ON MOUNTAIN PEAK

Lewiston, Me., July 31.—Alfred Merian, Jr., of New York and his chum, Gaston Dallendsch of Switzerland, who lost their way on Mount Katahdin last Wednesday were found huddled together near the monument of stones at the highest peak of the mountain today by guides Eugene York and Abol Cook. The boys seemed mentally alert and their phyhical condition was good, considering that their food for six days had consisted chiefly of wild berries.

The two young men were members of a party of five who left Sebec lake last Wednesday to scale the mountain. When part way up they went in advance of the others, who could not find them again.

They lost their way on the north side of the mountain and were unable to find the trail. In the belief that searching parties would first visit the summit they made the ascent under great difficulties by a way hitherto unexplored by mountain climbers. Their feet and hands were cut and bruised by sharp rocks and their clothing torn by the underbrush.

After the guides had given them food and coffee the party started down the mountainside for a hike of ten miles to a camp where they were to remain over night. Tomorrow morning they will walk eight miles through the woods to the Sourdnahunk road where they will be met by an automobile and conveyed to Ripogenus where the Merian boy's father and mother are located.

More than a hundred men had engaged in the search for the two youths, Merian is a junior at Harvard university and Dallendsch plans to enter Columbia university this fall.

STRIKE CALLED OFF BY BROCKTON SHOE WORKERS

Brockton, Mass., July 31. — The strike of shoe workers in this city was called off today at a mass meeting of strikers. A number of manufacturers said that they would take back as many of the strikers as they could place.

The strike, called more than eleven weeks ago, was not sanctioned by the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union, which has a contract with the Manufacturers' Association calling for arbitration of disputes by the state board of conciliation and arbitration. The union revoked the charters of locals which participated in the strike and the strikers formed an organization known as the Brockton District Shoe Workers. They demanded an increase in wages and arbitration of disputes by a local board.

In the early days of the strike some of the factories shut down and others were forced to curtail production sharply, but recently all had been operating and many new workers had been employed. There were numerous minor disturbances.

Morse and co-defendants on trial on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government in connection with shipping contracts participated today in argument to the jury. Acquittal of all eight defendants was demanded, their counsel contending the government had built its case on the "flimsy foundation" of circumstantial evidence.

Nash Rockwood, chief counsel for the defense, will deliver its closing argument tomorrow, after which the prosecution will have an opportunity to present additional arguments to the jury.

Business Conditions Reflect a Reaction

Federal Reserve Bank of Boston Reports a Reduction of Production.

Boston, July 31.—The reaction in business conditions assumed a more tangible form during July and the possibility that the trend of business conditions has changed, at least for the time being, cannot be ignored, says the monthly review of the Federal Reserve bank, of Boston, issued tonight.

"The rate of production has been reduced," the review says. "Some maintain that the falling off in production and orders is a normal one, usually in evidence at this period of the year. Undoubtedly some of the reduction is seasonal in character, but there are so many indications that the current reduction is more than is usually experienced at this period of the year, that the possibility that the trend of business conditions has changed, at least for the time being, cannot be ignored.

"The prices of many conditions continued to decline during the first three weeks in July, following the trend of the previous two or three months. A large drop in wheat quotations during the first two weeks of the month served to call attention again to the purchasing power of the farmers in many sections of the country.

"Banking and the credit situation continue, as for some time past, to be the most favorable factors in the business situation."

The review says that preliminary reports of detail trade in Boston department stores suggested that a decline slightly greater than the usual seasonal movement may be expected in the volume of dollar sales for the month of July. The tendency of the average purchaser to "shop around" has become more evident.

Boot and shoe production in New England, hampered by labor troubles, decreased about 16 per cent from May to June. Manufacturers of machinery and machine tools reported capacity operations during June with a shortage of labor in some skilled lines.

DILATION OF HEART FATAL TO DR. PAUL WATERMAN

Hartford, July 31.—Dr. Paul Waterman, widely known psychiatrist, died suddenly this afternoon on a stair landing in the Professional building, where his office was.

Acute dilation of the heart, caused by toxemia, caused his death. He had not been feeling well today. He left his office on the sixth floor and collapsed as he reached the landing on the stairs on the way to the fifth floor. It is thought that he was going to the floor below his office to consult one of the physicians there. Dr. Waterman, although not quite 46 years old, had more than a statewide reputation as a psychriatrist and neurologist and a long and honorable record as a medical officer in the service of his state and country.

He served on the Mexican border, and for two years in France during the World war, being for a time assistant chief surgeon of the Yankee division, later commanding officer of the 101st Sanitary Train, and finally divisional surgeon of the 4th division. On the day the armistice was signed he was made a lieutenant colonel and before he was discharged in August, 1919, he was commissioned a colonel. He also served as surgeon-general on the staff of Governor Lake and was corps surgeon, First Army corps, of the Organized Reserves.

Dr. Waterman was a member of many state commissions, and served in a consulting capacity on the staffs of many hospitals. In 1905 he served as examiner in lunacy in New York, before his appointment to the staff of alienists at Bellevue hospital.

He was born in Westfield, Mass.

POLICY OF STATE HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER MACDONALD

Bridgeport, July 31.—At a big meeting here today under the auspices of the chamber of commerce and Rotary club, attended by state senators and representatives from Fairfield county, and many city and town officials, State Highway Commissioner John A. MacDonald made an address outlining his policy for the next two years.

His promise to spend $1,000,000 annually on the Post road, between Bridgeport and the New York state line at Greenwich until the whole section is placed in good condition, operations to begin next spring, was the most important declaration contained in his address. He declared he realized the importance of the road and that it would never be able to carry the burden of traffic it should carry.

He said it would be necessary to find some new outlet from Connecticut into New York state sometime and it might be done through a highway paralleling the Post road; through the development of a system of water transportation for loaded auto truck bodies, or some other means.

NEW YORK BANDITS FLEE WITH A TRAY OF DIAMONDS

New York, July 31.—Four auto bandits this afternoon smashed the window in Rothenberg's jewelry store on Third avenue and fled with a tray of diamonds. The jeweler estimated his loss at $15,000.

The quartet drove up in their car, halted in front of the store and stepped out, leaving the motor running. Then two, flourishing revolvers, cleared the sidewalk of pedestrians and their companions, taking deliberate aim, hurled a cobblestone through the window.

The diamonds were whisked from the window. Walking to their car, the bandits seemingly thrust the tray under the noses of the crowd which they were holding back at pistol point. Then they entered their motor and sped away.

ARKANSAS MOONSHINERS SURRENDER TO SHERIFF

Russellville, Ark., July 31.—From far back in the Ozark Hills of Pope County a motor truck bearing thirteen men who said they were moonshiners and their whiskey making outfits and flying the American flag, chugged into Russellville late yesterday and surrendered to attacks of the sheriff's office. They announced they had decided to abandon their profession and pay the penalty of the law.

PRESIDENT HARDING HAS PASSED CRISIS AND IS WELL ON THE ROAD TO RECOVERY

Dr. Charles E. Sawyer, the President's Personal Physician Has So Informed the Associated Press—Feels That Mr. Harding is Now Entirely Out of Danger—Mrs. Harding is Greatly Cheered by Turn of Tide—Had Never Lost Hope or Faith—President Harding Might Convalesce on Catalina Island, Near Los Angeles.

Presidential Headquarters, Palace Hotel, San Francisco, July 31.—(By The A. P.)—President Harding has passed the crisis and is on the road to recovery according to a statement made late today to The Associated Press by Dr. Charles E. Sawyer, the president's personal physician.

Dr. Sawyer said: "Since we have our toxin well under control, I feel safe in saying that we have passed the peak load of trouble. I don't want to be too emphatic about it, because we always face complications. But I feel that the crisis is over and that the president is well on the road to recovery."

Dr. Sawyer said it was impossible to state at present how long it would be before the president would be strong enough to return to Washington, "I can't say now when it will be possible to feed him solid food," he said, "but I do feel that he is now entirely out of danger. I don't know it, but I feel it."

MOST NATURAL SLEEP SINCE HIS ILLNESS

Presidential Headquarters, Palace Hotel, San Francisco, July 31.—(By The A. P.)—President Harding is gaining in his fight against illness. His personal physician, Brigadier-General Charles E. Sawyer, in an informal statement issued at 9.10 p. m., said his patient was "doing well" and had just had the best and most natural sleep since his illness.

MRS. HARDING CHEERFUL HAD NEVER LOST FAITH

Presidential Headquarters, Palace Hotel, San Francisco, July 31.—(By The A. P.)—"The President is better."

Those four words tell the story of a fight made today by Warren G. Harding in a room on the top floor of the Palace hotel where he lies ill with broncho-pneumonia, and several complications. They first were spoken early in the day by Brigadier General Charles E. Sawyer, chief of staff of physicians attending Mr. Harding, and hour by hour they were passed along by word of mouth, by telegraph, by telephone, by cable and by radio until tonight they had reached some of the furthermost parts of the world.

General Sawyer spoke the words at 8 a. m. on coming from the sick room where he had spent a considerable portion of the night.

All other information coming from the president's room during the day appeared to support the early statement. What tonight or tomorrow may bring forth, one physician said, "no living doctor knows," for it was recognized that the fight Mr. Harding must make did not end today. He is admittedly handicapped in his physical resistance but he proved today that he is temperamentally well adapted and tonight he has the odds with him.

The developments of the day brought a decided change in the atmosphere of that part of the hotel occupied by the presidential party. It was as if a cloud had been partly lifted allowing some rays of the sun to shine through.

Mrs. Harding was described as cheerful although never, even last night when it was announced by the physicians that pneumonia had developed and that Mr. Harding's condition was grave, has she lost her cheerful disposition, her hope or her faith. She remained today as yesterday and Sunday in the presidential suite, always within call and much of the time by her husband's bedside.

The three cabinet members here were likewise greatly heartened. Secrtary Work, who, as a physician, has participated in all the consultations, said late in the day that there had been nothing disquieting.

"The president's condition," he added, "is either favorably progressive or stationary, and even the latter is favorable."

Secretary Hoover, who has been optimistic throughout alahough plainly disturbed last night, said that information given him had been very encouraging. Secretary Wallace likewise was more hopeful.

A fourth member of President Harding's official family, Attorney General Daugherty, was hurrying here from Seattle and is due to arrive tomorrow.

The two cabinet members in Washington, Secretary Hughes and Postmaster General New, were informed by long distance telephone of the change for the better by George B. Christian, Jr., secretary to the president, and similar messages were sent to the other cabinet officials, including Secretary Mellon and Secretary Davis who are in Europe.

Messages of hope for the chief executive's speedy recovery and of solicitude over his illness were more numerous today than they have been any day since he was brought here Sunday. They came from city officials, governors of states, leaders in commerce and industry, rulers of foreign countries, and from many unknown beyond their own communities. Among them was understood to be one from Woodrow Wilson, who as president, was also stricken by illness when in the west on a speaking trip.

None of the messages was made public as Mrs. Harding had said it would be lacking in consideration to make public those from nationally and internationally known persons without giving the same prominence to those equally apreciated communications received from relatively unknown persons.

Apparently well founded reports concerning the future movements of the presidential party, effective when the president again is able to travel, were in circulation throughout the day. One of the plans said to be under consideration was that the chief executive and Mrs. Harding would go from San Francisco to Catalina Island, near Los Angeles, where the president could rest quietly and with every comfort until strong enough to return to Washington.

William Wrigley, Jr., of Catalina saw Secretary Christian and expressed the hope that Mr. and Mrs. Harding would visit his home as they had originally intended before starting the trip back to Washington. No definite answer was made to this invitation, it was understood, but it was said to have been taken under consideration for possible presentation to the president when he is able to discuss such affairs.

Improvements had been shown in the president's pulse, temperature and respiration and also in his eliminative faculties. The latter, the general said, was a highly favorable symptom.

The president's temperature at nine o'clock was 99 2-5 degrees; pulse 118, the lowest it has been since he was taken ill; respiration 36, a decrease of four from the last previous report.

PRESIDENT'S SPECIAL TRAIN TEMPORARILY RELEASED

Presidential Headquarters, Palace Hotel, San Francisco, July 31 (By the A. P.)—The railroad equipment embraced in the special train which carried President Harding and his party from Washington across the continent to Tacoma and then from Seattle to San Francisco was released temporarily for other uses by railroad officials today at the direction of executive officials. It had been held here since Sunday pending developments in the president's condition.

Although the equipment can be reassembled upon twenty-four or forty-eight hours' notice, the action was interpreted as meaning that there was no immediate intention of removing the president from San Francisco.

TO REPRESENT PRESIDENT AT MASONIC CEREMONIES

San Francisco, July 31.—(By the A. P.)—George B. Christian, Jr., was designated today by President Harding as his personal representative on the occasion of the Masonic ceremonies in the Hollywood Bowl, Los Angeles, Thursday afternoon where the chief executive had promised to speak.

Secretary Christian will leave San Francisco for Los Angeles Wednesday, according to present plans, and will read the President's remarks at the meeting.

I. W. W. RED FLAG AGAIN TORN DOWN IN HOBOKEN

Hoboken, N. J., July 31.—Headquarters of the marine transport workers' division of the I. W. W. today was stormed by a crowd for the second time and its flag of flaming red torn down.

The attack was made shortly after a summons, sworn out by the secretary of the I. W. W. organization, had been served on Thomas Dunn, alleged leader of the longshoremen charged with having made the first raid.

Twenty huskies participated in the attack. Only four "wobblies" were in the hall when the place was stormed.

They said a stranger had opened the door, peered in and then disappeared. A moment later the attacking force rushed upstairs and tramped into the room.

Two of the "wobblies" said they had offered resistance and that both had been attacked, one being badly cut above the eye. The intruders then opened the windw, tore down the banner and departed with it.

HENRY FORD ASSERTS THAT HE IS NOT PLAYING POLITICS

New York, July 31.—Henry Ford, in an interview appearing in Collier's this week, declares he is not a candidate for the presidency today, but that he can't say what he will do tomorrow.

"Now, if I wanted to play politics, I would say exactly what I am going to say, anyway, the manufacturer was quoted as asserting. "But I am not playing politics, I am not a candidate for anything. I can't imagine myself today accepting any nomination. Of course, I can't say, and no intelligent man can say, what I will do tomorrow. There might be a war, or some crisis of the sort in which legalism and constitutionalism and all that wouldn't figure, and the nation wanted some person who could do things and do them quick. What I would do then I can't say. But there isn't any such situation now. I haven't a political mind, and I don't see any sense in my attempting any political leadership."

RUHR FOOD SITUATION IS BECOMING WORSE

Berlin, July 31 (By the A. P.)—Reports from the Ruhr indicate that the food situation there is becoming steadily worse. At Gelsenkirchen several thousand miners failed to report for work; they informed the management that they were physically unfit to enter the pits, as their families have been without potatoes and other food supplies since Saturday. The French are charged with having systematically bought up the food at various places in the occupied zone.

Food transports from unoccupied Germany are reported to be stalled at the zone frontiers, owing to disorganization of the French administered railway lines, which is preventing shipments from reaching their Ruhr destinations.

Chancellor Cuno has conferred with a delegation from the Agrarian league, which promises to mobilize the potato stocks.

CROWDER CALLED TO CONFER WITH SECRETARY HUGHES

Havana, Cuba, July 31.—Ambassador E. H. Crowder this afternoon confirmed the report that he had been called to Washington for a conference with Secretary Hughes and will leave Havana Thursday noon for Washington. The ambassador disclaimed knowledge of the subjects that will be taken up.

TO DISMANTLE EVERY SALOON IN NEW HAVEN

New Haven, July 31.—Policemen of this city tonight obtained the names of owners of buildings wherein saloons are located; the names of proprietors of the places and their bartenders as the first move under direction of Chief of Police Philip T. Smith in the plans for dismantling of every saloon and barroom in New Haven.

The data will be turned over to Chief Smith and it subsequently will be given to the state's attorney. Notices then will be issued to the building owners, saloon proprietors and bartenders that the places must be closed immediately.

The action tonight followed receipt of a letter by Chief Smith signed by State's Attorney Arnon A. Alling Common Pleas Court Prosecutor Edwin S. Pickett and City Attorney Sheridan T. Whitaker, assuring him he would be given their complete support in enforcing the United States laws, the state laws and the city ordinances.

The drive differs from that conducted in other cities said Assistant State's Attorney Walter M. Pickett last night, adding that it is being made in unison—the state, city and federal prosecuting powers working together with one definite point in view. That, he said, was to rid the city of illicit liquor.

If liquor is found in any saloon after the notices have been served the owner will be arrested and tried. His place of business will be closed; the doors barred and it so will have to remain for one year, in accordance with the federal prohibition law.

STEAMERS ARE RACING TO PORT WITH IMMIGRANTS

New York, July 31.—Two immigration officials left for Rosebank, Staten Island, tonight, to reserve the midnight race of immigrant-laden ships to Quarantine. Nineteen liners, from a dozen European ports, carrying about 19,000 aliens from Europe, Asia and Africa made ready for the dash to ge their passengers inside the August quotas.

The first vessel to cross the imaginary line at Quarantine will have priority in having its passengers examined at Ellis Island.

The first ships to arrive in Gravesend Bay to await the lifting of the August quota bargier were the Drottningholm from Gothenburg; the Argentina from Patras, Greece, and the Liuania from Copenhagen. Others were arriving at short intervals. Belated vessels were racing toward New York under full steam, their engines pounding, and their passengers almost frantic with fear that they would arrive only to find that their nations' quotas were filled.

Approximately 80,000 immigrants were admitted in July, and according to official estimates manly more will attempt to enter in August. The full allotment from all countries allows for 71,561.

100 DEAD IN RAILROAD COLLISION IN GERMANY

Berlin, July 31.—(By the A. P.)—A great disaster occurred at the Kreiensen station, at the junction of the Hanover and Cassel line, today, caused by a collision between the Hamburg-Minuch express and a train standing at the station. Up to four o'clock 44 bodies had been recovered from the wreckage, and the estimated number killed is 100, while 34 injured are being cared for at the hospital at Gottingen.

The collision is attributed to the inability of the driver of the express to see the signals because of grit which had been blown into his eyes. The crash was terrific and most of the cars were scattered and piled on top of one another.

Those who were killed instantly suffered the happiest fate, for many others were crushed down in the wreckage and endured agonies before the end came. Many of those rescued also suffered prolonged tortures before they were extricated.

UNDERWOOD PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE ON WET PLATFORM

Montgomery, Ala., July 31.—In an address before the Mobile delegation of the Alabama legislature this morning at a local hotel, Senator Oscar W. Underwood declared that if the citizens of Alabama requested it, that his hat was "in the ring for the presidency."

"It is not for me to name Alabama's candidate for president of the United States, but if the great state names me as her standard bearer all the fighting spirit I have will be enlisted to carry democracy's call to triumph."

Senator Underwood expressed the hope that the next democratic convention "will have the courage to fight the international situation with the firm purpose to pledge the party if successful in the elections to take its place in the international family."

Declaring that he had no desire to apologize for or retract his position originally taken on prohibition, Mr. Underwood recounted that he had always maintained that temperance could be attained along better lines than by addition of the eighteenth amendment.

6,000 TROLLEYMEN IN NEW JERSEY ON STRIKE

Newark, N. J., Aug. 31.—The threatened strike of New Jersey's 6,000 trolleymen at the stroke of midnight tonight became a reality, when the first of the night shift men completed their runs and began turning in their cars at the main barns throughout the state.

A conference in the public service terminal among officials of the trolley company was in progress, but it could not be learned whether there were prospects for compromise in sight.

The liquor had been secreted in the compartment ordinarily reserved for the coffin. Samuel Weinstock, of Baltimore, driver of the funeral vehicle, was held in $1,500 bail.

He told the troopers he had conveyed the liquor from Baltimore but refused to divulge any other details.

As several of the members were on vacations so were not present at the meeting it was decided to take no action at the present time. Residents in the surrounding terri-tory have been in a state of nervous excitement since the rumor that Frank Weeden, one-eyed maniac and boy murderer, has been seen in this vicinity. This state of affairs has been the cause of much annoyance to the police, who have been kept on the jump answering telephone messages from every direction sent in by people who were sure that they had seen the man. A resident in South Windham called up late Tuesday night that Weeden was headed for that town. Constable Harry W. Avery of South Windham was notified and he started out and met the supposed maniac who stared at the officer with two very good eyes.

It is admitted, however, that he did wear overalls and a jumper but he was without hook and razor so surely could not have been the maniac. It has been declared that Frank Weeden has never been seen in this section and undoubtedly is a good many miles away.

Services at Windham Center Con-gregational church will be suspended during August to permit repairs to the interior of the church, which will include among other things, the scraping and re-oiling of the floor. A local contractor is doing the work.

BERGER WINS EVERLASTING FAME AS HE BEATS EAST SIDE BENEDICTS

Another glowing chapter was written into the baseball history of the East Side Tuesday evening when the Single Men evened up the series with the Married Men by trimming them 13 to 7. In this chapter that goes down to posterity there will be one name that stands out above all others, a name that will be forever on the lips of East Side fandom long after the owner has shuffled off to his reward in the great hereafter, that name is Berger Goldberg. Ty Cobb or Babe Ruth or old Mordecai Brown were never acclaimed the hero in such a manner as was Berger after last nights game. All past diamond stars faded into oblivion and Berger shone alone in the baseball firmament.

His masterly pitching and his wonderful work with the bat together with his daring base running held the 1,000 fans with tensed nerves. As he struck out man after man or when he cut viciously at the flying sphere or when his winger-feet twinkled along the base paths there was a deathly silence as the multitude waited until he had accomplished his objective and then the very foundations rocked with the cheers from a thousand throats. The crowd was with him to a man. It was a spectacle that is seen once in a life time and never forgotten. Long will be remembered how Berger's berry-brown arm flashed and Umpire Billy Wright tolled off the strikes while batters looked like a baseball in their vicinity. But they could not doubt the word of Umpire Wright for he was always right.

Neither will the fans forget how Berger came to bat, stern determination written on his face and a spirit of do or die spurring him on to glory. And he did. He swung his mighty club with a deadly vengeance and the outfielders backed to the limits of the ball park but it availed them little for baseball that met the club in Berger's hand was never meant to be caught by a humble married outfielder. It soared as on the wings of an eagle yet with the speed of a bullet and all a poor mortal could do was to gaze in astonishment as it cleared the park boundaries.

As the box score shows Berger had three hits to his credit and he fanned ten men and allowed only three hits. An enviable record for any pitcher. Although Berger was all that the crowd could desire there was a feeling of depression at first when it was found that Col. George Fowler was not to play. Manager Pedace of the Single Men sent an automobile to bring the other star to the grounds but when the automobile stopped in front of the colonel's house he ran into his abode, locked the doors and pulled down the shades refusing positively to play although many inducements were offered. The colonel is known to be of a jealous nature but it was not expected to go to such limits.

Just as the game started with Wacko Riley in the box for the Married Men and Jumbo James on the receiving end Prof. Houston and his brass band appeared on the field and the game was halted while the players headed by Berger Goldberg carrying his mighty war club marched once around the field. The band then parked in centerfield, where it played during the game lending a real big league effect to the scene. Every time that Berger came to bat the strains of The Sheik were heard. No more appropriate number could have been chosen to portray the hero of the game.

After the game, in the last inning which Berger fanned three batters the crowd let loose its pent up feelings and swarmed on to the diamond and gathered Berger to its bosom. The hero in his white knickers, pearl gray golf stockings and red jersey was lifted to the shoulders of the admiring throng and carried to an automobile. With the band leading the procession a parade was formed to East Main street where the conquering hero disembarked and with his trusty bludgeon led the parade through Main street to Franklin square and back to the wilds of the East Side where he, upon the insistence of his admirers, made a brief and modest speech, from the hood of Cadillac Pete's automobile.

In brief he said "Ladies and Gentlemen: I thank you one and all for your moral support in helping me win this ball game. Without you I would have nothing but if I am ever asked to pitch again I will even surpass by wonderful performance of tonight. I started by baseball career when I was seventeen and all that I am today I owe to that peerless Norwich star, Danny Murphy. I thank you and always will this night be remembered by me."

The final game of the series will be played on next Tuesday evening instead of next Friday, so as to give time for the managers to prepare a real celebration. The managements wish to thank Prof. Houston's band for their services which were generously donated.

Matt Delaney was an interested spectator viewing the game from an automobile.

CARVILLE D WINS FEATURE 6 AT WORCESTER TRACK

(Special to the Bulletin)

Worcester, Mass., July 31—The eighth week of the Bay State Circuit opened here today with three races. The track was slow on account of recent rains. The feature race was the 2.16 trot, the winner in which was Carville D, a trotting gelding owned by George W. Hindermyer of Philadelphia, driven by Al Kline, the New Jersey horseman. In the opening heat Carville got away badly and finished last. He trotted like a machine and won the next three heats.

The Ultimate, winner of two races before Worcester was reached, had an easy time in the 2.12 trot. Peter Zaza won the 2.19 trot in a romp. Lord of the Nursery, owned by D. Converse of Palmer, finished second in the third heat, but the judges ruled that Howard Small, the driver of the Lord, had swerved in front of Dewey the Great and gave the place to the latter. The decision got the gelding third money as Lord of the Nursery was placed last. Summaries:

Chicago, July 31.—Boston went on a batting rampage, cracking out sixteen hits for 25 bases and made it two straight from Chicago today, 6 to 3. COMMISSION SILENT ON WILLS' PLEA TO BE GIVEN CHANCE TO BOX DEMPSEY

New York, July 31—The New York state athletic commission today discussed the scheduled Dempsey-Firpo championship match and heard Harry Wills, negro heavyweight and his manager Harry Mullins, plead for the first chance at the title but refused to declare its attitude in either case.

The commissioners announced that Tex Rickard, promotor, had not made application for a license to hold the Dempsey-Firpo encounter and that until he did they had no specific interest in the matter. They said they had had a "nice long conversation with Wills and Mullins regarding Will's claim for priority over Firpo in meeting the champion.

It was understood, they said, in the papers Dempsey and Wills signed before the commission some months ago that the two would meet for the title, but they had seen nothing in the agreement that would prevent Dempsey from meeting another boxer first. They intimated, however, that when the Wills case was placed before them officially they would vote on it.

Wills' agreement with Dempsey was negotiated under the old organization of the commission, when William Muldoon was the sole power. Under the reorganization creating the license committee and taking away a majority of Muldoon's power, Wills' claim necessarily would have to be voted upon.

Until the application for the Dempsey-Firpo license is received by the commissioners, Wills' claim, it is believed, will be held in reserve.

CARDINALS DIVIDE DOUBLE HEADER WITH DODGERS

St. Louis, July 31—St. Louis divided a doubleheader with Brooklyn winning the first game 11 to 3, and losing the second 7 to 4.

In the first contest Hornsby poled his 13th home run of the season, driving in two other men.

Sherdel was batted off the mound in the second game, after holding the visitors hitless for four innings. In his last inning and two thirds, however, Brooklyn made eight hits, including two home runs on two successive pitched balls. The drives were made by Fournier and R. Griffith. It was Fournier's 13th four bagger of the season. The score:

Who's Who and Why?

Recently two players on Mgr. Franiski's Taftville Whirlwind baseball team received their walking papers. For revenge these men with other noted ball players in and near the village, organized a team and called themselves the Taftville Bear Cats.

This name evidently looked good to "Finn", and he junked the name of Whirlwinds, and took Taftville Bear-Cats for a name.

Now the managers of both teams are at swords points over a team name and the "outlaw" team claims there is but one way for Mgr. Franiski to settle the argument; that is to play a three game series. The manager of the "outlaws" is ready for the series, the winner to keep the name of Bear Cats. Graciously he has consented to a name for the ex-Whirlwinds if they lose. He will call his team the Bear Cats and Mgr. Franiski's team may take the name "Copy Cats."

GIANTS TAKE CLOSE GAME FROM PIRATES

Pittsburgh, July 31.—New York made it two out of three in the present series with Pittsburgh by winning today's game 5 to 4. The Giants drove Hamilton from the box in the first inning when two runs were scored on four singles. They added three more runs in the third inning by bunching hits off Morrison.

McQuillan was effective until the seventh when the Pirates scored four runs on as many hits and he was replaced by Ryan, who stopped further scoring. The score:

REDS LOSE PLACE AS THEY DROP TWO GAMES

Cincinnati, Ohio, July 31—The Reds were forced back to third place and their pennant aspirations suffered a severe jolt when the Phillies defeated them in both games of a doubleheader 2 to 1 and 5 to 1. The first game was a close pitchers' battle between Rixey and Ring with honors practically even. The Phillies scored one run on an error by Bohne and another on a misjudged fly by Roush while the Reds earned their one tally on an out and a double by Pinelli.

Couch was hit hard in the second game and was taken out in the fifth. Mitchell and Holke collided forcibly in going after a foul fly near the first base line in the fourth inning. Mitchell was stunned and had to be carried off the field. Betts finishing the game in good style. Holke also left the game in the sixth. It was the first time this year that the Phillies have defeated the Reds who had won eleven straight games from them up to today. The scores:

PROFS WIN DOUBLE BILL FROM DERBIES

Bridgeport, July 31.—New Haven and chalked up its 14th straight win over the locals this season.

The first game was a burlesque affair with Bridgeport using a makeshift lineup. Manager Fisher was chased from the bench in the first inning by Umpire Rorty and Catcher Joe Smith was injured in the sixth. The locals were forced to put Outfielder Orme, who was playing second, behind the bat and use two pitchers to fill out the lineup. First Baseman Post took up the pitching burden after Littrell had been socked to all corners of the lot.

New Haven bunched hits off Clary to win the second contest. Score by innings:

THE PRESIDENT'S ILLNESS.

If waves of sympathy for his illness and hope for his successful return to health can have any effect in the sick room at San Francisco, President Harding has a powerful influence working for his recovery. His countrymen are one in their concern and anxiety over his condition and their hope that his restoration to vigor and health will not be long delayed.

The nation was not prepared for the announcement of the sudden serious turn which the president's illness took. What was supposed to be a slight intoxication, provoked by ptomaine poison, assumes a serious phase because of the development of pneumonia and his physicians do not attempt to conceal the fact that their patient needs the most skilful care, backed by his own natural vigor, for a successful outcome from his illness.

The chief executive has not spared himself on what must have been both to him and Mrs. Harding a fatiguing journey, barring the few days of freedom at sea from the programme of speeches, receptions and parades for the past months. His spirit was still strong to continue his itinerary, but Mrs. Harding apparently sensed his condition better than he did himself and it was upon her advice that he consented to stop in San Francisco, give out the news of his sickness and cancel the remainder of his trip home which was to have been by way of the Panama canal, Porto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

By every means of public expression President Harding will be given to know that it is the unanimous hope of his countrymen to see him once more in the White House as quickly as may be, with vigor to take up the onerous duties of the presidency.

CITIZENS' TRAINING CAMP.

Training for the business of war is the purpose of the citizens' military training camp which opens this week at Camp Devens in Massachusetts. It is to prepare young men to serve as officers and noncommissioned officers in the military forces of the United States in case of war, although some of the "rookies" may have gone to camp with the expectation that it is a sort of glorified vacation with all expenses paid by the government. Such an impression may have been fostered, more or less, by posters describing it as a "free vacation" and dwelling alluringly on the pleasure of attending the camp. There will be disillusionment for those who have enlisted with the impression that they could do about as they pleased at camp and with no intention of applying themselves seriously to learning the rudiments of war. The student officers will find the wholesome pressure of discipline applied, for unless they take their duties seriously the time and money which the government has invested in the project will be, to a large extent, lost.

That the young men will benefit by a month in camp there is no doubt. It is also true that for many military life, especially when followed for a short time as a hobby, is very attractive. The camps serve a necessary and useful purpose but it must be borne in mind that war is the grimmest business in which a nation or an individual can be engaged and that the whole progress of civilization depends upon the development of a rational substitute for it.

THE BOK CONTEST.

Whether any plan not heretofore known to the American people will be produced by Edward W. Bok's peace prize offer is an interesting surmise. The Philadelphian offers $50,000 for an acceptable plan under which the United States can take part with European powers in a movement to insure world peace. The award carries with it a promise of another $50,000 to the winner if the selected plan is adopted by the United States senate or meets with widespread popular approval. What Mr. Bok wants to find out is the sort of compromise measure for which the leading thinkers strove in vain while President Wilson was waiting for the senate to make up its mind about the league of nations.

The purpose of the offer is to produce a plan and see that it is put into operation, and its principal effect will be to reorganize the country's thinking upon the subject of our international relations. The conditions of the award make it possible for anyone to compete for the prize, and it should enlist contributions from anyone who has followed the events of the last ten years to the conclusion that the United States should help find a way to prevent another such disaster as Europe suffered in 1914.

The accepted plan may be a compromise of many offerings and while it may not bring any strikingly new suggestion to the surface, such a result will not be looked upon as a failure. The thing that is needed is not so much a new plan as an acceptable plan. What might have been acceptable a few years ago, may not be acceptable now, if the country's attitude had changed towards plans suggested after the submission of the peace treaty. The authors of the project have achieved something admirable in reviving a discussion of the subject, for their scheme has caught the popular fancy and they have reason to look forward to success.

DEADLY GRADE CROSSINGS.

Much printers' ink has been used by railroads and highway departments setting forth the peril to the motorist who fails to look and listen, even if he does not stop, before he crosses a railroad track. Yet the toll of lives taken last Sunday in grade crossing accidents where railroad trains hit automobiles was an appalling one. At least twenty-five persons were killed in accidents of this character, as reported in newspaper dispatches. Only one of the casualties was in New England, possible because of the cold, inclement weather which kept many people indoors who would otherwise have been upon the highways.

From such a record, however, we are not to conclude that the warning campaign has been a failure and has not produced results. There is no record of the number of lives that have been saved because drivers have heeded the advice to approach crossings cautiously.

The highways are thronged with automobiles as never before and their use is continually increasing. With good business throughout the country the number of trains on the railroads will also increase. It is a condition that forces home the conclusion that more grade crossings must be abolished, and if all such death traps could be wiped out an ideal condition would be reached. But the elimination of grade crossings is an expensive process for the railroads, already taxed by the need of many improvements including more engines and cars to meet transportation demands. That the elimination of grade crossings should not be neglected is indicated by the news of the day. It should have its place in any scheme of general rehabilitation so that each year should see the number of these death traps reduced. And, of course, the cost is properly to be shared by the states and municipalities in which the work is done.

HIRAM JOHNSON'S VIEWS.

It cannot be discovered that the California senator's trip to Europe has done anything to modify the preconceived views which he had expressed before he departed. In a speech made at a banquet in New York, where the toastmaster introduced the senator to "clear up a few points on the situation in Europe," Mr. Johnson made a set of assertions closely identical with others he had made before he favored the continent with a visit.

He declared, for instance, that Europe does not want American wisdom but does want American money, and possibly American man-power. Europe, he affirmed, does not care at all about the world court but is anxious to ensnare the United States into full participation in its affairs and would regard America's entry into the world court as a first step. Still, Mr. Johnson also affirmed that the world court is but a futile agency, entrance into which committed no nation to anything whatsoever.

If the world court is a futile agency that commits no nation to anything whatever, how would American entry into it jeopardize American independence or violate America's traditional policy? If America can best serve humanity by adhering to its historic policy, is it not bound to enter the world court in pursuance of its consistent policy of promoting arbitration and judicial settlement of disputes fraught with danger to international amity and peace? Finally, is not world stability essential to world prosperity and is not American prosperity largely dependent, in the long run, on its foreign commerce?

He predicts "another bloody war in the making" but he would not have America lift a finger to help avert that war. The fact that America became badly entangled in the great war and could scarcely hope to escape entanglement anew should another such war break out Senator Johnson chooses to ignore.

Senator Johnson should read the speech of his Alabama colleague, Senator Underwood, and try to meet its central point—the economic and moral concern of America in sinister European controversies. His vague utterances fall far short of exemplifying the frankness and definiteness he demands of others.

PUZZLE EXPLAINED

"What's wrong here?" puzzled the father of the tempestuous small boy, surveying the neat and orderly front hall when he returned from a day's toil. "The scene is not familiar."

"I suppose," offered the mother of the small boy, "the place looks queer because it is not all littered up with skates and footballs, baseball bats, overshoes, leggings, caps, books, over coats and sweaters."

"I believe it is something like that!" agreed her husband, still looking about. "But—what has happened? Has Reginald got mad and moved out on us in order to lead a larger life of perfect freedom or what?"

"I wish I could tell you," his wife confessed with a worried expression, "I just don't know what to make of it at all! Without a word from me Reginald has hung up and put away in their proper places every article which belongs to him every time he has appeared today. He has even hunted for things to put up. In fact, he's been so thorough that I can't find several articles which belong to me, but I hated to discourage him by pointing that out.

"At lunch he sat bolt upright in his chair as he should and didn't lean his elbows on the table once, nor grab. He said 'Please' when he wanted anything and refused an offer for a second piece of pie.

"Then he swept off the porch and steps without being told and asked Hulda whether he shouldn't put a shovel of coal in the furnace to save her going down. I asked him if he felt well and he declared that he did and when I put my hand carelessly upon his forehead it was quite cool and normal. But still—"

"I don't wonder that you are worried!" declared the tempestuous small boy's father, sitting down and immediately looking very worried himself. "Something is wrong, decidedly! It is nowhere near Christmas and his birthday doesn't arrive till next October so—"

"I thought of all that," Reginald's mother said nervously. "Of course, Reginald is high-spirited and I wonder whether we haven't made too much of the few wrong things he has done and whether we havn't been to severe with the child. He really has a remarkably sweet nature!"

"I was rather rough on the little beggar myself," admitted the worried father of Reginald. "Only last Sunday when I wanted to take a nap and he insisted on sawing that cigar box in the library right under my ear—"

"And I spoke so sharply to him, too!" said his mother. "He sawed right through into the walnut table! What is a walnut table to a sweet, sunny child about the house!"

"He didn't eat much dinner last night, either," pursued the father of Reginald, getting up and walking the floor. "Where is he now?"

Reginald's mother shook her head and winked her eyes. "He—why, he's upstairs taking a bath." she admitted in hopeless tones. "He's got out his clean clothes and went into the bathroom whistling without one single reminder from me! That was what frightened me most. Oh, I am so glad you're home, Adelbert!"

"Gosh!" breathed Reginald's father, standing stock still. "He never got in that bathtub before without a war conference of the family!"

"Do—do you suppose he feels something awful coming on?" quavered Reginald's mother, "A nature like that has premonitions, you know. I'm going right up this minute and take his temperature!"

"Shah!" hissed her husband. "Here he comes! I'll look the child over! Act unconcerned, Gertrude!"

"Do you feel all right?" demanded the anxious father as an immaculately brushed, scrubbed and shined child descended the staircase properly instead of whooping down the rail.

"Yes, papa," dutifully said the little boy. Then he broke cover. "Say," he got out breathlessly, "say, can I have 50 cents, can I? They's vaudeville at the movie around the corner tonight and they've got trained ponies and acrobats—all the kids are going—say, can't I, pop?"

"Well, I guess you've earned it," Reginald's father said as he handed over the coin. "I guess we can be thankful it's no worse—just a case of trained ponies after all! My grief!" —Chicago News.

Stories That Recall Others

Followed by Silence.

The boarding club was nothing to brag about, and Miss Simons wished to entertain Mrs. Lincoln and her little girl at dinner, so she decided to take them to a restaurant. But it was a college town and Miss Simons soon learned that the boarding house meals were to be preferred, so she invited her friends there.

The meal was almost over when Mrs. Lincoln's three-year-old held up the crust of her piece of pie, having scraped out the inside, and called, "Mother, bone," just as the landlady opened the door.

Importance Not Realized.

A negro, who had always worked in homes, was employed for the first time in a downtown store. The first day, at noon, he was told to go home to lunch. When he returned at 3 o'clock his employer asked, "Where have you been?"

"Been home asleep."

"Why, don't you know you should have returned at 1 o'clock?"

"Law, no, Mr. Smith, I didn't know I was that important 'round here."

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Robert T. Lincoln, only surviving son of the martyred president, today reaches the age of four-score. He is the only one of Lincoln's three children to reach maturity—the second son died while a child in the White House and the youngest, "Tad," the father's favorite, died on reaching manhood. Robert T. Lincoln was born in the family home in Springfield, Ill., and was educated at Harvard. He adopted the law as a profession and for some years engaged in active practice. He held the war portfolio under Presidents Garfield and Arthur and served as minister to the court of St. James during the administration of President Harrison. In later years he held the presidency of the Pullman Company. Though now living in quiet retirement in Washington, he still retains a more or less active interest in several large financial and other corporations having their headquarters in Chicago, his former home.

Wives of Famous Men

Anne Hathaway, Wife of William Shakespeare.

Few writers have commented so penetratingly on marriage as William Shakespeare, greatest playwright of all time, and this insight is attributed by all who have made a study of the man's life to his own tragic matrimonial experience.

A gay, adventurous spirit, "Will" Shakespeare was forced into a marriage with the shrewish Anne Hathaway, daughter of a neighboring farmer, after an alleged escapade which ended disastrously. Records of the license show that Shakespeare's parents knew nothing of the wedding, which occurred in 1582. At this time Shakespeare was only 18 years old and Anne was nine years his senior.

The union was a farce. Shakespeare frankly loathed Anne, who was a common, shrill scold, and it is hardly to be expected that she actually felt any redeeming love for him. She did feel her sense of proprietorship, however, and pulled the domestic reins very tightly, so tightly, in fact, that three years later he disappeared, leaving her and their two infant daughters to get along as best they might.

Shakespeare never returned to his wife. Even after he became famous as a playwright and producer in London, and frequently saw his daughters, of whom he was very fond, he never forgave Anne for marrying him. She, on the other hand, never stopped vituperating him for his cruelty, although she made frequent declarations of her love, and made repeated efforts to win him back.

Anne died a considerable time before her famous husband, but even death did not soften his heart. When Susanna, his elder daughter, pleaded with him to return to Stratford and his wife's deathbed, he curtly refused, and Anne died with the long breach between them still unhealed.

CHILD TRAINING

USE THE MIRROR AS AN OBJECT LESSON

By Zarah E. Preble.

Little Robert came tramping into the room where his mother and I were talking. She took one look at the messy little figure, and exclaimed angrily—"Robert! You are a naughty, bad, dirty child! I told you not to get dirty, and now look at you. I don't love you any more."

The child looked down at himself, and his mouth quivered at his mother's words and tone. "I'm not dirty, Muvver — jes my hands, see!" He held out two grimy little paws. He was honestly sincere in his denial, but his mother was too upset to see that fact.

"Don't lie about it," she said grimly.

He looked at her piteously, and tears came into his eyes. "I'm not dirty, Muvver!" he repeated. "Jes my hands and I can wash 'em."

His mother glared. I felt that punishment—unjust punishment, for the child was not aware of his own condition — was in the air. I could not help interfering.

"Robert," I said gently, taking one of the dirty little hands in mine, and leading him over to the mirror, "Stand up on this chair and let's play a game. You look in the glass and then tell me quite truthfully what you think about that little boy in there."

He looked, half fearfully, but my smile reassured him.

"Is he clean or dirty?" I asked.

"His face is dirty," he replied, "and his hands are dirty."

"How about his rompers and his knees?" I suggested.

"They're dirty, too," he admitted.

"All right, Now who's the boy? What's his name?"

He smiled shamefacedly up at my image in the mirror. "Robert."

I nodded. "All right. You see you just didn't know you were so dirty, did you? Not until you say yourself. But Mother could see you, and she knew that you were dirty, and that was why she thought you were not telling the truth. Now you know the truth, so you can go and tell her that you are a dirty boy, but that you are sorry."

He nodded, and started to climb down from the chair, when he glanced once more into the mirror. "You have a lot of powder on your face," he said.

I laughed, I guess I ought to have looked at myself. Thank you, Robert, I'll take some of it off."

His mother smiled quizzically at me. "Your lesson hit three ways," she said. "I didn't stop to think that he couldn't see anything but his hands. I'm sorry, son, that I said you were lying to me. Now go and wash yourself, and put on a clean pair of rompers."

"You will find the mirror better than punishing," I said. "And don't call the children vain, and make them self-conscious, when they look in it to see if they are all right. Just teach them to criticise that image, and try to improve upon it."

TAKING SPECIAL COURSE AT SUMMER SCHOOL

Mortimer J. Klingon of Colchester, Connecticut, has registered for special courses at the Summer Session of Boston University. Mr. Klingon is specializing in commercial law and accounting.

980 students are taking courses in the Summer Session, a slight increase over last year's record enrollment. Although the majority come from New England, 31 different states and 10 foreign countries are represented among the student body. 137 courses are being given by a faculty of 68 members, which includes in addition to regular members of the Boston University faculty, professors from Brown, Simmons, Wellesley, and the University of California, and prominent educators from New York and Boston.

THE BOY THAT FAILED

FATHER had planned a brilliant future for him. Mother's high hopes for his success were supported ably by her everlasting faith in him.

But the boy was a bitter disappointment. He was being outdistanced steadily by his schoolmates, was dull, listless all the time, "felt sick" most of the time, never had "pep" for play nor ambition for his future.

Father had about given him up. Poor mother's heartstrings were nearing the breaking point. Evidently, it was not to be.

Then an old friend of the family—a man successful in every sense—came to the boy's rescue. Today, the father is proud of the boy who is indeed a joy to his mother.

It was simply a case of poor digestion, sluggish liver and constipation gradually dulling the senses and poisoning the system.

Knowing from experience that Beecham's Pills were harmless as well as efficient, the old friend suggested them. They made the boy well—as they have hosts of other children, and grown-ups, too, who suffered from like disorders.

BRING COURT ACTION TO CLOSE ELIZABETH STREET PLAYGROUNDS

Seven property owners and residents in the vicinity of the Elizabeth street playgrounds have applied to the superior court for an injunction to restrain the City and Town of Norwich from further use of the Elizabeth street playgrounds as a playground. Judge Avery of the superior court has named August 7, at 10 a. m., as the date for a hearing on the application in the superior court room and the hearing will be conducted before Judge Allyn L. Brown.

Complaint is made in the application that proper discipline has not been provided at the play center, that the children trespass and destroy property and that they use loud, vile and obscene language.

The complainants in the action are William W. Ives, Charles W. Robinson, Sarah Y. Robinson, Helen Murphy, Mary J. Murphy, James Sullivan and Mary A. Sullivan. All the plaintiffs live in the immediate vicinity of the school yard and some own property adjoining the playground.

The plaintiffs complain that "the said city has failed and neglected to provide proper discipline" among the children and "while they are in said school yard they are permitted to conduct themselves in a boisterous unruly manner, by continuously throwing balls on said adjoining property of the plaintiffs and in recovering same continuously trespass on said property; by throwing stones and other missiles on said property; by climbing upon, breaking, injuring and damaging the fences on said property; by climbing the fruit trees, destroying the fruit on said fruit trees; by depositing personal filth on said property; by shouting, hooting, using vile and obscene language, by beating drums and making other loud noises."

The plaintiffs further claim that the "comfortable enjoyment of their homes is rendered impossible; they are unable to obtain proper rest and relaxation; they are caused great annoyance, inconvenience and discomfort."

The complaints state that they have "notified the defendants that such use of the school property was a nuisance and requested them to discontinue its use as a playground, but the defendants have refused to so discontinue such use and threaten to continue its use as a playground."

Brown and James are attorneys for the plaintiffs.

RADIO OWNERS PLEASED WITH "QUIET HOURS"

News that amateur operators have been notified by the radio service department of commerce to observe the quiet hours, between 8 and 10.30 o'clock each night has been received by many radio owners of Norwich with the utmost satisfaction.

Like in every other game there are some people who take advantage of others and literally "hog" the thing. This has happened in Norwich, it is claimed by many radio owners. Some amateurs open up and blaze away for several hours, not caring a "hoot" whether anyone else in the city hears the programmes coming in, or not.

It is understood that some of these "road-hogs" of radio have been asked to cut down on their racket in the evening so the many beautiful musical numbers can be picked up by local stations. It is claimed these people have told the person making the request to sell his radio, that the air is free and that they will continue to use it while others hear nothing night after night but a buzz, and a lot of useless conversation.

Now, all amateurs, in receiving back their station license find when they return that certain amendments have been stamped on them which tell them that they must observe quiet hours from 8 p. m. until 10.30 p. m. These quiet hours were first started by amateurs who realized that they interfered with programmes being broadcasted and then the department of commerce made it a ruling and now all have to observe quiet hours. These hours also include the Sunday morning radio church service.

However, with the losing of a few hours each night the amateur stations gain in another way. Through the efforts of the American Radio Relay League, the amateur instead of being assigned 200 metres wave length is privileged to operate between 150 and 200 metres, thus cutting down on interference among themselves, also the further below 200 metres he gets, the further he is from the wave lengths of the sending stations for nightly programmes.

The Norwich Radio club is now observing the quiet hours and is affiliated with the American Radio Relay League. There are also about eight or ten private stations in Norwich, with others nearby.

BIRTHS IN THIS STATE SHOW SLIGHT DECREASE

According to the current issue of the monthly bulletin issued by the state department of health returns were made during the month of May for 2,531 births in this state.

One year ago there were 2,595—a decrease of 64. The total decrease so far this year, corrected to include late reports, is 860, compared with 1922. The decrease of 1922 compared with 1921 was 1,281. The total number of births for January to May, 1923, inclusive, is 12,360. The average number of births for the first five months of the year over the period of 1918-1922 is 14,100. The accumulated total, therefore, this year is 1,740 below the average, a negative percentage deviation of 12.34. In view of the magnitude of numbers under discussion, this deviation is large.

The average number of births for the month of May, 1918-1922, is 2,852. May this year is therefore 321 below the average—a negative percentage deviation of 11.26 which is also large. While it is entirely arbitrary to set any limits for percentage deviations from the average, a deviation of 5 per cent might be reasonably expected, in the figures above, but deviations greater than 5 per cent are to be considered abnormal.

Fourteen of the 31 towns and cities over 10,000 population reported more births for 1922 than in 1923 and the following reported increases of 10 or more, the figures after each city being the actual increases: Derby 18; Hartford 41; New Britain 22; New Haven 39; Stamford 32.

95 stillbirths were reported compared with 101 a year ago. Combining living births and stillbirths 3.62 per cent. of this total were stillbirths. One year ago the figures were 3.75.

RESERVE OFFICERS ASKED TO HELP RECRUIT ARMY

Reserve officers of the regular army in this city, as well as throughout the state, have received from the adjutant general's office in Washington letters requesting assistance in recruiting the regular army. In part the Adjutant General's letter is as follows:

During the present fiscal year which expires on June 30, 1924, there will be separated from the Army some 74,000 enlisted men mostly on account expiration of their terms of service. Of these about 50,000 will be separated by January 1, 1924. Some of these men were enlisted through the untiring efforts of many of you now in the Reserve Corps who were then in active service.

The authorized strength of the Army is 125,000 men, while the actual strength is now only 112,000. With the limited funds and facilities for recruiting and the consequent lack of opportunity of presenting this situation to the patriotic youth of the country, the problem of filling these vacancies is a large one. Much assistance in solving it can be rendered the War Department by members of the Officers' Reserve Corps who, due to their knowledge of military matters, realize the importance of maintaining the permanent establishment at a strength sufficient to adequately and efficiently perform the duties imposed upon it by law.

Interest in the annual outing of the Norwich Fish & Game association has been raised to fever heat as reports have come in that several big catches of bass have been made at Gardner Lake during the past few days.

George Pillar of Bozrah and friends are the cause of much of the excitement for these Nimrods went out Monday and after anchoring in the favorite spot threw in the bait. As a result of the trip a black bass weighing 4¾ pounds was landed after a long fight, that only the small mouthed bass can give, and the big fellow was brought to this city by Mr. Pillar and placed on display in a window of the Lee Osgood store, attracting much attention.

Although Mr. Pillar landed the 4¾ pound bass little has been said about the other dozen bass he and his friends brought in, averaging 1 pound to 1½ pounds. These were all nice catches and show that there are still some fine bass to be caught at Gardner Lake.

In connection with the outing of the Fish and Game association each year prizes are offered for the biggest bass landed and it is probable that a bass will have to go much better than 2 pounds if it will bring in the coveted prize this year.

Members will go to the lake early in the morning to get a good start for the fishing trip, while others will go out later. At noon the annual chowder is to be served and in the afternoon there will be casting contests, with the lead and with flies. Other interesting exhibitions will be in casting for accuracy, the totals to be added, best average winning prize. These events always attract attention as there is considerable rivalry between the members of the association, to demonstrate their ability to handle the rod and line.

Gardner Lake will also have other attractions on Sunday as C. V. Perdieton will be host to the Hupmobile men of the state at his cottage. As usual there will be the fishing trips and the annual chowder and corn bake at noon. This outing is looked forward to with pleasure every year by members of the "Hup" association.

HOBART AVE. RESIDENTS COMPLAIN OF PLAYGROUND

Property owners and residents in the vicinity of the Hobart avenue playground are complaining about the noise, property damage and obscene language at that play center. One property owner there said late Tuesday afternoon that a petition was to be circulated during the evening for signatures and that the petition is to be presented to the court of common council at its meeting next Monday evening asking the council to close up the Hobart avenue playgrounds. He also stated that superior court action similar to that taken in the case of the Elizabeth street grounds was being considered.

PUBLIC HEARING ON BANK STREET PARKING

New London, July 31.—The city council held a brief meeting last evening and Councilor Fox presided in the absence of Mayor Murray. There were but five members present as Councilor Clark was also absent. An ordinance to govern the licensing of amusements at Ocean Beach was to have come before the council, but because the attorney who has the interests of the parties particularly interested at the beach and who seek the greatest liberties had been away from town Councilor Thompson asked that the consideration of the ordinance should be deferred till next week, and that action was taken.

Councilor Thompson called up the matter of parking on Bank street and Councilor Fox suggested that a public hearing should be held. It was decided to have the hearing next Monday evening during the session of the council that all who desire to be heard shall have the opportunity to express their ideas.

UNABLE TO SLEEP—DEPRESSED AND NERVOUS

Quickly Relieved by Wincarnis

"For several years I had been in a weak and run-down condition. I had frequent fainting spells which always left me almost completely exhausted. I suffered so with nervousness that the least little thing would make me jump and it got to be almost impossible for me to get a good night's sleep. I would get terrible fits of depression which would last for days. I had taken doctors' medicines and tonics without number, but nothing seemed to do me much good.

I saw Wincarnis advertised and decided to try a bottle. In an incredibly short time I got back my strength, my nervousness disappeared and I could sleep as peacefully as a child. I really believe Wincarnis is the greatest of all tonics.

ARE WOMEN OVERWORKED

Yes, hundreds of thousands of them are. This applies to the housewife and mother who struggles on a small income to make both ends meet by doing all the washing, ironing, cooking, making and mending for a large family. There are others who not only support themselves working in factories, shops, stores and offices, but often have an invalid father and mother to support, therefore do housework beside. These are the women who break down early and are afflicted with various forms of female weakness. Ninety-eight out of every 100 women who have tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have proved that it is a successful remedy for woman's ills. For nearly fifty years it has been restoring women to health, and it will pay every ailing woman to try it.

SUDDEN DEATH OF NEW LONDON WOMAN

Miss Annie Peelo, 19, of No. 21 Shaw street, New London, died Tuesday morning at her home following a long illness. She recently returned from the Norwich State Hospital and Tuesday morning arose as usual. A short time afterwards she returned to bed and was found lifeless by a member of the household, death resulting, it is believed from heart trouble.

In the days of Queen Elizabeth ladies wore wonderfully decorated leather thimbles, which covered the whole finger, as ornaments.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Repeating a trip that proved very enjoyable last year, the Ponemah Wheel club of Taftville is coming to Wildwood park Sunday, Aug. 19, for the annual outing of the organization. President John B. Benoit says that this outing will surpass any in the history of the club, oldest of its kind in the country.

At this early date 35 machines have been secured for the trip and many more are expected to be added by the day of the outing. This procession of cars will come rolling through Danielson in the late forenoon. The procession will be headed by a motor bus carrying Tubbs' band, of Norwich, which has been engaged for the day. Supt. Robert T. Hurley of the state police department has agreed to assign a state police officer as escort for the cavalcade and he will be on duty with the Taftville boys throughout the day.

Sports will occupy a goodly portion of the day.

The Ponemah Wheel club will be welcomed in this territory. This fine aggregation of men when they came here last year left a splendid impression.

More trout from the state hatchery are due in Danielson today. Harold E. Atwood of the Danielson Rod and Gun club said Tuesday that he had been informed by telephone that another large shipment has been consigned to Danielson for release in the brooks in Killingly, Plainfield, Brooklyn, Canterbury and other surrounding towns. It is likely that this shipment will number close to 3,000 fingerlings. But this is not all. Another shipment has been promised for later in the season. Also the Danielson Rod and Gun club has entered into a plan with the state fish and game commission under which the club will pay the shipping charges on 3500 trout that will measure from four to six inches in length. The state has acquired these trout from a Rhode Island hatchery. The club will merely pay the cost of getting them into this territory and take care of the distribution.

It will be evident from what has been done this month and what is to be done today and in the next few weeks marks the most elaborate restocking operations undertaken with eastern Windham county brooks in more than a score of years. It is not unlikely that as many as 40,000 to 50,000 young trout will have been released in the territory before early fall, and for this the credit goes to the Danielson Rod and Gun club, cooperating with the state fish and game commission.

A monster 'bus is to be added to the service being maintained by Herbert F. Barnett of this place over the state highways between Danielson and Providence and Willimantic. Delivery of this bus is expected about Sept. 1. Mr. Barnett said Tuesday. It has 190-inch wheel base and a capacity of 30 people. It is equipped with 36-6 pneumatic cord tires forward and dual 36x6 cord tires in the rear, this equipment affording the maximum of riding comfort.

The bus has an aisle running through the center, seats after the style of a trolley car and upholstered in fine leather. The big machine has fine windows, will be cool and airy in the summer and cozy in winter, for its appointments include a heating plant. There are seven interior lights.

Purchase of this big and modern bus is to handle the steadily growing traffic on the lines served by the Barnett routes—these lines cutting across country not served by steam or trolley lines.

Brooklyn has done well in its efforts to aid the Nurses' Home fund of the Day Kimball hospital. Up to Tuesday afternoon that community and organizations within had raised approximately $250. None of this money has been turned into the treasurer of the fund yet, but it will go in with more to be raised some time during August. Brooklyn is one organization that has voted a unit of $50.

Tomorrow (Thursday) will find hundreds headed toward East Killingly for the annual Old Home day celebration. Preparations for the event were under way Tuesday. Exercises incident to the observance of the day are to be held at the United Baptist church on the hill.

With the arrival of August, interest of members of the Service battery is heightening in their coming trip to Virginia for a two weeks' tour of duty at Camp Eustis. Within the next two weeks it is anticipated that the battery will be recruited to its full authorized strength. The trip south is certain to be an interesting one and in addition to this the members of the battery will be paid for the time they are away.

Deposits made on or before the fifth day of August in the savings department of the Windham County National bank will draw interest from the first day of August, at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum. The dividend on your deposit is already earned, waiting to be paid on December 1st.—adv.

Pity the Maine man, touring through this section with his car, on a business trip, who came to Chief John McFarland to tell his troubles. He had sent home a suit to have it pressed and cleaned and neglected to remove his automobile registration and operators' license from the pocket. Now he is en route home in constant fear of being held up by some officer who will want to see his authority to drive.

Armand Bishop, Edgar Meunier and Delor Baribeault have been named as a committee of the Service battery, 192d Field Artillery, to organize singing in the battery.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Colvin have returned from a motor tour through northern New England and into Canada.

L. B. Harrison of Bangor, Me., was a visitor in Danielson Tuesday.

At a fair recently held in Brooklyn in the interest of Trinity Episcopal church about $215 net was realized, this regarded as exceptional success for the affair.

Thomas J. Aylward left Tuesday on a business trip to New Haven and Waterbury.

Rev. E. J. Shelley, M. S., assistant at St. James' church, is leaving this week for a stay at Littleton, N. H., in the White mountain region.

Daniel A. Peterson of New Bedford was in Danielson Tuesday on a business trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Duprey and Miss Rose Benac have returned from a vacation spent at White Beach, on Cape Cod.

Thomas Day, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. G. O. Thomas, is among the Danielson boys who have been spending two weeks at Camp Woodstock, the Y. M. C. A. location on Black pond. All the Danielson boys who have been at this camp are delighted with it. Some have learned to swim and all have had splendid experience, from the strict routine of camp life as well as with its diversions, which include sports, hikes, boating, etc., all under the closest supervision of competent leaders.

John S. Dinwiddie of Springfield was a visitor with friends in Danielson Tuesday.

Baseball interest seems to have taken a permanent slump in Danielson for this season. Most of teams satisfactory to the public is so high that enough patronage cannot be attracted to make baseball a profitable venture, or save it from being a losing one.

PUTNAM

That a new block on the site of the former Donahue Block, destroyed by fire on the morning of February 22nd, is soon to become a reality is evidenced by the sharp reports of blasts necessary in blowing out a ledge in the cellar. This is in order that the basement may be the better utilized, as before there was but small cellar space.

Mrs. Herbert Miles and children are occupying a camp at Center Harbor on the shore of Lake Sunapee, N. H. Mr. Miles makes week-end trips to the camp in his automobile.

The fifth week of the sale of th series of shares in the Building & Loan association finds 269 shares sold.

For the first time in two years the manufacturers along the Quinebaug river have been bothered by lack of water. Some of the mills have had to adjust their hours to suit the flow of the river, beginning operations a little earlier in the morning. A small amount of time has been lost in some instances while other mills equipped with steam have resorted to this power.

Frank H. Cordier is erecting a building on Green Street which will be used as a printing office.

Marshall street, from Woodstock avenue to Providence street, is under construction and will soon be one of the finest streets in the city. A bed of crushed rock is being laid as a base for a substantial asphalt roadway. At present the street is impassible for vehicles and detours are necessary.

Gardens in Thompson, badly damaged by a hail storm a week ago, are showing some signs of improvement.

The recent rains have raised the streams and one effect has been that the water is flowing over the dam at the pumping station of the city's water supply at Harrisville and the water has lost its peaty taste. The new filteration plant is now well along toward completion and will be in use before the end of August. The plant is one of the most modern and when in use the water will be as nearly pure as it is possible to have it.

Wilfred Chapdelaine, clerk in the Putnam postoffice, is having his vacation. Letter Carrier George Clark returned from his vacation this Wednesday and carrier Dido Guertin began his vacation.

Rev. Charles F. Bedard, pastor of St. Mary's parish, is in receipt of a check for a thousand dollars from the Putnam Manufacturing Company. The donation is toward the expense of erecting the new parochial school building, now nearing completion, and the renovation and repair of the old building which is also to be used. The improvement in school facilities now under way will entail an expenditure of over $100000. The new building will contain twelve class rooms. Last year there were over nine hundred pupils enrolled in the school and it is expected that in the fall there will be one thousand children to house. All of the families in the mill village of the Putnam Manufacturing Company send their children to this school and it is doubtless in recognition of the attempt to have the school equal to any in the city that the donation was forthcoming.

Guy L. Baker has moved from the E. B. Kent house on Grove street to a new home on Mechanic street. The tenement left vacant is to be occupied by Dr. Karl K. Phillips and family. The Phillips family have been living in the house of A. Verbedian on Grove street and this will shortly be occupied by C. C. Talbot and family.

Alexander Gilman and family are on an automobiling camping trip through New Hampshire and Maine. When last heard from they were in camp at Alton Bay, N. N., from where they will go to Sebago Lake, Me.

The public swimming hole is now in use. The dam is completed and the water backs up, making a stretch of four to five hundred yards long, about five feet at the deepest point.

The youngsters of Putnam now have a good safe place in which to swim. This was made possible through the generosity of Henry Keech, who owns the land about the old swimming hole known as "Fourteiottes" and who allowed it to be used without charge, and through the expenditure of a sufficient sum to build the dam by Putnam Lodge of Elks. The Elks also provided a guard to see that children keep out of danger and to preserve order. Harvey Delarme, a Putnam young man, has been appointed to this duty.

The swimming hole is on the stream known as the Little River. Its source is Roseland Lake, the same source as Putnam's water supply a mile or more above. It is possibly a half a mile from the outlet into the Quinebaug river. There are no factories on the stream and the water is not contaminated as is the Quinebaug river, made useless as a place to swim years ago on account of the oil and effluents poured into it from the mills along its banks.

No bathing houses have been erected yet, but this will be accomplished later. The possibilities of the location are excellent.

With some excavation a fine beach can be made as the soil about the river bank is sandy. There is a surrounding flat, level area where years ago Putnam's first golf course was laid out.

He was tried Tuesday by Justice Quinn at the home of Grand Juror MacDonald, and was fined $33.75. Deputy Warden Palmer took the rifle and sent it to Hartford, according to the law.

WESTERLY

The building plans for the new hospital to serve Westerly and vicinity, as well as the approaching campaign for raising the building fund, were unanimously approved by a meeting of doctors from Westerly and neighboring communities, Monday evening, at the Colonial Club.

A hospital committee, it is pointed out, was appointed about four years ago by the Washington County Medical Society to look into the matter of a hospital for that district.

The committee recently went over the plans for the new building, and Dr. Champlin tonight reported that it approved them thoroughly, except for such modifications as would naturally be necessary when the time for actual construction is reached.

The doctors showed considerable interest in the architect's blueprints of the new building and in the explanation given them of the methods to be used in raising the $250,000 building fund by popular subscription.

On motion of Dr. Champlin it was unanimously resolved "that the meeting approve the plans and drawings of the proposed new hospital and that the meeting in all respects approve and endorse the campaign for the raising of the funds for its construction."

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Starr and son of Providence were week end guests at the Rhode Island hotel, returning Monday. Mrs. Starr was formerly Rose Champlin of Block Island.

Numerous complaints have been received from poultry raisers on the outskirts of Westerly concerning the depredations of foxes which in some cases have been costly to the raisers of turkeys and other fowls. In other places especially along the Post road raisers of garden produce complain that deer have made serious onslaughts, resulting on some nights in the cleaning out entirely of some garden vegetables Tuesday night. William Gavitt while waiting with shotgun for a fox was just too late for his quarry but killed a skunk, which at this time of the year would not hesitate to advance on the hunter.

WESTERLY CITIZENS CONDEMN HIGHWAY CONTROL SYSTEM

Westerly, July 31—Management and results obtained by the Westerly highway commissioners in their handling of road matters in and about Westerly emae in for a full measure of condemnation by the citizens and taxpayers of Westerly Tuesday evening in the council chamber at the Westerly Town hall. An open meeting had been called by the Westerly Town council for the consideration of highway matters by a council vote at its regular July session held on Monday, July 2. At that meeting it was also voted that the town should have a constructive program to present to the citizens to the above mentioned open meeting.

With every seat in the house filled and citizens standing so that the doors ways and corridors were jammed, shortly after 7.30 o'clock Council chairman Clifford Campbell called the meeting to order. There were present, Councilmen Rossi, Fowler and Smith; also Town Solicitors Ferguson, Council Clerk Whipple and Councilman Utter.

Hotel, vitualising and tea room licenses were voted F. C. Buffum, J. Leo Rowan, John D. Traggis and A. E. Murphy.

Chairman Campbell, stating the reason for the meeting recognized Harry A. Milner. Mr. Milner said that not knowing what authority this meeting had to act on the subject he presented the following which he said might lead to a discussion. Do away with the present system of control of the highways in the town of Westerly.

The tax payers of the town of Westerly do agree to the naming of a committee of three tax payers of the town of Westerly in the following manner: the Westerly board of trade to name one member, the Westerly Town council to name one member, the Watch Hill Fire district. Pleasant View fire district and the Weekapaug improvement society, collectively to name one member. No member of this committee to be a member of the Westerly Town council.

The taxpayers of the town of Westerly to instruct and impower the above committee to engage the services of a capable road engineer at a salary not to exceed $5000 per year, and for a period not to exceed two years.

The road engineer engaged to have sole control and full management of all tools, road machinery, repairs, improvements, new construction, side walks and all highway employes.

The above committee together with the appointed road engineer to make a report upon the condition of the highways in the town of Westerly and to recommend to the tax payers that a special financial town meeting the best means and amount of moneys needed to put the highways in the town of Westerly in proper repair. This new road program to be completed within two years.

Every two years a new committee to be named as in proposition two. Said committee to decide whether the services of the road engineer shall be continued for another two years, and if not, they shall have power to secure the services of a new engineer.

Mr. Miller stated that the absence of the road commission was a good example of the manner in which they are evading responsibility and showed the necessity of placing others in control who have the public welfare more at heart.

It was voted that a public hearing be held in the town hall two weeks from tonight (Tuesday, Aug. 14) and that those citizens present representing the town of Westerly respectfully request the members of the highway commission to attend and answer such questions as may properly be asked.

Get Rid of That Bad Back!

Is a dull, constant backache spoiling your summer? Do sharp pains stab you at every sudden move? Are you so lame, tired and discouraged it seems you just can't keep going? Then you know something is wrong and you should lose no time correcting it. More than likely it's your kidneys. When the kidneys weaken, poisons overload the system and cause many mysterious aches and ills. Your back aches; you are lame, stiff and rheumatic; your head aches; you are dizzy and apt to have annoying bladder irregularities. You feel nervous and depressed—utterly worn-out and miserable. Read How These Norwich Folks Found Relief:

GEORGE CONRAD, Motorman, 211 Palmer St., says: "I have had attacks of lumbago at times caused by the constant jarring of the car. Some mornings when I first get up my back was lame and sore. I had severe pains that felt as sharp as a needle, cutting through my kidneys. I had dizzy spells, too. A friend advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I did. They have always cured such attacks."

MRS. E. H. CHAPMAN, 12 Stanton St., says: "I was feeling miserable with my back. I didn't know what caused the trouble but I made up my mind it came from my kidneys. Every move felt as though a knife were cutting into my back. When I moved quickly, I felt dizzy. A friend knew of my condition and told me to try Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's gave me great relief. I have had to use Doan's only once in a while since and they have always given the same good benefit."

E. S. BENNETT, carpenter, 465 Main St., says: "My back has troubled me aching a good deal. My work required considerable stooping and lifting. This seemed to aggravate the trouble, and pains caught me across my back. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and one box acted very quickly and relieved the trouble. I recommend Doan's as I feel they will help others."

MARKET WAS WEAK

New York, July 31.—Fresh weakness developed in today's stock market as a result of the overnight turn for the worse of President Harding's condition. Speculators for the decline again offered large blocks of stocks, which were increased by the offerings of frightened investors. Losses of 1 to 4 points took place in most of the speculative favorites, the average of industrial stocks again establishing a new low record for the year.

Selling pressure was most effective against the oil, sugar, steel, equipment and automomotive stocks although a large number of rails and other industrials registered substantial recessions on the day.

Liquidation of the oil shares, which has been in progress for some time because of the unfavorable conditions in the industry, assumed large proportions in a few issues today on reports that recently formed pools were breaking up after an unsuccessful campaign to boost prices. Cosden broke more than 3 points to 30 1-4, a new low and then rallied to 31. Losses of 2 points or more also were established by Pan American, Houston, and Marland.

Further reductions in the prices of raw and refined sugar brought fresh selling into the sugar shares, Manati breaking 3 1-2 points on one transaction and American, American Beet, Suban American and Cuba Cane common and preferred and Punta Alegre yielding 1 to 3 points.

U. S. Steel, common, touched 85 1-2, another low for the year. The quarterly report issues after the market closed showed total tarnings of $47,353,181 as against $84,780,069 in the previous quarter. E. H. Gary, chairman of the board, in commenting on the steel business, declared that he was well satisfied with present conditions and that while there has been a seasonable diminution in new business the corporation's plants could operate at practically full capacity for a long period, if orders continued as large as they were at present.

Baldwin broke 3 1-2 points to 111¼, also a new low while Studebaker, Chandler, Stromberg Carburetor, Mack Truck, Davison Chemical and a number of other active issues were off 4 points or more.

In the railroad group new lows were established by St. Paul common and preferred, Atchison, Missouri Pacific common and preferred and Texas and Pacific while Great Northern preferred and Northern Pacific duplicated their previous minimum prices.

Call money held at 6 per cent. all day, the high rate also influencing selling to some extent although it was regarded as incidental to month-end settlements. The time money and commercial paper markets were quiet with no change in rates.

Foreign exchange displayed a heavy tone. Demand sterling was off nearly a cent at $4.56 1-4 and French francs were five points lower at 5.81 cents. German marks were again below $1 a million.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, July 31.—Wheat averaged higher in price today, largely as a result of absence of any heavy selling either of a hedging character, or in the nature of speculation. With no special incentive to market wheat quickly, it was expected that receipts hereafter would be rather light. The close was unsettled, ranging from 2-3c net decline to 1-3c advance, with September 96 5-8 to 96 3-4, and December 1.00 to 1.00 1-8. Corn finished at 2-3c off to a gain of 2 cents, oats varying from 1-8 a 1-4c lower, to 1 1-4c up, and provisions unchanged to 10c down.

Commission house buying of wheat was of liberal volume at times but demand appeared to wane on the resulting advance in price. Unfavorable weather in the northwest, together with bullish crop reports from both sides of the Canadian line, was responsible for much of the buying, and in addition there was a good deal of month-end evening-up of accounts on the part of previous sellers. Furthermore, northwestern mills are said to be taking more or less hard winter wheat from the southwest, and the world's available supply showed a decrease for the week, with the total estimated as 2,000,000 bushels less than was the case a year ago.

In the final dealings, profit-taking on the part of early buyers led to a downturn. Besides, some attention was being given to assertions that vessels rates on the Great Lakes are so high that considerable accumulation of what here may result. For the first time in many years at this season, the lake and rail rate is higher than all-rail.

Corn at the last reached a goal which had long been predicted by bulls—80 cents a bushel for July delivery, the highest point on the crop. Available stocks of corn are about 20,000,000 bushels less than last year, and oats stocks 24,000,000 bushels less.

Provisions were dull, but were steadied by firmness of hog values.

BOND MARKET

New York, July 31.—Bond prices continued reactionary in today's trading, moderate advances in the late dealings failing to overcome earlier losses.

Austria 7's touched a new low at 88 1-2 and Holland American 6's, off 1 1-2, also established a new bottom price. Gains of a point each were registered in the foreign group by Chinese 5's, Rio de Janeiro 8's, of 1947, and French 7 1-2's. Activie United States government bonds held within narrow limits. The tax exempt 3 1-2's moved up 1-32 of a point, second and third Libertys were unchanged, and the others were off fractionally.

Losses of a point or more were recorded in the railroad group by Missouri Pacific 4's, Illinois Central 5 1-2's, and St. Paul refunding 5's. Industrial ilens were also heavy, Eastern Cuba Sugar 7 1-2's losing 2 1-4, Virginia Carolina Chemical 7 1-2's, 2 1-8, Empire Gas & Fuel 7 1-2's, 1 1-2, and New York Telephone 6's of 1941, and Cuba Cane Sugar 8's, 1 each.

CURB MARKET

New York, July 31. The trend of prices again today was reactionary in the trading on the New York curb market. Chief pressure was exerted against the oils with industrials yielding by somewhat smaller figures.

Prairie Oil & Gas and Solar Refining each fell off 5 points, and Swan and Finch yielded four points. Losses of a point or more were registered in this group by cities service, Galena Signal, Imperial Oil of Canada, Standard of Indiana, and Vacuum. Ohio Oil was pushed down 3 3-4.

After the initial heaviness moderate rallies were recorded by industrials but last hour pressure sent them off on the day. Durant Motors receded a point and Stutz and and Cleveland closed fractionally lower. The coal stocks also gave way, both Glen Alden and Reading coal rights easing fractionally.

Mining shares moved irregularly within narrow limits.

There was an abundance of other good things to eat. Through the courtesy of Proprietor Schults the grangers ate their dinner in the building as the weather was threatening.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Announcement

Thomas and Michael Duff, formerly of Taftville have just purchased the well known Nooseneck Inn at Nooseneck, R. I., formerly owned by Levi Smith, and well known for its famous chicken and steak dinners. The Duff brothers are well known in this section, both boys played baseball in the old Connecticut league. Thomas pitched on the Norwich club and Michael played third base on the Meriden club. Their many friends in and around Norwich wish them success in their new business.

Breed Theatre

Described as one of those rare photoplay dramas certain to strike home with the great majority of picturegoers, and with an almost unlimited appeal to all classes, "A Woman's Woman," a Charles Gibiyn production, is announced as the feature attraction coming to the Breed theatre today and Thursday.

With Mary Alden heading an all-star cast "A Woman's Woman" is rated by competent critics as an intensely human domestic drama, which right at the start, takes hold of the spectators' interest and never for a moment allows this interest to slacken. The acting of all the cast is excellent, and Mr. Gibiyn's direction is such as to cause those viewing the picture actually to feel the emotions and impulse being shown on the screen. The story flows along as smoothly as can be imagined, and there is never a break in continuity.

For the second feature William Duncan will be seen in The Silent Vow, a picture of the great outdoors and Movie Chats completes the bill.

Vaudeville at Strand Thursday, Friday and Saturday

Another perfect program of B. F. Keith vaudeville is to be presented at the Strand theatre for the last half of this week. There will be four real snappy acts.

The European war was a pleasant jaunt for "Sonny" McTavish.

But—

When he got back to his home town, expecting to be a hero, he found that the War Department had announced that he was buried in the Argonne. And then his troubles began.

Someone foisted off a strange baby on him, the hotel made him pay his bills in advance, his girl went around town on the other fellow's arm wearing a strange diamond ring, the town loanshark tried to steal the doughboy-cowboy's $50,000 inheritance, tank bandits slapped a dozen bullets at his head, others stole his clothes and money, home town folks accused him of kidnapping, station masters and strange women made him miss his trains, sheriffs and detectives followed him until his life was like a bad dream, old friends called him an impostor, others told him to stay dead, banks refused to honor his drafts, sheriffs handcuffed him, while savage policemen finally threw him into jail.

It's a fine time—not!—that Sonny McTavish (Douglas MacLean) has in "The Sunshine Trail." Thomas H. Ince's screamingly funny western comedy-drama will be the photoplay feature for the last half of this week.

POETRY

THE LAST BUCCANEER

The winds were yelling, the waves were swelling,
The sky was black and drear.
When the crew with eyes of flame brought the ship without a name
Alongside the last Buccaneer.

"Whence flies your sloop full sail before so fierce a gale,
When all other drive bare on the seas?
Say, come ye from the shore of the hold Salvador,
Or the gulf of the rich Caribbees?"

"From a shore no search hath found, from a gulf no line can sound,
Without rudder or needle we steer;
Above, below our bark dies the sea-fowl and the shark,
As we fly by the last Buccaneer.

"Tonight there shall be heard on the rocks of Cape de Verde
A loud crash and a louder roar;
And tomorrow shall the deep with a heavy moaning sweep
The corpses and wreck to the shore."

The state ship of Clyde securely now may ride
In the breath of the citron shades;
And Severn's towering mast securely now bless fast,
Through the seas of the balmy Trades

From St. Jago's wealthy port, from Havannah's royal fort,
The seaman goes forth without fear;
For since that stormy night not a mortal hath had sight
Of the flag of the last Buccaneer.

Thomas Babington Macaulay.

From "THE BUILDING OF THE SHIP"

Like unto ships far off at sea,
Outward or homeward bound are we.
Before, behind and all around,
Floats and swings the horizon's bound.
Seems at its distant rim to rise
And climb the crystal wall of the skies.
And then again to turn and sink,
As if we could slide from its outer brink
Ah! it is not the sea,
It is not the sea that sinks and shelves,
But ourselves
That rock and rise
With endless and uneasy motion,
Now touching the very skies,
Now sinking into the depths of ocean.
Ah! if our souls but poise and swing
Like the compass in its brazen ring,
Ever level and ever true
To the toil and the peril we have to do,
We shall sail securely, and safely reach
The Fortunate Isles, the Islands shining beach
The sights we see, and the sounds we hear,
Will be those of joy and not of fear.

Longfellow.

In many parts of South America the people hold a civil engineer in such great esteem that when they call a man a doctor without any qualification they mean that he is a doctor, not of medicine, but of engineering.

The most valuable carriage in the world is preserved in the palace of Trianon at Versailles. It was constructed for Charles X of France. From pole to thind wheels the vehicle is thickly covered with gold, and it cost more than $200,000.

TAFTVILLE

A very enjoyable event took place at the Ivoryridge last Sunday when the Lafayette club held its annual clambake. All of the 35 members were transported by trucks and autos. There never was an event held by the club which presented so many mirth producing incidents, according to the real true members. Those who were athletically inclined had every opportunity of showing their wares, and the Married Men proved themselves superior to the Single Men in every competition. Two old timers, Augustin Paradis and Stanislas Benac, distinguished themselves by being invincible at rope pulling. It was Arthur Auger who has quite a "rep" as a comedian, who caused the best laugh of the day when he challenged the three next men to meet him at a tug-o-war. The odds were against him and he lost, although he might have won if he had not been inclined to push the rope forward instead of pulling backward. In fact, he was so anxious to win, instead of pull, that he pulled some feet. Altogether it was a real old fashioned good time and all the members expressed themselves well satisfied. The committee in charge was Arthur Ouimet, chairman; Albani Boisquest, secretary; Arthur Auger, Conrad Dubreuil, Sidney Lepine, Arthur Gauthier, Joseph Gauthier, Willie Lepine, John St. Pierre, Emil Belfroy, Louis Belfroy, Pierre Gauthier, M. Jermain and H. Bernard served the bake.

Representatives of twenty-three village organizations have formed the Taftville Field Day Association, with the intention of staging the biggest holiday in the near future that this locality has ever seen. The success of such a proposition is already assured, by the large number of societies interested, and the organization of those who are working on the various committees. Officers elected Friday evening at a meeting of the association in the rooms of Ponemah Council No. 34, K. of C., are as follows: President, John B. Benoit; vice president, William Smith; secretary, Herman Fontaine; treasurer, Eric Pepin.

LOCAL POLICE MADE TOTAL OF 135 ARRESTS DURING PAST MONTH

A total of 135 arrests were made by the local police in July, the month being one of the busiest of the year. Nearly one-half the total arrests were for intoxication charges and approximately one-third were made on breach of the peace charges. The police blotter shows that arrests were made on a score of different charges as follows:

Intoxication, 64; breach of the peace, 33; theft, 5; resisting an officer, 2; disorderly house, 1; non-support of family, 4; violation of the liquor law, 16; reckless driving of automobiles, 2; gambling, 2; violation of city ordinance 3; failing to obey an officer, 1; driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor, 2; evading automobile fare, 1; carrying concealed weapons, 1; theft of automobiles, 3; vagrancy, 7; violation of motor vehicle law, 4; violation of traffic laws, 2; embezzlement, 2; insane, 1.

The last day of the month was a quiet one for the police. Up to midnight there was but one prisoner listed for the day, he being gathered in on a charge of intoxication. During the evening several small boys were gathered in by the police for misdemeanors.

Two small boys were brought in for being careless with rocks and stones on Elm street. They were given some sound advice by Captain D. J. Twomey and Probation Officer Edwin Hill and were allowed to go home. Another boy brought in for stealing bananas from Hyman Bros.' fruit store on Market street. It is understood that the youthful prowler got into the store from the rear during the early evening and appropriated about a dozen bananas.

He was questioned by Captain Twomey and Probation Officer Edwin Hill and is said to have admitted that there was another boy with him. He was allowed to go home and his case will be taken up later by the officials.

GAVE BIRTHDAY PARTY FOR MRS. AUGUST HEBER

Mrs. August Heber was given a birthday party at her home at 10 Beech street Tuesday evening in honor of her 49th birthday. The house was attractively decorated with flowers and streamers which contributed considerably to the pleasure of the evening. The outstanding feature of the evening was a beautiful birthday cake with 49 candles. The hostess served ice cream, cake and coffee.

During the evening a pinochle tournament was in progress and the prize winners were as follows: First, Mrs. Marie Charnetski; second, Mrs. Charlotte Grodowski; third, Mrs. Anna Sikorski. Mrs. Heber was the recipient of many beautiful and useful gifts, including a diamond earring from her family and a cut glass water set from her friends.

COUPLE CELEBRATE THEIR 10TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Robbins of Westminster celebrated the tenth anniversary of their marriage at their home, Monday. They were the recipients of many appropriate gifts. Misses Laura and Viola Robbins entertained the guests by songs and music. A dainty luncheon was served for the many guests who included Mrs. Stahlberg and children of New York city, Mrs. Alec Helstrom, Harry Helstrom, and Miss Violet Helstrom of Lilac cottage. Mrs. Frank Linnell and Mrs. Agnes Wood.

ANNOUNCED ENGAGEMENT AT BIRTHDAY PARTY

Saturday evening, July 28th, Esther Maude Woodmansee celebrated her 20th birthday by entertaining 25 of her friends at her home on Gallup street, Plainfield. Games were played and refreshments were served by her mother, assisted by her aunt, Mrs. Everett Dawley.

During the evening Mr. Woodmansee announced the engagement of his daughter, Esther Maude to Herbert E. Gray of Jewett City. Miss Woodmansee received many beautiful gifts.

NORWICH WOMAN SUES HUSBAND FOR DIVORCE

Claiming cruelty and intemperance Stella L. Williams of this city has filed suit for divorce from her husband, Norman Williams. The papers in the case were filed Tuesday with the superior court clerk in this city. The couple were married September 8, 1917. Mrs. Williams' maiden name was Stella L. Carson. Cruelty since September 10, 1917, is charged.

Another meeting is to be held Friday evening, when the various committees will report on the progress made. The proceeds of this event will go to the Fourth of July celebration in 1924.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman L. Boehm have returned to their home in Lisbon after a few days' stay in Binghampton, N. Y.

A new porch is being built on one of the houses on South C street.

The Twilight game between the married men and the single men will be played on Thursday instead of Friday on the Providence street grounds. There is much rivalry between these two teams and a good game is expected.

NEW LAWS REGARDING SALE OF REVOLVERS

The police department has received copies of the act concerning the possession, sale and use of pistols and revolvers, passed at the last session of the legislature. The act is in twelve sections and covers the procedure in which permits to carry firearms may be secured and the fees and penalities provided by the law.

It forbids the carrying of a pistol or revolver without a permit, in or upon any vehicle or on one's person except when such person shall be within a dwelling house or place of business.

The act also provides that no person shall alter the name of the maker, model number, or other marks of identification on the pistol or revolver. The possession of any such weapon is prima facie evidence that the person owning or in possession of such revolver or pistol has changed, removed or obliterated the same. The penalty is as follows:

Any person violating any provision of section nine or eleven of this act shall be fined not more than one thousand dollars or imprisoned not more than five years, or both, and any person violating other provisions of this act shall be fined not more than five hundred dollars or imprisoned not more than three years, or both, and any pistol or revolver found in the possession of any person in violation of any provision of this act shall be forfeited.

ERECTING SOLDIERS' MEMORIAL TABLET AT PARADE

Work on the soldiers' memorial tablet to be placed on the triangle back of the Soldiers' Monument on Chelsea parade was started Tuesday and will be pushed as rapidly as possible.

The granite slab arrived Monday from Barre, Vt., and was brought to the grounds by Arthur H. Lathrop. The bronze tablets had already reached the city and are ready for erection. The monument is to have a concrete foundation, the bronze tablets to be placed on either side of the granite monument, the work being in charge of McGinn & Company of Boston. There are about 1400 names inscribed on the tablets.

The memorial is being erected by the town of Norwich, an appropriation having been made a year ago for the work.

NORWICH TOWN MAN DOUSED AT FIRE IN COLCHESTER

Concerning the fire in Colchester early this week a correspondent writes:

An amusing incident occurred when the clothes of one of the firemen, who was working on the roof, caught fire Jim McNulty of Norwich Town noticed the danger and cried out for a pail of water. A volunteer dashed up with a pail from the nearby stream and mistaking Mr. McNulty for the fireman emptied the contents which consisted in part of sand and mud upon the dumfounded Jim. Mr. McNulty took the mastake in good part.

BOYS' GROUP DISCUSSION HELD AT LOCAL Y. M. C. A.

Tuesday afternoon in the boys' lobby at the local Y. M. C. A. some fifteen boys sat in a circle and listened to and participated in an informal discussion. Secretary Hill led the discussion and Physical Director Fitz used the crayon. The topic for discussion was The Boy and the Watch. The boys were asked to name the various parts that constituted the make-up of a watch; they readily named many parts including the crystal, face, screws, case, jewels, gold, mainspring, gears, etc. Then the boys were asked which were the most important. The cast was eliminated as really not important; the crystal was thought not to be absolutely essential. Several parts were mentioned as very important, but the opinion of the majority was that the main spring was probably the most important of all. It was pointed out that you could tell whether a watch was right or not by looking at the face, so you can usually tell whether a boy is living right or not by looking at his face.

The group thought that the case and the works of the watch corresponded to a boy's body and his soul. The leader emphasized the thought that as the main spring of the watch was probably the most important, so a boy's conscience is, in a sense, the main spring of his life, and it is ever so necessary that his conscience be kept clean and clear; that his ideals must be high, and that his life must be centered in the great spiritual main spring of life, even in God as represented by Jesus Christ. The idea of these informal discussions is that between the hours of play and swimming at the "Y" these summer days, the lads may occasionally stop to be serious for a few moments.

PRESIDENT'S TEMPERATURE WAS NORMAL LAST NIGHT

Other Than a Slight Improvement in the Lung Condition, There Has Been No Marked Change in the Condition of the Patient—Received Setback Yesterday by a Temporary Attack of Indigestion—Is Slowly But Surely Winning His Way Back to Health.

Presidential Headquarters, Palace Hotel, San Francisco, August 1.—(By the A. P.)—President Harding was resting comfortably tonight after a day described by his physicians as "somewhat restless," but yet marked by many indications that he was slowly but surely winning his way back to health.

The restlessness of the day was in part due, it was said by the physicians, to a slight and only temporary attack of indigestion resulting from inability to assimilate two soft boiled eggs eaten for breakfast.

This unfavorable condition, however, was more than overbalanced by the decline of the president's temperature to normal for the first time.

Mention of both these elements in the president's condition was made by the attending physicians in a bulletin issued at 4.50 o'clock this evening. The bulletin added that there was evidence of "slight improvement" in the condition of the lungs, where central patches of broncho-pneumonia have existed since Monday. The pulse, according to the bulletin, had varied during the day from 116 to 120 and the respiration from 36 to 40.

OCCURRENCES OF INTEREST IN AND ABOUT SICK ROOM

Presidential Headquarters, Palace Hotel, San Francisco, Aug. 1.—(By the A. P.)—President Harding is slowly winning his way back to health.

Every official statement from the attending physician today contained evidences of improvement and every report from the sickroom told of steady progress. The result is that tonight the cautious physicians are almost ready to announce that all danger is passed. They recognize, however, as they said in a bulletin issued shortly after 10 o'clock today that "every care is necessary to assure freedom from further complications."

With this situation existing, there was a settling down during the day to the task of bringing about a complete recovery—a task that will require an indefinite number of days, most of which will be spent here in San Francisco.

The formal day bulletin spoke of the President as being "fairly comfortable," of the night's sleep which was the best he has obtained since he was taken ill, of less labored breathing, only a slight cough, regular and satisfactory elimination, and lung condition about the same as yesterday when it was said that there were evidences of subsidence of the central patches of broncho-pneumonia. It gave his temperature as 99 degrees, pulse 114 and respiration 36.

The amount of nourishment taken by the chief executive during the day still was small but as one of the physicians said, "quite sufficient." It continued to consist of milk, soft boiled eggs, a little toast and fruit juices. Elimination was satisfactory and for the first time it was described as "regular."

Another indication of progress was that he received his first visitor in two days, Mrs. E. E. Remberg of Santa Anna, California, his sister. She, with her daughters, Katherine and Nell Marie, arrived in San Francisco early in the day and shortly before noon she spent several minutes in her brother's room, but was requested by the physicians not to talk with him as it might tire him. She said there was indication that the President had been a "very sick man" but she left the sick room quite optimistic. Mrs. Harding, Mrs. Remsberg said, had stood the strain very well. It was learned from other sources that Brigadier General Sawyer, the President's personal physician, and Lieutenant Commander Joel T. Boone, assistant to Dr. Sawyer, are not unmindful that with the lessening of the strain, reactive effects of the President's illness might be felt by Mrs. Harding, who for the past year has been far from normal health.

Attorney General Dougherty also arrived during the day, having hurried here from Seattle when the President's illness became alarming. He spent some time in the President's suit. Although perhaps closer to the chief executive than any person in San Francisco excepting members of Mr. Harding's family, he did not see the President.

The plan seemingly most favored at this stage to follow restoration of the President's strength is for a return to Washington by what is commonly known as the overland route as soon as the President is able to travel. In such an event the Presidential train would make no attempt at speed, would run on a schedule that would take it through heated valleys and across the desert during the cool hours of the night so far as possible, and at other times stop for the night so that the rest of the President might not be disturbed.

There was no attempt to fix any date for departure from San Francisco for manifestly the President's condition will not permit it, as encouraging as it appeared today to be. Any plan decided on will be subject to the advice of the physicians.

The President asked General Sawyer during the day if it would be possible to begin the trip to Washington Sunday, but was told by his physician that no thought yet had been given to that question.

The doctors in attendance would consent to his further travels at the earliest moment he was sufficiently recovered in health and strength to start home, the President was told.

General Sawyer reiterated that the chief executive realized his condition and while all members of the party would be glad to have him once more in the White House, the present hotel accomodations were satisfactory in every respect and there would be no hurry to move.

All the baggage and effects of the presidential party were removed from the Transport Henderson, now in the harbor here pending receipt of orders. There is little or no possibility of a return by water for although it is recognized that a sea trip might do the chief executive good. High temperatures prevail and rather violent storms are probable at this time of year.

METHUEN POLICEMAN SHOT AND FATALLY WOUNDED

Methuen, Mass., Aug. 1.—Arthur J. Bower, a police officer, was shot and fatally wounded here early today by men whom he had encountered in an automobile parked whether any of the shots which he and another policeman, John McDonald, fired at the car as it sped away took effect is not known.

Bower and McDonald drove to the extreme western part of the town shortly after midnight to investigate a reported attempt to break into the club house of the Lawrence Cricket Club.

According to McDonald they found that the five men concerned in the attempt had left in the direction of Lawrence. They started after them and came upon a car without lights. The officers demanded the registration certificate and license of the driver, and while Bower was questioning the three men in the car, McDonald went further down the road and ordered other cars to move on.

Turning back, McDonald saw Bower fall but said he heard no shots.

CONCLUDE ARGUMENTS FOR DEFENSE IN MORSE CASE

Washington, Aug. 1.—The criminal prosecution of Charles W. Morse, his three sons and four others, on trial with defrauding the government, was declared the "biggest prosecution" in the history of the department of justice by Attorney Nash Rockwood today in concluding argument for the defense. The Morses, he asserted, have been subjected to "constant and systematic" prosecutions.

During his address to the jury Mr. Rockwood assailed the Emergency Fleet Corporation, declaring it had expended $5,000,000,000 of the taxpayers' money and was "the most inefficient organization ever brought together in the history of the government."

After the defense had concluded its argument, government counsel began their final argument. They expect to conclude tomorrow.

DAIL EIREANN PASSES PUBLIC SAFETY BILL

Dublin, Aug. 1.—(By the A. P.)—The Dail Eireann this evening passed the public safety bill, under which the government may continue to hold prisoners who are charged with having been actively opposed to the free state government.

The measure was presented to the Dail for urgent action owing to the fact that the court of appeals in a decision today in habeas corpus proceedings declared that a state of war did not exist and granted a writ returnable tomorrow.

If the bill as passed tonight receives the assent of the Governor General, it is believed it will prevent the release under habeas corpus proceedings of large numbers of men and women now in prison.

HELD RESPONSIBLE FOR FREIGHT TRAINS COLLISION

Hartford, Aug. 1. — Engineman Ralph N. Nicholson and Instructoring Engineer John W. White, both of New Haven, were held responsible for the head-on collision of freight trains at Meriden on June 5 in a report made public today by the public utilities commission. Administration of discipline by the railroad company was recommended.

Failure by these enginemen "to properly observe the rules of the company when operating within yard limits" caused the accident, it was found by an investigation by Joseph P. Wadams, assistant engineer of the utilities commission.

Nicholson and White were in control of the northbound train. No blame was attached to William Bradley, engineer of the southbound train, nor to either Conductor M. P. Daniels of the northbound train or John P. Kelly of the southbound train. Nicholson was under the instruction of White on this ill-fated trip.

Although not a trolley wheel turned in the seven counties affected, reports from traffic supervisors indicated that buses, private automobiles, the railroads and make-shift conveyances had succeeded in absorbing the excess traffic without serious difficulty. It was admitted, however, that the real test of the present emergency measures would come within three or four days.

Gossip of Crowder's Recall From Havana

It is Concerned With the Recent Enactment of the Cuban Lottery Bill.

Washington, Aug. 1.—Ambassador Crowder's sudden return from Havana is being interpreted here as in the nature of a protest against the trend of Cuban legislative action in recent weeks. Whether it foreshadows any further development in relations between the two governments is not being disclosed. State department officials will not discuss the development and hold to their original guarded statement that General Crowder has been called home for conference "on various matters."

Recent enactment of the Cuban lottery bill was counter to the advice of the ambassador and the views of the United States government. Not alone was the bill itself objectionable from the American point of view but the resolution adopted at the same time by the Cuban congress was regarded as so distinctly anti-American in character that it appeared advisable to Washington authorities to call General Crowder home to give a complete understanding of the situation.

General Crowder went to Cuba for the specific purpose of lending such aid as he could as a special representative of President Harding in shaping a Cuban legislative program that would aid in the recovery of the island government from after-the-war conditions. He undertook his mission at the request of the Cuban government.

Negotiations with Cuban authorities were prolonged before the program was accomplished and the appointment of General Crowder as ambassador viewed at the time as significant of the belief in Washington that a legislative house-cleaning had been set afoot in Cuba and that economic recovery would follow. State department approval subsequently of the loan to be negotiated by Cuba in the United States was added evidence to that belief.

Since that time, however, there have been numerous indications that the course followed by the Cuban government was giving some concern here. The state department has had the summons to General Crowder under consideration for some time and it is understood that the passage of the lottery bill and adoption of the resolution merely capped the climax.

RUMOR THAT CROWDER IS TO BE RECALLED FROM CUBA

Havana, Cuba, Aug. 1.—Rumors emanating from New York and quoted on the authority of the New York Times state that General Crowder, Ambassador of the United States Cuban government, is to be recalled, the reason given being a resolution passed by the Cuban congress on the occasion of congress passing the new lottery law over President Zayas' veto.

GOVERNOR HAS CONVICTS AS COOK AND CHAUFFEUR

Columbus, O., Aug. 1.—Without word from Governor Donahey and Warden P. E. Thomas of the Ohio penitentiary, who with the governor's six sons and the warden's son, started on a fishing trip into Canada, Monday, attaches of the executive office this evening were trying to figure the outcome of "international complication" which has arisen by the presence in the governor's party of two convicts from the state prison, taken along as cook and chauffeur.

Advices from Canadian official sources today were that the dominion government prohibits the entrance of criminals into its domain and that steps may be taken by emigration officials there to deport them.

It was presumed at the executive office that Governor Donahey was not yet aware of the "complication."

Price Russell, former executive clerk to Governor Donahey and recently appointed chairman of the state board of clemency, expressed the opinion that there are "no complications" inasmuch as the two convicts not only are in the custody of the warden but also of the governor himself, and that the two Ohio officials would have in a foreign country practically the same rights as an ambassador.

It was suggested by others at the executive office that the governor could, if so desired, grant the prisoners full and unconditional pardon and restore them to citizenship. In this connection it was pointed out that the governor does not surrender any of his duties and powers as chief executive of the estate by going outside state or even entering a foreign country.

CROP REPORT SENDS COTTON PRICE SOARING

New York, Aug. 1.—The whole cotton trade was thrown into excitement today by the report of the agricultural bureau announcing a condition of only 67.2 for the cotton crop, representing a decline of 2.7 points from the previous report.

It was so far under even the lowest of private estimates that the market here immediately jumped skyward, advancing to 22.50 for October and 22.42 for December or about 132 to 140 points above the previous close.

European Problems In Commons and Lords

Reparations Statements to be Made in Both Houses Today.

London, Aug. 1.—(By the A. P.)—Whether the closing sitting of parliament tomorrow will reveal the next step of the British government in the difficult European problem is still unknown. The cabinet's prolonged discussion of the situation today has only brought thus far the announcement that Premier Baldwin and Lord Curzon will make simultaneous statements in the House of Commons and the lords respectively tomorrow, but not the slightest indication of the nature of these statements.

The Prime Minister's admission in the Commons today that in the absence of permission from the French and Belgian governments for the publication of their notes the debate would be restricted, seems to point to the fact that the government does not consider the time has arrived to take any new line.

Hopeless as the prospect of an agreement with France seems, the probabilities point to another attempt on the part of the government to achieve such agreement by further negotiation, in which case Premier Baldwin's statement in parliament is likely to be comparatively brief, dealing with the British position and embodying a renewed warning to France that the negotiations cannot be indefinitely protracted. The Prime Minister also will probably appeal to the House not to embarrass the delicate and difficult negotiations by hard criticisms, he having already undertaken that a special session of parliament shall be called if a new situation arises requiring the sanction of that body.

How careful the government has to proceed before risking an open breach with France was illustrated in the House of Commons tonight. Though Mr. Baldwin's policy has the support of a large section in the country, there is a considerable body of opinion well represented in the government against any break with France. The House was tonight discussing the grave unemployment problem, and, in the course of his remarks, Sir Clement Montague Barlow, Minister of Labor, outlining the various government plans for relief works, expressed apprehension that the coming winter would be no better than the last in the industrial field, despite the promise of an abundant harvest, and that the ultimate hope depended on the economic and industrial peace of Europe.

Thereupon the former Chancelior of the Exchequer, Sir Robert S. Horne, exhorted the government to keep clearly in view the ultimate effect of unemployment of the particular policy it adopted. He proceeded to argue that both Germany and France were likely to be Britain's greatest trade competitors; they were both largely in Britain's debt and were making no efforts to pay those debts. He continued that if Germany escaped paying reparations she would become the most powerful country in Europe; Germany had not been idle, but had reconstructed the whole of her great industrial organization. It would be unwise to give her too long a moratorium, which would assist her to become Great Britain's competitor.

Turning to France Sir Robert pointed out her failure to tax herself adequately; in fact, her capital debt was $1,400,000,000 less than the British debt, and her taxation one half per head of the British, while she had not only reestablished her trade, but had a greater volume of exports and imports than before the war. On the other hand Great Britain was struggling along on about seventy per cent. of her pre-war trade.

ELLIS ISLAND OVERTAXED BY RUSH OF IMMIGRANTS

New York, Aug. 1.—Nearly 2,000 immagrants were added to the population of the United States today at the port of New York. Between 12,000 and 13,000 other aliens watched the towering sky-line of Lower Manhattan from liners in the bay, as they waited to pass through Ellis Island.

They came from twenty-two countries in Europe, Asia and Africa and conversed in eighteen languages. The confusion of sounds was no greater than the confusion of statistics at Ellis Island as the hordes of aliens were being examined.

Imigration Commissioner Curran, with what he stated was a "distressingly inadequate" force of inspectors, did his utmost to pass the immigrants through the station with the least possible delay or inconvenience. The largest number that could possibly be handled at the island in one day, he said, was 2,000. At this rate, many of those who have already arrived will be forced to remain aboard their ships for a week. Other thousands were reported racing for port.

Four liners reported by wireless that they would arrive either tonight or Thursday, and at least three others, with approximately 1,500 passengers each, will appear Friday.

The rush was so desperate when the August quota lifted at midnight that several collisions were narrowly avoided. Captain Martinelich of the Argentina, declared his ship was missed by the Orizaba by inches in the rush for Quarantine. The liners, he said, were so close together that passengers could have touched hands.

ANOTHER HAT IN RING FOR DEM. PRESIDENTIAL NOMINATION

Topeka, Kas., Aug. 1.—(By the A. P.)—Governor J. M. Davis returned today from Chicago thoroughly convinced, he admits, that "his hat is in the ring" as a candidate for the democratic nomination for president.

"Before I went to Chicago last Sunday I had not given the matter much serious thought," Governor Davis said today. "But what surprised me was that news concerning the candidacy announced here by my Kansas friends had preceded me. Even though I did not throw it there I must admit that my hat is in the ring. So it is up to me to acquiece and do what little I can to help. I feel confident that once Kansas democrats know I am a candidate they will back me up with a solid delegation.

"While I was in Chicago men of much influence came to see me and sought appointments. I did not know that they even knew there was such a fellow as Jonathan M. Davis."

A SCATHING ARRAIGNMENT OF WILLIAM H. ANDERSON

District Attorney Pecora Accused the Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of "Deceiving a Very Complacent Board of Directors"—Declared That Anderson's Statements "Bore Such a Stamp of Incredibility and Improbability That Only an Imbecile Could Believe Them"—Decision Reserved on Anderson's Motion to Inspect Minutes of the Grand Jury.

New Yok, Aug. 1.—Judge McIntyre of general sessions today reserved decision on a motion by William H. Anderson, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league of New York for permission to inspect the minutes of the grand jury which recently handed down five indictments charging him with grand larceny, extortion and forgery.

The motion was made in behalf of Mr. Anderson by counsel, former Governor Charles S. Whitman, who characterized the indictments as preposterous, absurd and ridiculous, and declared that his client was no more obliged to tell the court what he did with the mysterious $24,700 publicity fund than his lawyer was to tell how much money he spent on his baby's clothes.

Referring to the $24,700, which Mr. Anderson said he had advanced from his own pocket for unspecified publicity purposes and received back from the league, Mr. Whitman continued:

"This man, who for years has been regarded by millions as the most successful man in his line, is a member of the bar, trained in the law, and yet he is charged with forgery. He is a graduate of the University of Michigan. It is absurd.

"I want to say to your honor that this statute has been stretched, strained and distorted, for every single record of the league had been changed, unless it can be shown that the league itself was defrauded, there has been no crime. Even if the books of the league were altered to defraud the United State government that is not a crime. Of course if a false return was made to the government that is a different matter."

Referring to the allegation of O. Bertsall Phillips, a former collector of the league, that he was compelled to pay Anderson $4,400 of his own money, Mr. Whitman said:

"I don't believe even the district attorney believes that Phillips had to pay over the money to Anderson to save his job. It is ridiculous. If he wasn't in fear of his job, this indictment for extortion will have to fall along with the others."

Opposing efforts of Mr. Anderson to inspect the minutes of the grand jury, Acting District Attorney Pecora said:

"If Anderson gets possession, he will then come into court and offer distorted evidence, manufactured by himself in defense of the crimes he is charged with. That is why he wants the minutes."

Mr. Pecora said there was no doubt Anderson had made false representations to the league when he said he had expended the money for publicity.

"Anderson told the committee he had spent the money," said the prosecuto. "He admitted to me that he technically was wrong in the statements that he made to the board of directors of the league. He did not say he made a false report. He is too clever for that."

Mr. Pecora added that Anderson's statements regarding the disposition of the money for publicity purposes "bore such a stamp of incredibility and improbability that only an imbecile could believe them."

Mr. Pecora accused Anderson of "deceiving a very complacept board of directors with little or no business ability," and asserted the directors were "merely mannikins, making motions in accordance with the gestures of Anderson."

"The $4,400 mentioned in the forgery and extortion indictments," Mr. Pecora continued, "was diverted directly from the treasury of the Anti-Saloon League to Anderson's pockets by checks made payable to Anderson. Alteration of the league's books was made to avoid trouble with the federal authorities and made by Anderson's directions."

STATEMENT BY FORMER CONSUL AT NEWCASTLE

New York, Aug. 1.—Fred C. Slater, of Topeka, Kas., who was American consul at Newcastle, England, when the consulate was closed a year ago by the United States government after the British authorities had withdrawn his exequatur and that of Vice Consul Brooks, arrived here today aboard the President Adams on leave of absence from his present post at Corunna, Spain.

Replying to the British foreign office charge that he had attempted to force British subjects to travel on American ships, and had refused to vise their passports unless they promised to do so, Mr. Slater said today that the whole affair was the result of "British jealousy of American merchant marine success."

An investigator of the American state department who went to Newcastle to investigate the charges against Mr. Slater and Mr. Brooks reported that the allegations had been "dumped up" by British shipping interests, and the state department requested that the charges be withdrawn. Marquis Curzon, the British foreign minister, expressed his willingness to "drp" the charges on the understanding that the United States would re-open the consulate with the least possible delay. The state department at Washington declined to acquiesce.

The consulate at Newcastle since then has remained closed, notwithstanding the demand of Newcastle ship owners that the British government take steps to settle satisfactorily for the U. S. the question at issue. It is said British shipping interests and shippers have suffered heavy losses through the closing of the consulate.

CHANGE ASKED BY TURKEY NOT CONSIDERED "SLIGHT"

Lausanne, Aug. 1.—(By the A. P.)—The "slight" change asked for by Turkey in the formula of the Turco-American treaty dealing with claims is not considered by the American delegates as slight. The Ottoman suggestion was that only claims of Americans who were citizens prior to the World war should be entertained; this would bar the claims of all persons, including Greeks and Armenians, who acquired American citizenship subsequent to 1914, and in the American view has raised the the whole question of dual nationality and the recognition of American naturalization laws, which by common agreement had been left to future negotiations.

This modification was suggested at a meeting of the Turkish and American experts this afternoon. It was not accepted and formed the subject of a conference between Ismet Pasha and Joseph C. Grew tonight, together with various other proposed changest in the text dealing with claims and designed to afford more adequate protection to American interests.

BRIDGEPORT TRAFFIC COPS ASK FOR INCREASE IN PAY

Bridgeport, Aug. 1.—Traffic policemen petitioned the board of police Commissioners tonight for an increase of 12½ per cent. in pay. They are now paid the same rate as street patrolmen. SUCCESSFUL AUTOMATIC TRAIN CONTROL SYSTEM

Philadelphia, Aug. 1.—Tests of an automatic train control system, under practical operating conditions, on the Pennsylvania railroad between Lewiston Junction and Sunbury, Pa., justify hopes that the system may provide a successful solution of the problem of preventing train collisions automatically, regardless of human failures, the company announced tonight.

The control system is a combination of electrical, pneumatic, and mechanical devices applied both to the track and to the locomotives. These devices automatically slow down, or when required bring to a stop, any train which approaches too closely to another on the same track, whether going in the same or opposite directions, or when switches are improperly left open. Protective track sections of any length, suited to local operating conditions, may be established.

Miss Regina Gervais was attired in ocean canton crepe with hat to match and she carried Columbia roses. The bride gave the bridesmaid a pearl bar pin and the groom's gift to the best man was a pair of gold cuff-links.

A reception was held at the home of the bride, after the ceremony. Among those present were guests from New Haven, ware, Mass., Bristol, Worcester, Mass., Manville and Hills Grove, R. I. Mr. and Mrs. French left by motor to spend their honeymoon in Canada.

Company C of the 169th Infantry, claims the honor of having the youngest first sergeant despite the fact that state papers announced that the Rockville company of the 169th infantry had the youngest first sergeant, Albert J. Stevenson, who was twenty-four years old recently and enlisted at the age of sixteen. A Willimantic boy, First Sergeant Lewye N. Gerry of Company C, is in line for first honors as he celebrated his twenty-second birthday Tuesday of this week and enlisted in the army at the age of fifteen years and five months. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lewye G. Gerry went to Camp Templeton Tuesday and presented their son a handsome gold watch.

Sergeant Gerry was born in Sanford, Maine, July 31, 1901. He enlisted in the Sixth company, Coast Artillery, S. M., December 28, 1916, as a bugler. When wishing to enlist he met with considerable opposition from his parents, due to his age but he finally persuaded them to consent and he was made a first class gunner in the company, April 20, 1917.

After being at Fort Leavitt, Me., and at Camp Devens, his company was assigned to Fort Williams in Maine. The place was a little dull for Sergeant Gerry, however, and August 28, 1918 he was transferred to the 45th Battery, Fifth Anti-Aircraft Artillery, with the rank of corporal. In October 1918 he went overseas and remained there until after the signing of the armistice. He received his discharge in this country January 15, 1919 at Camp Devens and came to this city where his parents had settled.

Sergeant Gerry joined Company L, Connecticut State Guard, then under the command of Captain Frank P. Fenton, as a bugler. Upon the reorganization of the company some two years ago, he enlisted in the first platoon of Company G, 169th Infantry, and after it became Company C, 169th Infantry, he soon worked himself up to the non-commissioned rank of first sergeant. He is now acting as second lieutenant of Company C, during the present encampment.

POETRY

The Silver Tea Pot

It sits upon the cupboard shelf,
Forever thinking of itself.
How smoothly curved it is, how fine,
How stately in its every line,
It sits aslant that all may see
Its handle made of ebony,
By ladies' fingers often pressed.
Although it cannot boast a crest,
The twined initials on its side
Give cause sufficient for its pride—
Two families in wedlock blent
Of high imperious descent.
It dwells upon its memories
Of days more dignified than these,
When dames in gorgeous stiff brocade,
And men in velvet coats arrayed
Made merry in the minuet;
Because it cannot quite forget
How elegant its times have been
What grand assemblies it has seen,
And when I think upon these things,
And all its later wanderings,
I pass it with a friendly smile,
And leave it dreaming there the while;
For I can then, I will confess,
Forgive its silver snobbishness!
—Margaret Ashmun, in the New York Sun and Globe.

Wind and Sea

The sea is a jovial comrade,
He laughs wherever he goes;
His merriment shines in the dimpling lines
That wrinkle his hale repose;
He lays himself down at the feet of the sun,
And shakes all over with glee,
And the bread-backed billows faint on the shore,
In the mirth of the mighty sea!

But the wind is sad and restless,
And cursed with an inward pain;
You may hark as you will, by valley or hill
But you hear him still complain,
He wails on the barren mountains
And shrieks on the wintry sea;
He sobs in the cedar, and moans in the pine,
And shudders all over the aspen tree.

Welcome are both their voices,
And I know not which is best—
The laughter that slips from the ocean's lips,
Or the comfortless winds unrest,
There's pang in all rejoicing,
A joy in the heart of pain,
And the wind that saddens, the sea that gladdens,
Are singing the selfsame strain!
—Bayard Taylor

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Last summer 5-year old Dorothy's aunt came to spend a week with them.

"Now, auntie," said Dorothy, "you must make yourself at home."

"How can I do that, darling?" inquired her aunt.

"Why," answered Dorothy, "you can pitch in and help mamma work."—Chicago News.

Johnny, in bed with the measles, requested that his teacher be asked to come and see him.

"You dear good boy!" exclaimed his mother. "Do you really love her so much?"

Ralph, aged 5, was afflicted with earache and screamed frantically with pain.

"Hush, dear," said his mother, don't cry so, it only makes it worse. Don't you remember how nice your little baby brother behaved when he had the earache? He didn't make half as much fuss about it as you are making."

"What does that k-kid know 'bout ear-a-ache?" sobbed Ralph. "H-his ears ain't half as big as m-mine."—Chicago News.

Nell—I hear May and her husband had a quarrel over her new one-piece bathing suit. What was the trouble?

Bell—Oh, it didn't amount to anything—just a little scrap.—New York Sun.

Someone has said that a woman marries the first time for love and the second time from loneliness. And after that, we suppose, from force of habit.—Boston Evening Transcript.

Broad Theatre.

News of paramount interest to motion picture theatre goers is contained in the announcement by the management of the Broad theatre that the widely discussed and much-heralded photoplay, "A Woman's Woman," with Mary Alden in the leading feminine role, and supported by an all-star cast has been booked as the feature attraction for today. "A Woman's Woman" has been the cause of much comment wherever shown for the reason that it is a picture that tells an actually truthful story of that sort of inner truthful life that is to be found every day everywhere, whether it be in Main street, Gopher Prairie, or in the exclusive social circles of the bigger cities. And those all who have seen this remarkable picture some words of praise for production, story and cast, direction and photography. "A Woman's Woman" is a big picture in every sense of the word. It is intensely emotional, full of pathos, with delicious and relieving bits of subtle comedy, and never for a moment is the spectator's interest permitted to lag. Miss Alden has as her support a really all-star cast. Louise Lee and Dorothy MacKaill are seen as the two daughters, with Holmes E. Herbert and young Albert Hackett, as husband and son respectively. Others in the cast are Rob La Rocque, Horace James, Cleo Madison, who has the role of the elocutionist-widow, who "understands" Plummer Hall and J. Barney Sherry. GAY MOTOR TRUCK DESERVES MUCH CREDIT FOR GOOD HIGHWAYS

Akron, Ohio, Aug. 1—When a hurrying motorist on a highway grows ireful toward the heavy laden truck blocking his passage, he should cool down, and reflect that the smooth pavement on which he is riding is there by grace of the truck, and its kind, is the caution of engineers of The B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company.

While the passenger automobile has played a big role in the development of our highway system, the commercial car, they point out, is at the bottom responsible for the roads being built. The passenger car quickens interest in new roads and better roads by translating them into terms of comfort and enjoyment, but it is the truck that provides the prosperity that makes it possible to pay for it.

Through the efficiency of the truck, regularity of service has become habitual. The milk truck is the early dawn never fails to bring its supply from the farm dairies to the centers of distribution. Here life and health are dependent upon the truck. Other trucks varying in size and loads, meet the wide range of industrial and commercial demands.

It is such enterprise and essential efficiency demanded by transportation that has been a constant stimulus to the tire manufacturer. His problem has been largely to cushion the truck loads to prevent excessive wear on pavement as well as on truck. Goodrich has designed answers to these problems in the form of a heavy cord tire, and a Semi-Pneumatic truck tire that has both resilience and durability.

Keith Vaudeville at the Strand Theater.

The feature B. F. Keith vaudeville attraction at the Strand theatre for the last half of this week is the Gordon Stewart Sisters in "Twenty Twinkling Toes," assisted by Eddie Gold. They offer a new variety twist scenery.

John K. Mua offers songs and music of Hawaii. His is a very rare offering.

Wild and Rose in "My Friend," is a comedy offering. They present a fine scheme of amusement with song and comedy patter, that is both humorous and melodious.

Johnny Dove and Mabel are called "The Camouflage Duo." These two are very capable entertainers and are sure to make a hit with their comedy offering.

Douglas MacLean, star of many past Thomas H. Ince productions, has the leading role in "The Sunshine Trail," a zippy western comedy-drama with a new twist which is now running at the Strand theatre. The cast of "The Sunshine Trail" also includes Edith Roberts, little Muriel Frances Dana, Josephine Sedgwick, William Courtright, Barney Furey, Rex Cherryman and Albert Hart. Thomas H. Ince's latest photoplay was directed by James Horne and was adapted by Bradley King from the story by William Wallace Cook.

The picture tells the amusing story of a cowboy-cowboy who returns from the war, just three years late, to find that his girl is engaged to be married to "the other fellow" in the belief that her soldier-sweetheart is dead. The doughboy who has been given a fine memorial funeral by his fellow townsmen, is greeted as an imposter when he comes home. After a series of adventures which are both thrilling and amusing, he is thrown into jail. There's a surprise ending that carries a kick.

Anyone interested at all in the final program is cordially invited to attend the meeting to express his or her thoughts. Houston's brass band, which created such a sensation at the last game will be there next week, bigger and better than ever. If possible the management will secure at least two more bands, and a drum corps. The grievances of Col. George Fowler have been patched up and his services have been secured as grand marshal of the last big event, and the colonel will put in the rest of the week polishing up his gold sword.

COOPER HAS BETTER OF BENTLEY IN PITCHING DUEL

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 1.—Pittsburgh evened the count of a five-game series with New York by winning the fourth game today, 2 to 1. After the Giants had scored in the first inning on singles by Groh and Meusel, the Pirates took the lead in the sixth by scoring two runs on a base on balls, Rawlings' single and Carey's triple to left center. The game was a pitchers' battle between Bentley and Cooper, but Bentley was taken out in the eighth to make way for a pinch hitter after two Giant batsmen had reached base. The score:

ALEXANDER HAS BIG DAY IN BEATING BRAVES

Chicago, Aug. 1.—Great pitching and hitting by Grover Alexander enabled Chicago to defeat Boston today 8 to 2. They continued to bunch hits after that, Miller cracking out his fourteenth homer of the season and Statz his eighth. After the first inning the visitors were unable to do anything to Alexander.

HOW IS BUSINESS?

An answer to this familiar question is given in a report of a survey of the employment situation throughout the country made by the employment service of the United States department of labor. It seems to be of special authority because it is based on telegraphic information from state directors and therefore may be considered up to date.

In brief, the survey gives ground for the prediction of favorable employment conditions for the next sixty days, at least, indicating that while there is no acute shortage of labor there is opportunity for the willing and able-bodied to find jobs for which they are fitted. For all practical purposes, it may be said that business activity is universal, as shown by a summary from the different states.

Pennsylvania is one state among others in which employment conditions arouse special interest, since the controversy over the 12-hour day in the steel industry has an obvious bearing on the labor market. "In this state," the report says, "there is a shortage of common and semi-skilled and skilled labor, which will remain practically unchanged during the next sixty days. Building trades labor of every kind is extremely scarce, with no relief in sight. Steel and iron mills throughout the state of Pennsylvania are still hampered somewhat due to the scarcity of this class of help. Large state and municipal road-building projects continue to employ the available supply of common labor."

Magnus Johnson has given us a word picture of the woes of the farmers in Minnesota, but the report fails to bear him out when it states that there is a strong demand for common labor on the farms there, as well as in the woods and on the railroads, which will continue for sixty days. North Dakota expects the usual shortage of harvest labor, Idaho and Washington are notably active with practically no unemployment.

Supplementing the labor department report is one by the federal reserve board on the condition of retail trade. Here again the report is favorable, although it is pointed out that the situation is better in industrial than in agricultural districts. As based upon these two reviews, it can be said that a fair statement of the situation is that business, generally, is good and there is promise that it will continue so.

WOMEN IN INDUSTRY.

Some suggestive facts as to a certain degree of evolution in the position of women in industry have been set forth by recent reports of the census bureau, inviting attention not so much to the relatively greater number of women employed as to the relatively better positions they are filling.

The proportion of women employed in manufacturing industries has not appreciably changed in the past quarter-century. In 1899 there were 918,510 women over sixteen years old employed in factories, 19.5 per cent of the total number of factory employes. The actual number in industry has naturally increased, but the proportion has remained practically the same. It was still 19.5 per cent. in 1904, and in 1914 it had risen to 19.7, but by 1919 the proportion had fallen back again to 19.5 per cent.

But the status of women in industry has been steadily rising. Between 1909 and 1919 the percentage of women as salaried officers in industrial corporations grew from 2.3 to 4.1, while in the same time there was marked increase in the number of women managers, superintendents and department heads. In 1909 only 2,849 women were classified as industrial superintendents and managers. Ten years later there were 10,306. Another great gain was in the clerical force. The relative number of women clerks and other salaried subordinates rose from 24.3 per cent in 1909 to 36.2 per cent in 1919.

Congratulations seem to be in order for the way they are forging to the front. The outstanding facts appears to be that women are holding better and more important jobs, so that, if their status should continue to improve, they might in time relegate men to the wage earners' duties and themselves sit in the seats of the

RETURN TO REASON IN THE RUHR.

It has been apparent to observers that England has recently been wavering in her attempt to turn France and Belgium away from their policy of compelling Germany to keep her compacts with the allies. There has been an awakening from the English dream that saw in the Germans a people willing and determined to fulfill their obligations but unable because of their poverty to do so, for it has become manifest to the English public that this dominative attempt of their government to put immediate material interest of the nation above considerations of international justice and equity, and to sacrifice the alliance on the uncertain hope of thereby winning Germany over to a course of honesty in dealing with its neighbors, is doomed to inevitable failure.

Germany's impending collapse and the threatened dissolution of the Cuno cabinet stand out as too transparent a part of the German programme of evasion. The tactics of a dishonest bankrupt will not frighten France into any surrender of her purpose or stampede England into a fresh breach with the policy of her European allies. The unswerving determination of France to maintain her undoubted rights is the one clear light against the manoeuvers of Germany to confuse the issue, to inspire sympathy, to conceal her real financial situation and embarrass those who are pressing for a just settlement. It has exposed the insincerity of the German resistence to the occupation of the Ruhr and has strengthened the world-wide conviction that Germany is playing the part of the whining beggar instead of the honest debtor.

The world is convinced that Germany's financial impotency is a sham and deceit and that the Germans, knowing no argument but force, must submit in the end to the same sort of pressure which they themselves employed in 1871 against the French. Knowing this, any retreat from the Ruhr, any coercion from Britain to bring about relaxation of the French hold on Germany's industrial stronghold, would be to abandon what was gained by the bitter sacrifices and agonies of 1914-1917. The realization that there is to be no such surrender is what is really behind the visible slackening of the British drift-away from her allies and toward a policy of mistaken "conciliation" with the authors of the greatest crime in history.

CUTTING THE 12-HOUR DAY.

While no report has been forthcoming from the first formal meetings of officials of the United States Steel corporation to consider ways and means to do away with the 12-hour day in the steel industry, it is understood that their first discussions have borne upon wage readjustments. As far as the feasibility of a shorter day from a technical standpoint is concerned, that has been demonstrated to them in Great Britain and in a number of the smaller American establishments. Leading men in the steel industry have looked upon the adoption of the eight-hour instead of the twelve-hour shift as probably accompanied by an increase of 15 or 20 per cent in the hourly rate of pay and have estimated that this would add $30,000,000 annually to the payrolls of the companies.

One of the other large problems which will be associated with the contemplated change in hours will be the number of additional workers to be secured. By the time that the change has been fully made it is estimated that 60,000 more workers will be called into the steel industry. Under the old conditions it would have been a problem indeed to recruit so many more employes for the steel mills, but it is to be supposed that the work will be more inviting to certain classes of labor when the conditions of employment have been brought more nearly in accord with modern American standards. Some of the recruits will no doubt come from other industries that now need them, but some should also come by improved methods of bringing together the jobless man and the manless job. This is a problem that has been neglected with the resulting continuance of a perpetual army of unemployed of needlessly large proportions. The steel men stress the point that a large part of their labor comes from the immigrant class and urge that as a reason for freer immigration. If it can be shown that this is essential, it may be a development of the situation, but freer immigration should not be at the expense of workers who are already here.

FROM LUCILE'S DIARY

I made up my mind early in the season to be conservative this year in regard to my Christmas expenses and to make as many of my gifts as possible, and, moreover, to use what materials I could find in the house, so I went through the attic trunks and found a mine. I took some beautiful old linen over to Louise Erwin's to get her to assist me in planning some doilies, for she is exceedingly clever at it.

"What are you going to give Jimmy Hayslette and Burling Preston, if anything?" Louise asked me as she was pulling threads from my linen. "I thought of making them a set of doilies for their jolly apartment."

"Oh, Louise, don't you really think that it is rather bad taste for us to give those men presents?" I asked. "Don't you think it might look just a little forward?"

"I certainly hadn't thought so," she answered stiffly.

"Well, of course we each have our own standards, dear," I remarked. "You must do as you please, Louise."

"Well, I must say I don't wish to be considered forward."

Though her tone was acrid, I merely laughed pleasantly. On the way home I began to ponder the subject, deciding that perhaps it would be no more than friendly to give the boys something for their "dugout", as they call their snug flat.

I have worked so steadily on those doilies that father said last night, when I was finishing them that I had become a model of industry.

"But where did you get that linen?" asked mother. "It looks like homespun linen."

"Out of the old Saratoga trunk in the attic, mother."

"Why, Lucile, you don't mean to say that you have cut up one of those sheets Aunt Rachel brought to me from France long ago?" she exclaimed. "How could you?"

"They weren't doing anybody any good, just lying there in the trunk. I thought you'd be glad to have me so economical. You are always telling me to use what I have instead of buying new things, but no matter how I try to please you I never seem to succeed." I said, almost weeping, and daddy patted my shoulder consolingly.

"But Lucile, it was a shame to cut up that wonderful sheet," said mother in a somewhat softened voice. "I intended to make a pair of stunning bedspreads out of those sheets for your hope chest, for a surprise."

"Why didn't you tell me? You know I hate surprises," I said in annoyance, and mother just laughed. Sometimes she is most exasperating. I can't see why she thinks it is amusing to have me defrauded out of one of those bedspreads.

This evening Jimmy Hayslette and Burling Preston were here with Louise Erwin and me, helping Cousin Fannie fill candy boxes for her children at the settlement.

I could see that both boys were rather impressed by my interest in Cousin Fannie's good work. They thanked me for letting them in on it, and I gayly said I should reward their labors by giving them a little Christmas present in advance, and I presented the set of doilies, which certainly looked charming in their holly box.

They were quite overcome with them and thanked me vociferously. Although I was generous enough to say that Louis had helped me with the design for them, she looked like a hornet and scarcely responded at all when the boys said that she and I must be the first guests to enjoy them, that they would soon plan a blowout for our special benefit. I am afraid both Jimmie and Burling must think she is very ungracious.

"You appear to have undergone a complete change of mind, Lucille," Louise whispered to me when we were serving the boys some hot chocolate.

"Yes, dear," I replied. "You know, I pride myself upon being amenable to reason, and I decided that you were right, after all. What do you think you will give them?"

"I don't know," she answered crossly. I often think that Louise would be much more attractive and popular if she had a more even disposition. I am glad that I am gifted with a serene nature.—Chicago News.

Alice was the contrary one of the family and always desired something different when plans for the evening meal were discussed.

"Fine," said Ennie.

"No, cook mine easy," Alice replied.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Professor George Dreyer, the scientist whose new antidote to tuberculosis has created something of a sensation in England, has been professor of pathology at Oxford since 1907. Professor Dreyer was born in Shanghai in 1873, the son of a captain in the Danish Royal Navy. His education was received chiefly at the University of Copenhagen. After completing his studies he went to England, where other members of his family had already risen to prominence in science and the professions Professor Dreyer first attained fame during the late war by devising a new methdo of diagnosing typhoid fever. Then he was associated with the construction of a new formula for estimating the vital capacity of individuals. For his achievements in medical science he has been honored by the learned societies in England, Denmark and other countries.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

Vancouver.

"Vancouver, where President Harding will have been one of the few presidents to pay a friendly visit to a city beyond the borders of the United States, has one of the half dozen safest and most commodious harbors in the world," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"Indeed the Vancouver citizen will tell you that it is the 'second finest harbor in the world,' generously leaving you to pick the first for yourself. Shipping news of Vancouver often is shipping history as when, recently, the 'Empress of Canada, cut down the trans-Pacific running time to a new low record, and her crew was feted by the city for their performance.

"The Vancouver enthusiast proclaims his city's 'American'—and it is just that in respect to enterprise, zest and civic spirit. In loyalty, though it is extremely Canadian and it typifies the spirit of modern Canada as vividly as our own Kansas City, St. Louis, and Omaha represent our vigorous Mississippi-Missouri valley.

"Vancouver is five hours from Victoria by boat; but the two are five centuries apart in some of their customs. Their feeling toward each other is not one of jealously—they are too different for that. Victoria regards Vancouver as a growing boy, exuberant, spirited, and a bit too flushed with his own achievements; Vancouver looks upon Victoria with the respect and tolerance one bestowes upon a gentle maiden aunt who is a bit old-fashioned. Victoria is frankly Victorian; Vancouver is aggressively modern.

"Vancouver considers her commercial rival the third city of this unusual water-bound civic triangle, which is Seattle. She tries to convince the thousands of summer tourists, the great majority from the States' that she has sights to offer as well as Victoria; and she seeks to show the business man that she affords the best shipping facilities north of San Francisco.

"Vancouver has her troubles with nomenclature, as has San Francisco. 'When you say Vancouver you mean the city,' is the gist of the idea she seeks to impart. If you speak of Vancouver Island, Vancouver would have you, as would the Victorians, simply say 'the island.' It troubles Vancouver a bit to have the capital city of British Columbia located on 'the island,' but occasional suggestions of a change have never been taken seriously.

"A railroad made Vancouver. Anyone who spins across prairies and mountains on an express from Montreal or Toronto to Vancouver must marvel at the vision and skill of the men who 'bridged two oceans and linked four continents.'

"With all the comforts of your club you are whisked among snow-capped and unclimbed mountains, across dizzy canyons, through a five-mile tunnel and if you would stop over to see some world-famed natural beauty spot, such as peak-dotted Banff or azure and altidinous Lake Louise, the railroad has built you a hotel and even has thoughtfully provided ponies for your children to ride.

"At your continental trail's end, Vancouver, as in other cities you encounter another nation-building corporation, the Hudson's Bay Company. For that historic company which still trades supplies for furs with the remote Eskimos at ice-bound posts now operates a chain of department stores where tweeds, golf-balls, earrings and a thousand ultra-modern articles are stocked.

"Vancouver's Stanley Park, with its giant cedars and firs, is renowned and its lure attracts the sea-borne visitor as he passes the 'first narrows' of the city's harbor. The city has preserved its trees and flowers though they occupy a peninsular water-front site where real estate is at a premium.

"It's clean streets, new office buildings, modern apartments, brisk traffic, all are a part of its modernism. Its distinctive recreation facility is its English bathing beach where, until a few years ago, the women kept pretty much to one end of the beach and men to the other. That time has passed. But the custom of wearing one's bathing robe to the edge of the water survives; and when it is removed it would seem that the actual swimming costume is meant, from its voluminous enough to hamper the swimmer. There is no parading the beach in these costumes. One goes to the English bathing beach to get in the water.

"The beach withholds its most picturesque aspect until nightfall. Then many driftwood fires are built along the shore at which bathers dry themselves before going home in automobiles. With eerie figures dancing around many fires one may recall the days before Elmon Fraser paddled a canoe along the river now named for him, and George Vancouver arrived, to find Indians lending beacon fires along these very shores to signal the homeward way to their fishing canoes."

Maria Bicknell, Wife of John Constable

Totally devoid of romance, Maria Bicknell, wife of the great English portrait painter, John Constable, compensated for this lack by a great practicability, a fine sense of humor and a keen understanding. These qualities, joined as they were with the more volatile characteristics of the artist, made an almost perfect combination. Miss Bicknell was a daughter of the solicitor to the Admiralty and no doubt inherited much of her caution and prudence from her father.

When the artist first wrote to propose marriage, the young woman replied in a most formal fashion, beginning: "My dear sir," telling him that she had "consulted papa—i. e., taken a lawyer's opinion," and concluded with, "Believe me, my dear sir, your obliged friend." At all times she avoided committing herself on paper, which again points to legal advice on the part of her father. Later, she wrote Constable that her father liked him exceedingly, but that he objected to the suit on the grounds "that necessary evil, money," and advised him to apply himself diligently to his profession, especially to such parts that pay better." In every letter that Constable ever received from this prudent young woman she told him in some form or other that he should "make money before he made love."

Things worked out satisfactorily, however, as before long Constable had achieved some acts as a portrait painter, and was being paid as much as 15 guineas for a head. Then Miss Bicknell consented to marry him, and the union proved to be most successful. By very reason of her lack of romance she was able to be an enviable wife and the devoted mother of seven children.

CHANGE OF LIFE LOSES TERRORS

For Women who Rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Greenville, Pa.—"I took your medicine through the Change of Life and it did wonders for me. I was down in bed when I started to take it and weighed 95 pounds. I had hot flashes and was so nervous and weak that everything would get black and I could not see. I would sit and cry and did not know what I was crying for. Since I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I feel younger than I did ten years ago, and my friends all tell me I look younger, and I owe it all to the Vegetable Compound. I do all my housework for a family of seven now. I will be glad to answer any woman who writes me in regard to my case."—Mrs. JOHN MYERS, 55 Union St., Greenville, Pa.

Many letters similar to this have been published testifying to the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. They are sincere expressions from women who describe as best they can their feelings before and after taking this well-known medicine.

Six Hurt When Ford Truck Goes Over Bridge

Stonington, Aug. 1.—Six persons were injured at Pine Point bridge, Stonington, tonight, about 9 o'clock when a Ford one-ton truck, owned and driven by George Tift of Pequot avenue, Mystic, who had a party of 13 going to Atlantic beach, was hit by a Ford automobile going in the same direction and went over the bridge. The car ran into the truck striking the left front wheel and forced the truck off the state road, causing it to go over the bridge in to the cove. The car struck on one side in about three feet of water, it being low tide. The members of the party got a good soaking and had to be assisted up the bank. Two doctors were summoned to the scene, Drs. Thurber and Taylor of Stonington.

Those most seriously injured were taken to Dr. Thurber's office, the others being taken to their homes in Mystic. Mrs. Leslie Chesebro and her sister of Ledyard received bad scalp wounds, bruises and internal injuries. One man was badly injured and three children were hurt. The rest of the party received only a bad shaking up.

The driver of the Ford car did not stop to ascertain the extent of the damage but was stopped at Westerly by the state police.

Had it been high tide the entire party would probably had been drowned.

Pine Point bridge, where the accident happened, is about one mile west of the railroad station at Stonington.

She is survived by a sister, Nellie Cummings, a brother, John C. Cummings, and an uncle, John Banning.

Miss Cummings was a member of Sacred Heart church, Norwich Town, and was interested in church work. She was popular with her many friends and the news of her death came as a shock to them.

James Lynch

After an illness of six months the long and peaceful life of James Lynch came to a close Wednesday morning at 3 o'clock at his home at 223 West Town street.

He was born in Enniskillen, county of Fermanagh, north of Ireland, and came to Norwich when a young man and had made his home in Norwich Town for about 60 years. For 35 years he was overseer in the Clinton mills, but had lived a retired life for many years.

In old St. Mary's church on Oct. 11, 1859, he was married to Margaret Collins, by Rev. Daniel Killey. Mrs. Lynch died on Jan. 25, 1901.

FELL FROM ROOF OF U. S. FINISHING PLANT

Angelo Gentile of 248 Franklin street was painfully injured Tuesday afternoon when he slipped and fell from the roof of the U. S. Finishing company, where he had been at work on new construction.

Medical aid was summoned and he was taken to the Backus hospital where it was seen that he was suffering from a fractured shoulder, injuries to his chest and broken ribs. He will remain at the hospital for some time but his injuries are not as dangerous as was first believed.

START WORK ON ROSE ALLEY IMPROVEMENT

Street Commissioner Cruthers began work on Rose Alley Wednesday to make ready for the laying of the cement road as far as the railroad tracks. This work is only the matter of a few days and the staging at the Palace theatre will be torn down in speed as the front of facing the cement.

WOMAN HURT WHEN TOURING CAR HIT TELEGRAPH POLE

Mrs. Edward Cole of New Haven is a patient at the Backus hospital, suffering possible internal injuries received about 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon when a Maxwell touring car driven by Mr. Cole crashed into a telephone pole about a mile north of Uncasville on the state highway.

From all accounts Mr. and Mrs. Cole were on their way to Norwich and when about to pass a wagon in the road ahead of them the wheels of their car became caught in the trolley tracks and caused the automobile to shoot to one side, crashing head-on into a telegraph pole.

Mr. and Mrs. Cole were picked up by passing autoists and carried to the Backus hospital in this city where it was found that Mr. Cole had slight bruises and a cut near the nose. He was discharged from the hospital. Mrs. Cole's injuries proved more serious. She has cuts about the face and possibly broken ribs and internal injuries. Her condition, however, is not considered serious.

The touring car was badly wrecked in the smash and the pole considerably damaged. The car was later hauled to a garage for repairs.

LOCAL MAN INJURED BY PLAINFIELD MACHINE

Joseph Gurley, employed by the Shetucket Coal & Lumber company, was painfully injured Wednesday afternoon about 12.45 o'clock when struck by a Ford roadster owned by Alex Lewis of Plainfield and driven by a woman who declined to give her name.

He was picked up immediately following the accident by Dr. Paul F. Gadle who was passing, given first aid as he was then in an unconscious condition and word was sent for the ambulance. At the Backus hospital it was found that Gurley was suffering a fractured rib on the left side, had lost four teeth, and a wound on his cheek was closed with twelve stitches. Mr. Gurley will be confined to the hospital for a couple of weeks as a result of the accident.

The accident happened when Mr. Gurley was leading a pair of unhitched horses across North Main street to a barn near the old St. Mary's church. The woman who absolutely refused to give her name, came down North Main street at a good rate of speed and evidently lost control of her car, not checking the speed in time to prevent hitting Gurley, who was knocked under his horses and kicked in the cheek before he was cleared. The machine continued on until it landed up against the machine of John Thoma which was parked on the right hand side of the road.

Dr. Gadle reported the accident and the police investigated, finding that the car was owned by Mr. Lewis of Plainfield.

LOCAL MAN BURNED BY ELECTRIC FLASH

C. J. Whalen of this city was painfully burned at the Eastern Connecticut Power plant when he came in contact with an electric current about 1.30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Whalen was drilling a hole in concrete at the plant and stuck a steel rule into the hole to see how deep it was. As he placed the rule into the hole there was a flash which caught Mr. Whalen about the face, head and right arm. It is thought that the rule came in contact with a nearby wire.

Mr. Whalen was rushed to the office of Dr. J. Donohue in Uncasville where his burns were treated. The flash burned his right arm from the fingers to the elbow, the left side of his face, and chin and the back and left side of his neck. His eyebrows were scorched and his eyes slightly injured.

Later he was taken to the Backus hospital where examination showed that his burns are not serious.

A further retrenchment took place within a few days when the 3 and 11 o'clock night shifts were ordered to report for duty days, the change resulting in the less capable of the regular day force being dismissed, for in most instances the superior skilled mechanics had been employed on the two night shifts.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

When Romeo Bibeault brought in a live lobster found Wednesday morning under a stone by the river bank near the Dyer dam, an achievement was recorded that was new to Danielson. Lobsters are not in the habit of growing along the Quinebaug, but since a suggestion was made in this column some weeks ago that a zoo might be established along the trolley line to add to the interest of things in general there is no telling what may happen down that way or what may be found.

Mr. Bibeault was hunting for dobson when he made his find. He turned over a rock in his search and the little lobster sidled out and tried to get away, but without success. The little captive was first shown at Birch's market and from there was brought to Woodward's store for observation.

Old timers looked at the find and declared they never heard of the like along a stream heretofore. Neither did the younger people. The interest of how a lobster seven six inches in length could be living along a fresh water stream was interesting many when a traveling man who is also a devotee of fishing happened along, took a look at the lobster and promptly classified it as a crawfish, common to many lakes and rivers in New England and much sought after by some as bait for bass fishing. This particular crawfish happened to be an unusually large one, however, and in about every way was identical with a lobster.

Crawfish are sometimes found in territory hereabouts, but are not common and few fishermen in Danielson had ever seen one.

The exhibit was inspected with interest throughout the day and all were finally convinced that no infant lobster industry is established along the Quinebaug.

At the Methodist church there is to be a musical to mark the acquiring of a splendid new piano for use at the church. Mrs. Harold B. Atwood, organist, Mrs. Edith Barber, Pittsburgh, pianist, and Mrs. Sidney H. Perry, violinist, will play and there is to be a program of numbers by the choir and solos, duets and numbers by a male quartet and a mixed quartet.

Mrs. Barber, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney H. Perry, is a talented musician and her appearance will be of very unusual interest to the people of her home town.

A step farther has been taken by Thomas Bradford in carrying out his plans to put a third ticket in the field for the annual town election in October. Mr. Bradford said Wednesday that an attorney is preparing a petition for circulation here that the necessary number of signatures be obtained before it is forwarded to the secretary of state in carrying out the requirements of the statutes for establishing new political parties or putting additional tickets in the field. There was a slip at this point last year, when an effort also was made to have a third ticket and the whole plan fell through, but this will be guarded against this year, Mr. Bradford said Wednesday.

Still another real estate transaction was added Wednesday to the many recorded in Danielson during the last few months when Rev. John Roux, M. S., acting for St. James' parish, purchased three houses on property adjoining St. James' church and rectory on Water and Franklin streets. Mrs. Michael Shea, Mrs. Thomas P. Ward and Mrs. Benjamin Mowry, all of New London and formerly of Danielson, came here to complete the sale as owners of the properties.

One of the dwellings acquired stands on Water street and adjoins the site of St. James' rectory. The other two dwellings, known as the Ward and Mowry properties, are in the rear of the church and rector and just off Water street. Possession of these properties by the parish gives the parish all adjoining property on which buildings stand. No announcement was made during Wednesday as to whether any changes are contemplated in the newly acquired properties.

Members of the Telephone Employes' association from the Danielson and other divisions of the S. N. E. T. company in this section of the state held a monthly meeting at Pellett's hall Wednesday evening. Representatives of the managerial department of the company acted as hosts. There was the usual business session followed by a social hour given to numerous diversions. Refreshments were served.

Howard A. Elliott, chief special deputy of the commissioner of domestic animals, came into this territory on Wednesday to give his attention to a number of dog and cattle cases requiring his attention. Despite the campaign against unlicensed and roaming dogs, there continue to be violations of the laws pertaining to them. It appears, too, that certain regulations of the laws pertaining to cattle are not being universally observed by those persons who should observe them, and investigation of these cases will also claim Mr. Elliott's attention.

Having read what he was quoted as saying when he formally entered the field as a candidate for the democratic nomination for president, numbers of democrats here decided very promptly Wednesday that they could get along very nicely without Oscar Underwood of Alabama in the presidential chair. And further, there are many democrats here who will look askance at any nominee for the presidency hailing from a southern state. What the south and southerners stand for on some of the big issues of the day are not the things that appeal to many democrats hereabouts, and they do not hesitate to say so.

One feature of the heavy motor traffic that new state highway routes is bringing through Danielson that people here do not like is the speed at which numbers of tourist drivers hustle their cars through the business section and adjoining residential sections. They are driving too fast. Regulative measures will have to be applied, it was stated Wednesday, to slow these drivers down. Speeds up to 30 miles an hour, where 16 miles an hour should be the limit, are frequently made by cars bearing registrations showing that the parties are on long distance tours and are going to make time if they kill themselves or someone else in doing it.

This being Thursday, another half-holiday for store forces will bring the closing of the stores at noon. A hint to buyers that their shopping should be done early today.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Howard Burdick of Webster, formerly to Danielson, have been visitors with friends here.

Savings bank deposits showed another good increase in Danielson during the month of July, bringing the grand total of savings held here to a new high level.

With the coming of August considerable work is being undertaken by the town in repairing roads and doing other things needed done along the highways.

New red stop lights put in at the grade crossing at Attawaugan crossing are proving a puzzle to motorists Beams from motor car headlights striking against the red glass of the signs make them appear to signal the approach of a train. A sure test to determine whether the danger lights real are burning is to shut off the car headlights for a second. If a train is coming the warning lights will continue to show red.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Tillinghast of Salisbury, N. C., are visiting here with their children—Charles A. Tillinghast, Everett T. Tillinghast and Mrs. Clinton F. Pellett. Mr. and Mrs. Tillinghast formerly were residents in Brooklyn.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Richards of Chicago stopped here for a brief visit while motoring from Provincetown, Mass., to their home. Mrs. Richards is a relative of Mrs. W. Woodward, Judge W. Fenner Woodward and A. P. Woodward. Prior to her marriage she was Miss Margaret Ross.

More cases were heard in the town court in July than in any other month for a long time. Included in the 26 cases heard during the period were two in which boys were sent to the state school for boys and various actions having to do with violation of the liquor and motor vehicle laws as well as a number of cases in which intoxication was charged as a cause of action.

Berrying parties are now having a great vogue and every day finds scores of pickers covering country for miles around.

Major and Mrs. Albert Warren have returned to West Point, following a month spent with Warden and Mrs. W. A. Burrows at Oakland Beach and a visit here with Major Warren's mother, Mrs. Emma Warren.

PUTNAM

Twenty-two cans of fingerling trout were received at the Putnam railroad station Wednesday morning for distribution in streams in this vicinity. The shipment was part of a lot of 70,000 trout to be sent from the state hatchery. In addition to this 70,000 more are to be sent from the Massachusetts state hatchery at Kingston. These are to be furnished by the state but transportation charges will be paid by the Northeastern Connecticut Fish and Game Club. The members of the club were at the railroad station to receive the cans of fish under the supervision of County Game Warden, Charles Letters. Mr. Letters stated that under his supervision about 400 pheasants have been released in Windham county. The newly organized fish and game club is an active organization and interested in the increase and preservation of fish and game in this section. Its members include men from the towns of Putnam, Thompson, Woodstock, Pomfret, Eastford and Ashford. Willingly has a club of its own. Members of these clubs work in harmony with the county game warden and in all is doing all he can to assist in the work of fish and game propagation and protection.

A number of Putnam women were in Thompson, Wednesday afternoon, when a whist was held at the home of Mrs. Arthur Mills for the benefit of the nurses' home fund of the Day Kimball hospital.

A whist and mixed foursomes will be the program at Putnam Country Club this (Thursday) afternoon. It is expected that this being the afternoon the stores close, there will be a large card of entries before the first quartette tees off.

Some changes in the personnel of the Beachmont Worsted Company's Mill, formerly the French River Textile Company, Mechanicsville, have taken place within a day or two. George Harris, general manager, William Easton, superintendent and Charles A. Thayer, purchasing agent, have resigned, the resignations taking effect Wednesday. Walter N. King is to have charge of the office work.

At the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Myers, Tuesday afternoon, P. Hamilton Myers, Jr., entertained Jean and Dorothy Bacon, Francis and Donald Cutler, Richard Ralston and Junior Devine, on his fifth birthday. Games were played and the refreshments included a birthday cake.

State Bank Commissioner John B. Byrne, just back from a meeting of bank commissioners at Denver, spent the week-end at his home in Putnam. While here the commissioner spoke in an optimistic tone and said that the American people have nothing to worry about if they will only stop talking. The commissioner urged that the people keep busy, keep their courage and keep their heads. He said the condition of America is so infinitely better today than in any other country in the world that we can stand a little deflation, if it should come, without causing any worry. He urges that people realize that there is nothing the matter with us and that the country prosperous with a demand for labor at a high figure. If this is done he predicted that two-thirds of the unrest would disappear. Mr. Byrne also said: "America is all right. Let's get rid of the mistaken idea that she isn't. Ideal conditions don't prevail everywhere in every line of human endeavor, but this isn't the millennium."

Postmaster Archie Macdonald, Attorney J. F. Carpenter and George Lewis, Jr., were in Fall River, Wednesday, to attend the funeral of Edward A. Thurston, brother of Ralph E. Thurston of this city.

There is to be a meeting at the home of Mrs. J. S. Kent, Church St., this (Thursday) afternoon in the interest of Windham House at Connecticut College for Women. Mrs. Edwin W. Higgins of Norwich and Mrs. Louis C. Howe, a trustee of the college, will tell what has been accomplished and what is planned by the Windham House association.

Dr. Frederick T. Baldwin and family have returned from Long Island Webster Lake, where they spent July. Dr. Loveland, a partner of Dr. Baldwin, is soon to leave for a vacation in New York state, his former home.

Anthony Meehan, engineer at the J. B. Thayer Co., mill, had his arm scalded while emptying the boiler. The injury is not serious.

Fifteen year old Mary Sanborn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Sanborn, was operated on for appendicitis at the Day Kimball hospital, Wednesday morning.

The first band concert of the summer, under the auspices of Putnam Chamber of Commerce, was held in Union Square, Wednesday evening. The weather was fine and a large number came to the city to hear the music furnished by the Band Canadienne of North Grosvenordale. A generous sprinkling of meal over the granolithic covering of the square transformed it into a fine dancing floor and from 8.30 until the good night waltz many enjoyed dancing. The plan was originated last summer and was a big success. Ralph X. Bugbee is chairman of the entertainment committee.

Putnam Rotarians held their weekly meeting and luncheon, Wednesday noon. The club has accepted an invitation to be the guests of H. H. Davenport at Pomfret next week and will be served a Rhode Island clam bake.

The local union of the American Federation of Textile Operatives, members of which employed at the mill of the Manhasset Manufacturing Company in this city have been on strike for the past twelve weeks, is to hold an outdoor meeting in a lot at the corner of Providence and Maynard streets this (Thursday) evening at 7 o'clock. One of the speakers will be General Secretary John P. O'Connell of Salem. Heretofore the union has held its meetings in Foresters' hall. Officials of the organization say that the public has been led to believe that these meetings were behind closed doors and private, and few if any other than former employes attended. To bring their side of the controversy home to the people of Putnam, a series of open air meetings on locations secured by the union for that purpose is to be held.

Mark E. Stimson, elected principal of Putnam high school to succeed Principal E. H. Snow, resigned to go to a school in New Jersey, is expected to remove with his family to Putnam in a week or two. The family is now in Maine. Mr. Stimson is a graduate of Bates college, Lewiston, Me., and has been engaged in educational work since his graduation in 1913. He is 33 and saw service in France during the World War.

At a meeting of the ticket committee of Putnam Chautauqua, of which Iver Nelson is chairman, it was decided to mail hundreds of programs of Chautauqua week to people in and near Putnam. One of the events of Junior Chautauqua this year will be a kite-flying tournament.

J. L. Cady of Willimantic, 78, pedaled a bicycle from the Thread City to Putnam to call on his friend Judge J. Harry Mann. Not waiting for breakfast, Mr. Cady started from Willimantic before five o'clock and made the 28 miles before ten o'clock. He left for home in the late afternoon and made the return trip safely.

Notification has been received by the first selectman that the town's share of the County tax which was levied at a meeting held in the state capital at Hartford on the 17th of April 1923, is $941.75, which is payable July 1st, 1923.

Can you tell a Thoroughbred Horse when you see one?

SURE you can. You've admired thoroughbreds on the Polo Field or at the Horse Show or at the track. "Class" is what distinguishes them, and it's what distinguishes cigars, too.

Smokers say that Peter Schuyler Panetela is a "thoroughbred." It has a long, slender, graceful shape that appeals to the eye and taste of fastidious men. Here is the prime, ripe, mellow quality of choicest Havana tobacco—for the filler of Peter Schuyler Panetela is all Havana. The wrapper is neutral Sumatra—the finest wrapper leaf grown. What wonderful delicacy of taste! What welcome mildness! What exquisite fragrance!

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

Total stock sales, 889,500 shares.

Twenty industrials averaged $5.96, net gain 1.05. High 1923, 105.38; low $6.91.

Twenty railroads averaged, 77.91, net gain .77. High 1923, 80.63; low, 76.85.

RALLY IN STOCK MARKET

New York, August 1.—Extensive short covering operations, inspired by the marked over-night improvement in the president's condition, publication of several favorable earnings reports and a bullish government cotton report, brought about a sharp recovery in prices in today's stock market. Most of the popular rail and industrial leaders closed at net gain of 1 to 2 1-2 points.

The opening was the strongest in several months. It indicated the presence of a large short interest which apparently had become unwieldy. While there was some buying by so-called "bargain hunters," the bulk of the business was of professional origin.

Earnings of the steel corporation were nearly $3,000,000 above earlier estimates and this fact, together with an optimistic statement by Chairman E. H. Gary on the business outlook, brought about heavy buying of the steel shares. U. S. Steel common was jumped up more than 2 points to 87 3-4 and then fell back to 87 1-4. Bethlehem, Crucible, Republic and Gulf States Steels closed 1 3-8 to 2 1-8 points higher on the day.

Rubber and sugar shares developed temporary weakness, the former on reports of impending tire cuts which were later denied and the latter on further reductions in the raw and refined products. Both groups rallied, however, before the close. Both U. S. Rubber and Kelly-Springfield established new lows for the year.

Baldwin, Studebaker, Corn Products, American Car and Foundry, Dupont, General Electric, Houston, the Pan-American issues, Pullman, Sears Roebuck, Stromberg Carburetor and Maxwell Motors A were among the active issues to show net gains of 1 3-4 to 3 points on the day.

Rails also moved to higher ground, but the gains, as a rule, were limited to a point or so. Great Northern preferred, Rock Island common and the two classes of preferred, Northern Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio and New York Central were conspicuously strong.

Call money renewed at 6 per cent, but softened to 5 1-2 and thence to 5, confirming an impression that the higher rate was merely incidental to month-end settlements. Time money was somewhat scarcer with some of the longer maturities being arranged at 5 1-4 per cent.

Weakness of the French franc which dropped 7 1-2 points to 5.73 cents, a new low for the year, was the feature of the irregular foreign exchange market. Belgian francs also touched a new low at 4.66 1-2 cents. Sterling held steady around $4.56 5-8.

WHY STAY FAT? YOU CAN REDUCE

The answer of most fat people is that it is too hard, too troublesome and too dangerous to force the weight down. Marmola Prescription Tablets overcome all these difficulties. They are absolutely harmless, entail no dieting, exercise, or absurd greases and salves, and have the added advantage of cheapness. A case is sold at one dollar by all druggists the world over, or send the price direct to the Marmola Co., 4612 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich. Now that you known this, you have no excuse for being fat, but can reduce steadily and easily without going through long sieges of tiresome exercise and starvation diet or fear of bad effects.

GIRL CLAIMS SHE WAS FORCED TO MARRY AGAINST HER WILL

Claiming she was forced into marriage against her will and under duress Anna Rinehart, a minor, of Bozrah, has petitioned the superior court for a divorce from William Rinehart of Bozrah, or for a court order declaring the marriage void. As the girl is a minor the action is brought in her behalf through Andrew Covelanko.

The girl's maiden name was Anna Covelanko and the marriage ceremony took place June 16th of this year. The plaintiff charges in the complaint that at the time of the marriage she was in bodily fear of the defendant and was forced to enter into said marriage against her will and under duress on account of the fact that the defendant threatened to do bodily harm to the plaintiff if she refused to marry him and also threatened to shoot and kill himself unless the plaintiff entered into said marriage."

The girl also charges that Rinehart falsely and fraudulently obtained from the town clerk of the Town of Norwich a marriage certificate falsely representing and swearing that the plaintiff was of age. She claims that she had no knowledge of these facts and that the marriage certificate was obtained without her consent.

The plaintiff asks that the superior court grant her a divorce or that an order be issued by the court declaring the marriage void as provided by statute. She also asks that she be given permission to resume her maiden name Anne Covelanko. The papers in the case were filed late Wednesday afternoon with the clerk of the superior court.

Judge Wheeler, it is said, will come to meet the law officials early next week.

The temperance party, or at least the anti-liquor interests in the state, are collecting information as to the disposition of liquor cases in the police courts and tabbing them in to the common pleas courts that the disposition of them may be known. Representatives of the anti-liquor interests are now going over the state securing the information sought.

INTERESTING TALKS AT WEEKLY ROTARY SESSION

There were a number of interesting talks at the noonday luncheon at the Norwich Rotary club on Wednesday, one of the most interesting being Sid Alling's talk on the founding and progress of the Alling Rubber company. This company from a small start in Norwich is now controlling a claim of stores in six states. Another talk that was highly interesting was that of Grosvenor Ely, who has recently returned from a trip along the Newfoundland coast in a small fishing smack. Charles R. Butts also told an interesting tale of his vacation trip.

In his talk on the growth of the Alling Rubber Company Mr. Alling said:

The Alling Rubber Company was started 40 years ago when my uncle, Noyes E. Alling came to Norwich and went into the manufacture of women's rain coats on the present site near the present West Side silk mill, in partnership with John Mitchell, Sr. In 1887 they opened a retail store in the Carroll building on Washington Square for the sole purpose of selling rain coats made in the mill.

About 1891, my father, W. S. Alling, formed a partnership with my uncle and they opened a rubber and men's furnishing store in the Breed Hall building under the name of Alling Bros.

In the meantime the manufacture of clothing had been discontinued. In 1894 they moved occupying part of the store now occupied by the White Star Clothing Co., next to Utley & Jones, and gave up the men's furnishings business.

The name was changed to Alling Rubber Co. and Noyes E. Alling moved to Bridgeport and opened the first branch store. Since that time we have opened more than one new store each year until we now have over 30 in six states.

In 1894 our gross sales were about $15,000 where they are now over $2,000,000. In the early days rubber footwear was shipped to us in barrels and was made in only three sizes, men's, women's and childrens. It was made of pure gum and stretched over the shoe to fit. Water bottles were made up of flat pieces cemented together and bound with rubber binding by hand. Today they are moulded in one piece by machinery. Rubber gloves were made in the same way whereas they are now dipped.

We sold tires from the time they were first used. Automobile tires originally ran from a two inch to a three and a half inch size, all of clincher fabric type held on by lugs. In those days a 30 by 3½ fabric tire cost as much as a 4½ inch cord does today or about $40. The average person bought about three sets a year and they averaged to run less than 1500 miles. Today the same size costs less than $10, and lasts the average man nearly two years or 7500 miles. That means five times the tire mileage at a quarter of the cost. Figure that out and don't kick about the cost of your car.

We were incorporated in 1907 and adopted for our slogan, "If It's Made of Rubber We Have It." In order to live up to our slogan we have to carry about 500 staple items and about 500 seasonable items. We built up this business on three basic principles—in the first place the best merchandise we could buy—the most careful service we could secure, and a square deal to everyone.

My father died in 1919 and my uncle, Noyes E. Alling, retired last year. The business is now handled by my brother, Ward T. Alling of New London, and C. E. Alling of Stamford, W. C. Miner of Albany, A. P. Mitchell of Hartford and myself, all of whom except myself have been connected with the company for over 20 years.

During the last 10 years we have been developing our real estate department, handling the purchase, sale and construction of business properties. We now own buildings in Albany, Utica, and Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Paterson, N. J., Stamford, Bridgeport, Meriden, Middletown, New London, Norwich, Willimantic and Waterbury, Conn., and Westerly, R. I. This is handled in a separate department from our store business, although as a rule the stores are among the tenants.

In closing may I thank Norwich through you for the support given us in the early days for it is through the original success of this store that the present chain of stores has come into existance.

Mr. Ely told of the difficulties of transportation on a trip to a place where the only means of transportation to the outside world was by steamer that made a trip only once in two weeks less than six months a year. He told of how the natives depend almost entirely on the sea for their livelihood and how some years they are on the verge of starvation owing to lack of flour. He said that during his entire trip he did not find a doctor or dentist in any of the Newfoundland coast settlements. The people he said lead a rough life but are remarkably hardy and healthy.

At the business session President Charles A. Saxton presided and Ed Harris, junior member of the Rotary club, was the song leader and although a little new at the job he kept things moving like one of the old-timers. Ed evened up some old scores by calling on various members of the club for solos and quartette selections. One of the most remarkable of these being the solo by Joseph C. Worth which Joe, although lacking the volume of a Caruso, made a lasting impression. The directors also favored with a selection and Bill Park led the crowd in the "Farm Song."

Announcement was made of the fall conclave at Rutland and members were asked to make their reservations for hotel accomodations as soon as possible. It being Dr. H. B. Agnew's birthday a suitable gift was presented to him by Frank Welch on behalf of the club.

PRESIDENT WARREN G. HARDING DIED INSTANTLY AND WITHOUT WARNING AT 7.30 LAST NIGHT

Death Came to the Chief Executive of the United States While Conversing With Members of His Family—Death Was Due to Some Brain Evolvement, Probably Apoplexy—He Had Been Free From Discomfort During the Day—Mrs. Harding Withstood the Shock of Her Husband's Death With Remarkable Fortitude, "The Bravest Member of the Group."

Presidential Headquarters, San Francisco, Aug. 2.—(By The A. P.)—Warren G. Harding, president of the United States, died instantaneously and without warning tonight at 7.30 o'clock, a victim of a stroke of apoplexy, which struck him down in his weakened condition after an illness of exactly a week.

The chief executive of the nation, and by virtue of his office and personality, one of the world's leading figures, passed away at the time when his physicians, his family and his people thought that medical skill, hope and prayer had won the battle against disease.

The disease had been conquered, the fight was out, but seven days of silent, though intense suffering had left their mark and a stroke of apoplexy came without an instant's warning and before physicians could be called, members of his party summoned, or remedial measures taken, he passed from life's stage after having for nearly two and a half years served his nation and for many more years his native state of Ohio.

Story of Tragic End.

The story of the president's tragic end was told of in this way:

"The president died at 7.30 p. m. Mrs. Harding and the two nurses, Miss Ruth Powderly and Miss Sue Dawsner were in the room at the time. Mrs. Harding was reading to the president when utterly without warning a slight shudder passed through his frame, he collapsed, and all recognized that the end had come. A stroke of apoplexy was the cause of his death.

"Within a few minutes all of the president's official party had been summoned."

In a second official statement issued at 8.02 p. m., the statement was made that death had been caused by a stroke of apoplexy.

Duties Devolve Upon Coolidge.

With the passing of Mr. Harding the office of president devolves upon Calvin Coolidge, vice president of the United States, a man silent in nature, but demonstrated as strong in emergencies. He was notified of the death of Mr. Harding at his home in Plymouth, Vt.

The suddeness with which the end came was shown by the fact that only Mrs. Harding and the two nurses, Ruth Powerly and Sue Dausser, were in the room at the time. Mrs. Harding, with her characteristic faithfulness and constant tenderness, was reading to the president at the time.

Then without a warning a slight shudder passed through the frame of the chief executive, he collapsed and the end came. Immediately the indications of distress showed themselves Mrs. Harding ran to the door and called for Lieutenant Commander Boone and for the other doctors to come, quickly.

Fortitude of Mrs. Harding.

It was announced in a fourth official statement issued at 8.32 p. m., that Mrs. Harding had withstood the shock of her husband's death and continued to be "the bravest member of the group." Her first words when she realized the president had died were: "I am not going to break down."

The statement said:

"Mrs. Harding, who from the beginning of the president's illness had expressed complete confidence in his recovery, did not break down. On the other hand, she continued, as from the beginning, the bravest member of the group.

"When it was realized that the president had actually passed away, she turned to those in the room, whose concern had turned to her and said, 'I am not going to break down.'"

Only Drs. Sawyer and Boone, the chief and assistant physicians, were able to reach the room before the nation's leader passed away. They were powerless to do anything. Brave in the face of the president's illness, Mrs. Harding remained brave in realization of his death and did not break down.

Members of the president's party said it was probable that the president's body would leave San Francisco Friday evening but that it was impossible to make a definite announcement tonight because of the absence from the city of George B. Christian, Jr., the executive's secretary. Neither were the members of the party able to say whether the body would be taken to Marion or to Washington, but will remain at the hotel here until removed directly to the train.

SKETCH OF THE LIFE OF WARREN G. HARDING

Warren G. Harding brought to the presidency an infinite patience and kindness in dealing with public questions and men, which enabled him to handle the problems of the government without stress and worry which had handicapped many of his predecessors.

Whatever else historians may say of him there probably will be little dispute that few chief executives came to office in peace time facing problems more complex in their nature or greater in number. All international affairs were unbalanced as never before, with many principal settlements of the Great War still to be effectuated. At home the work of reconstruction had only just begun, with business depressed, agriculture prostrate and unemployment general.

How Mr. Harding measured up to the task before him must be left to the historian, but his friends said that coming to the presidency as he did with an open mind, a desire for counsel and an intimate knowledge of the processes of government acquired in his services in the Senate, he was the type of man needed for the job at such a time.

Preaching upon every occasion the doctrine of Americanism, he set his face resolutely against "Entangling Alliances." While thus adhering to what he was pleased to term the principles of the founding fathers, he nevertheless lent the moral assistance of the government in the efforts to bind up the wounds of the world.

That influence was once declared by him to be not inconsiderable, and so America under his guidance had a part, silent though it was in the main in effecting the settlements of many vexing world questions. Its chief contribution was the Washington Arms Conference at which the principal powers covenanted to limit the size of their navies and thus lift from tax weary peoples the burden of maintaining the race for naval supremacy.

Along with the proffer of counsel in effecting world settlements went an insistance that American rights be recognized. In polished phrase, but with a directness of expression that was not to be misconstrued, the world was given to understand from the very first of the Harding administration that the United States, freely respecting the rights of other nations, asked for herself only that to which she was entitled in simple justice, and that she could accept nothing less.

Counsellor Rather Than Dictator

While in his dealings with Congress Mr. Harding preferred the role of counsellor rather than dictator, he speedily removed any doubt that his gift of patience denoted any lack of purpose once he had charted a course. Thus he told Congress that soldiers' bonus legislation either should carry the means of financing or be postponed, and when the legislators put aside his advice he promptly vetoed the bill they sent him.

His tenacity of purpose was further exemplified in his continual pounding for economy in public expenditures and again in his insistence that Congress pass the merchant marine aid bill with a view to curtailing the continual drain which the operation of the war-built commercial fleet had become upon the Treasury. His greatest single effort in the field of domestic legislation was in behalf of this measure.

Not infrequently Mr. Harding was called upon to play the role of peacemaker in governmental affairs. He intervened in a dispute between Congress and the Treasury as to the form general tax revision was to take, and the program he approved was carried out in the main with a reduction of more than half a billion in the nation's tax burden.

Likewise, his counsel settled the long controversy between the House and Senate on the question of American valuation in the tariff law. He proposed in its place a flexible tariff arrangement under which the Tariff Commission was given authority with his approval to increase or lower rates within prescribed limitations. Upon signing the bill, the President declared it constituted the greatest tariff reform in American history.

Mr. Harding came of hardy pioneer stock. He was born at Blooming Grove, Morrow County, Ohio, November 2, 1865, the son of a country doctor, George T. Harding. Like most country boys he went to country school between morning and night chores and later attended college at Iberia, Ohio. He tried school teaching for a year, but having had a smell of printers' ink while sticking type for his college paper, the lure drew him into the newspaper field.

First Newspaper Job

His family meantime had moved to Marion, in an adjoining county, where he obtained his first newspaper job, and where his life interests were centered thereafter. Mr. Harding's ambition was to become a publisher, and it was realied at the age of 19 when he bid in the Marion Star at a sheriff's sale. The paper was purchased under a heavy mortgage and his friends have often said that the struggles and hardships which were his in making this paper a success had much to do in fashioning his character and developing a broad patience and tolerance which were his chief characteristics.

Whatever his other attainments, Mr. Harding's greatest pride was in his professional accomplishments and training as printer, editor and publisher. Nor did the interests and exacting duties of his high office serve to dull his delight in pottering about a composing room. On his first trip back home after his inauguration, he went to the Star office, pulled off his coat, rolled up his sleeves, borrowed a chew of tobacco and helped "make up" the paper. His luck-charm was a printer's rule, carried always in a vest pocket.

As his ambition had carried him into the ranks of publishers, so his fancy took him into the realm of politics. Fro mthe first he was an ardent partison, and his insistence upon wearing a "stove pipe" hat, the badge of support of James G. Blaine, while a reporter on a Democratic newspaper brought him a sharp reprimand from his chief, who held it to be inconsistent for a worker on a Democratic paper to so prominently display the symbol of his Republicanism.

Ability as a Stump Speaker

The future president's ability as a stump speaker won him early recognition from his local party leaders. Marion County then was in the Democratic column and he undertook to switch it to the Republican party, but his first effort at office on his party ticket resulted in a defeat, though he commanded an unexpected vote.

Mr. Harding's first political office was that of Ohio State Senator, to which he was elected at the age of 34. He served two terms and later was elected Lieutenant Governor of his state. In 1910 he sought the governorship, but was defeated. Four years later he was elected to the United States Senate, where he served six years, much of the time as a member of the important Foreign Relations Committee. From this place he was elevated to the Presidency, the first Senator to be elected Chief Executive.

The President was a life-long Baptist and was a trustee of his home church in Marion. He also had been a member of the Elk and Moose fraternities for years, and after his election as president he became a thirty-second degree Mason and a Shriner.

Golf was his favorite recreation, but he also liked to fish, although his opportunities for that sport were limited after he came to the White House. He played hard and possessed the faculty of putting all his worries behind him during his recreation hours.

CHARACTER SKETCH OF DEAD CHIEF EXECUTIVE

Washington, Aug. 2 (By the A. P.)—Massive in frame and feature, a figure to attract a second look in any crowd, that was Warren G. Harding, the man.

Although slightly less than six feet in height, he carried his 210 pounds without any hint of obesity and his unusually broad, and high forehead and heavy, square jaw rounded out an impression of force and distinction.

Contrasting sharply with his almost silver-grey hair were markedly thick black eyebrows which almost masked a pair of calm, gray eyes. In repose his face took on the aspect of severity so often seen in his photographs, but when he talked or listened the lines were broken by a smile that radiated cordiality.

A Good Mixer.

Mr. Harding was both a good conversationalist and a good listener and he loved to rub elbows with his fellow man. His first official order was that the gates to the White House grounds be thrown open and at the start he received visitors at almost any hour of the day. This took up so much of his time, however, that the establishment of a fixed hour for this purpose was decided upon.

Each day after he had cleared his desk and was ready for luhch he received groups of visitors in the executive offices, shaking hands and exchanging a smile and a word with each individual White House officers estimated that an average of 1,000 persons called upon him daily. He revived also the more formal functions, such as the New Year receptions and the state and diplomatic dinners.

Was Fond of Children.

Mr. Harding was very fond of children, though he had none of his own and Easter egg rolling on the White House lawns was made an annual event. He and Mrs. Harding mingled freely with the little tots and appeared to find much enjoyment in watching them play.

In his rest hours, Mr. Harding liked to have around him his personal friends and intimates, in whose company he could put aside the dignity and cares of state and with whom he could swap stories and reminiscences. It was not surprising then that, like Cleveland before him, he frequently slipped away from the White House in the evening to pay informal calls upon former associates in the senate and other close friends.

Golf was Mr. Harding's favorite recreation and whenever public affairs permitted he sought the links of a Washington country club. His friends of the senate frequently were his opponents and in such matches there always developed a keen, though friendly rivalry. By virtue of his position as an editor and publisher, he participated also in the annual golf tournaments of the Washington correspondents.

WASHINGTON SHOCKED BY NEWS OF DEATH

Washington, Aug. 2. (By the A. P.)—News of the death of President Harding fell with almost paralyzing effect on the national capital.

Never entirely awakened to the seriousness of his illness, officials of the government had been encouraged by the improvement of the past few days and a feeling of confidence that he would soon recover was almost universal.

All of those in high official position, however, had arranged for telephone notification in case of a relapse, and within a half hour after word of the president's death came most of them had learned of it. In every case the news was received with expressions of painful shock.

As the news began to reach those on the street there were scenes of sorrow such as had not been witnessed here in many years. Never before had Washington been so unprepared to hear of the death of a chief executive, and the circle of Mr. Harding's friends was one extending down to some of the lowliest of the residents of the capital for during his two and a half years in the White House he had made a place in many hearts by his human qualities and his attitude of constant helpfulness toward everyone.

In the confusion of the moment there was little thought of the formalities by which Vice President Coolidge was to be elevated to the presidency. The custom in the past has been for the cabinet to hold a meeting under the chairmanship of the secretary and state, and to formally notify the vice president of the new responsibilities devolving automatically upon him under the Constitution. Plans for any such action were taking shape but slowly tonight, however, under the overpowering pall of the sudden death of Mr. Harding.

Secretary Hughes and Postmaster General New are the only cabinet officials in Washington. Both of them, together with the other officials high in the administration were almost prostrated by the news. Most members of congress also are away from the capital, but those remaining joined in the general expressions of sorrow and regret.

Rudolph Forster, executive secretary at the White House, was first notified of the president's death by The Associated Press, as was Edward T. Clark, secretary to Mr. Coolidge. Mr. Clark immediately took steps to communicate with his chief in Plymouth, Vermont, by telephone.

WAS SIXTH PRESIDENT TO DIE WHILE IN OFFICE

New York, Aug. 2.—President Harding, the twenty-ninth president of the United States, was the sixth president to die in office and the third chief executive from Ohio so to die.

William Henry Harrison was the first to die while president. He died April 4, 1841, at Washington, after serving but one month of his term.

Zachary Taylor died at Washington July 9, 1850, after serving one year, four months and 5 days.

Abraham Lincoln was assassinated at Ford's theatre, Washington, April 14, 1865, dying the next day. He had served four years, one month and 11 days.

James A. Garfield was shot in the Pennsylvania station at Washington, July 2, 1881, and died at Elberon, N. J., September 19, 1881. He had served six and a half months.

William McKinley was shot twice, September 6, 1901, while in the Temple of Music at the Panama Exposition at Buffalo, N. Y. He died eight days later, having served four years, six months and ten days.

President Harding, who died tonight at San Francisco, had been chief executive two years, four months and 29 days.

CASE PARALLEL WITH COLLAPSE OF WILSON

Washington, Aug. 2.—(By the A. P.)—There was a striking parallel between the circumstances which led up to President Harding's fatal illness and those which preceded the physical collapse of President Wilson during a western speaking trip in 1919.

Mr. Wilson had left Washington with the avowed purpose of carrying to the people the gospel of peace as he conceived it to be bound up in American participation in the League of Nations in the case of President Harding it was well known among his friends that he went into the West determined to explain to the people his conception of world peace as hinging on American participation in the world court.

When he cancelled the remainder of his trip at Wichita, Kansas, Mr. Wilson had traveled 8,200 miles in the heat of late summer, and had delivered more than forty speeches. When Mr. Harding surrendered to the order of his physician at San Francisco he had traveled 7,500 miles, and had made upward of sixty speeches.

By another strange freak of circumstances, each was to an accident near Seattle just before he reviewed the Pacific fleet there during his trip. A launch bearing the President and Mrs. Wilson away from the Seattle was rammed and nearly overturned by another small boat, while in the case of President Harding the naval transport Henderson, bringing him and Mrs. Harding back from Alaska, rammed a destroyer just outside Seattle harbor.

When he was taken ill, Mr. Wilson was 62 years old Mr. Harding was 57.

GREAT EVENTS OF THE HARDING ADMINISTRATION

Washington, Aug. 2.—(By the A. P.)—These constituted the "high spots" in the events of the Harding administration:

Re-establishment of peace with Germany and Austria.

The calling of the arms conference which approved the Naval Limitation Treaty and the Four-Power Pacific Pact.

Ratification of the treaty with Colombio resulting from the partitioning of Panama.

Revision of the tax and tariff laws.

Restriction of immigration.

Farmer aid legislation with particular reference to easier credits on liberal terms.

Establishment of budget bureau.

Veto of the soldier's bonus bill.

Extension of the program of aid for wounded, sick and disabled veterans of the World War.

Advocacy of American participation in the world court.

BROTHER RECEIVES NEWS THROUGH A NEIGHBOR

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 2.—Dr. George T. Harding of this city received word of the death of his brother, President Harding, through a neighbor, whose home is equipped with a radio. He had the message within a few minutes after news of the President's death was flashed from San Francisco.

"Yes, I have heard that brother is dead and I am very sorry," he said, when called shortly after the news was flashed. "It seems too bad that so useful a man had to be taken."

GOVERNOR TEMPLETON TELEGRAPHS CONDOLENCE

"Mrs. Warren G. Harding, San Francisco, Calif.

"Connecticut mourns with you in your overwhelming loss. Our state loved the president as Connecticut's own son. May God in His infinite mercy comfort and sustain you.

(Signed) CHARLES A. TEMPLETON,
"Governor."

BRIEF SKETCH OF NEW PRESIDENT CALVIN COOLIDGE

Washington, Aug. 2 (By the A. P.)—Calvin Coolidge is perhaps better equipped by experience to take up his administrative duties in the White House than was any of his predecessors who have been called to that high office by the death of a president.

President Coolidge was born on Independence Day, 1872, in Plymouth, a remote country village in the hills of Vermont, the son of John C. and Victoria J. (Moor) Coolidge. Descended from John and Mary Coolidge, who had settled in Watertown, Mass., about 1630, his ancestry runs through a long line of farmers who lived in Massachusetts until the president's great great grandfather moved from Lancaster into Vermont. Here the Coolidge family through generations tilled the soil, raised live stock, produced maple syrup and sugar, and were among the persons of influence in their community.

To him in boyhood came the unusual experiences of a country boy living on a lonely farm, the son of the village storekeeper. Here was born in him the industry, frugality and self-reliance which became notable in later years. His mother died when he was 13, and four years later he lost his only sister, but there was always deep affection and a warm bond of sympathy between him and his stepmother.

After attending the ungraded country school in Plymouth, the future president continued his studies at Black River Academy in Ludlow, and later went to the Academy at St. Johnsbury.

LLOYD GEORGE OPPOSED TO FRENCH FLAG IN THE RUHR

In the House of Commons, the Former Premier Upbraided the British Government For Not Having Any Definite Policy—Feeling in France is That There is No Immediate Danger of a Rupture in the Enterate—France Desires More Active Participation by the Official American Delegates on the Reparations Commission.

London, Aug. 2.—(By the A. P.)—Former Premier Lloyd George, speaking on the reparations situation in the House of Commons this afternoon, scored the government for not having any definite policy. He declared that with the parliamentary recess at hand and big events impending the House was entitled to know what the British policy was to be.

Incidentally Mr. Lloyd George declared the sentimental factor of the French flag in the Ruhr and its bearing upon France's national honor must not be ignored and he questioned whether that situation should not be accepted.

At the outset Mr. Lloyd George deplored his inability to find any definite policy in the speeches of Premier Baldwin.

There was no secret diplomacy on the part of the French Government, continued Mr. Lloyd George. Premier Poincare of France, he added, had emphatically made clear that he did not propose to negotiate with Germany until she capitulated and that France would not leave the Ruhr until the last payment was made to her. Having received overwhelming support for this policy, the speaker asked, did they think they were going to induce Poincare to deviate from it by sending him more notes? Was it not best to accept the situation?

"The French flag is in the Ruhr," asserted Mr. Lloyd George. "The honor of the country is involved. One must not overlook what appear to be sentimental but what are really fundamental things that govern nations".

Two fundamental mistakes have been made, went on the former Premier. Although the entrance into the Ruhr was declared illegal the majority of the allies allowed France to go there, which was the first mistake; the second was that the proposal of Secretary of State Hughes for an international commission to inquire into Germany's ability to pay was not adopted.

"Before the Commons meets again one of two things may happen," Mr. Lloyd George said. "First, the collapse of Germany, second, the capitulation of Germany. What our policy is to be in the case of either the House ought to know.

"Never before has the government of this country got into such a position in its relations with the European powers. Here is a question which intimately concerns our commerce, our finance, our position in Europe—and we are not consulted."

Mr. Lloyd George ended his address demanding, "having due regard to the position we hold in Europe and the part we played in the war the government will state distinctly and fairly what their policy is."

President's Address To Knights Templar

Presented by Sec'y Christian When Presenting International Traveling Beausant at Hollywood, Cal.

Hollywood, California, Aug. 2.—George B. Christian, Jr., secretary of the president, presented to the Hollywood commandery number 56, Knight Templar, the international traveling beausant of the order here today, instead of President Warren G. Harding, who is ill in San Francisco. Secretary Christian read the speech the President had prepared for the presentation.

The international traveling beausant is a banner symbolic of the great Godre. The original banner was carried in the crusades of the first Knights Templar. The present beausant originated in the priory of Canada and was started on its trip around the world when it was presented to the commandery at Buffalo.

It was brought here from President Harding's commandery at Marion, Ohio.

Speaking in the Hollywood bowl, a natural amphitheatre in the hills here, Secretary Christian, reading the President's prepared address said:

"I gladly and proudly join in sending this banner on its highly purposed journey, which is to continue probably beyond the span of the lives of these here assembled. Wherever it inspires more of real brotherhood, more of devotion to Christ's simplest teachings, it will not have been borne in vain.

"I charge that it shall not be held as a banner of militant force, not as a memorial of deeds of arms, not as a mere piece of ritualistic pageantry, but as the symbol of brotherhood raised to the glory of our grand commander, whose law was to love, whose reign was peace, and for whom the herald angels sang: 'Glory to God in the highest; on earth peace and good will toward men.'"

"It was a beautiful idea which brought about a reproduction of the banner under which the Knights of the Holy Grail went forth to battle to the death with the Saracens for the restoration of the holy land and its shrines to christian hands, and to send it on a pilgrimage to the temples of the latter day christian knights to re-awaken or re-animate their faith and devotion. The reproduced beausant will not encounter the storms, the fanticism and the romances of knighthood which attended the original banner, but I trust its journeys will encounter no less of conscience and no less of noble purpose."

After tracing the history of the beausant down through the ages, Mr. Christian read:

"I am sure the mission of the beausant will be a failure if its travels are made simply a matter of symbolism and pageantry. It bears emblazoned upon it the supplication: 'Not unto us, O Lord, not unto us, but unto Thy name be the glory.'

"We should glorify the holy name, not by words, not by praise, not by displays at arms, but by deeds and service in behalf of human brotherhood. Christ, the great exemplar of our order repeatedly urged this truth upon his bearers. There was nothing mythical or mystical in the code of living preached by Jesus Christ. The lessons he taught were so simple and plain, so fashioned to be marked by the humblest among men, that they appealed to the reason and emotions of all. His words to the fishermen bore conviction to the learned men of the roman bench.

"All of his teachings were based upon the broad ground of fraternalism, and justice, and understanding, from which flows always peace. 'A new commandment, I give unto you—that ye love one another.' Surely in this was all the laws and the gospels. I make bold to say, in reflective deliberation, there is nothing in templar knighthood, nothing in obligation, lecture or exemplification, nothing in practice where obligation is kept, which could not be openly, and with equal simplicity, proclaimed to the world.

"I am a confirmed optimist as to the growth of the spirit of brotherhood. Science and genius are lending their aid to the removal of the obstacles to intercourse and attending understandings among the peoples of the world. We do rise to heights, at times, when we look for the good rather than the evil in others, and give consideration to the views of all. The inherent love of fellowship is banding men together and when envy and suspicion are vanquished, fraternity records a triumph, and brotherhood brings new blessing to men and to peoples in the larger sense.

"Because I am holding temporarily a position of official prominence I have been privileged in being invited into association with many of our so-called secret, fraternal societies. I find that each of them has its foundation and the reason for its existence the furtherance of brotherhood and the christian virtues of charity, mercy, justice and brotherly love. Moreover, the practice of these virtues has been suggested by the ways of happiness in the daily lives of men. For example—I am sure it will be no breach of faith to relate it—I was admitted into a fraternity of Alaskan pioneers and I was obliged never to kick a dog, or to work a horse with a sore back or shoulder.

"Now that was a simple thing that Christ himself would have urged; it was an expression of mercy and affection by these pioneers for the brutes who could not speak a protest, of considerate concern for a life of service. On the whole I am well persuaded that many tenders of fellowship have come to me because men wish to have practiced in official life the teachings of brotherhood and friendship and sympathy which have sweetened their own pathways."

LEADING FEATURES OF FRENCH REPLY TO BRITAIN

Paris, Aug. 2.—(By the A. P.)—The Express wish for more active participation by the unofficial American delegate on the reparation commission, and the suggestion that if Great Britain would initse plans to Germany that she disapproves on a "ruination policy" it would immediately mend things, are the leading features of Premier Poincare's reply to the British reparations note.

The substance of the French reply was given out this evening after it became known that the British ministers had disclosed the contents of the British note.

Brussells, Aug. 2.—(By the A. P.)—The Belgian government has instructed its embassador at London to express to the British government the opinion that the publication of the documents relating to the recent pourparlers would be inopportune, because it might render continued exchanges of views difficult, according to a semi-official note published by Le Sofr.

A Chevrolet coupe owned by Daniel Levin, of this city, was considerably damaged, about 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon, when run into by a lumber wagon drawn by a runaway horse. The animal was the property of Hygass Thomchin of Columbia and becoming frightened at a passing bicyclist bolted from the place where it had been left standing, near Scheinman's store on Center street, and ran up Union street. In rounding the corner the wagon slewed to the opposite side of the road and struck the Levin machine which was parked at that place. Both left fenders and the running board were smashed. The animal dashed into Main street, causing a scurry of automobiles out of the danger zone. As the steed passed the Cohen block, Johnny Haran, an employe of the firm of Foley and Henry, made a spectacular leap onto the swaying wagon and crawling along the shafts reached the horse's head and grasped the animal by the rein. The animal swerved and climbed onto the sidewalk opposite the Kimball block and tore along the sidewalk until it became wedged between the Patrick J. Minnihan block and a barber pole. The horse was uninjured and the wagon was but slightly damaged. State Policeman Hulburt and Acting Chief of Police Allan McArthur came and hauled the wagon into a driveway. The horse was led away by Mr. Thomchin.

It is a dangerous stunt for a bicycle rider to come alongside an automobile and try to cut across the front of it, whether the machine be a Lizzie or a Rolls- Royce. One local boy will agree that he had a very narrow escape from serious injury Wednesday noon, on lower Main street, when he tried that same stunt with a car driven by its owner, Carl Zeigler of Scotland. When the boy made a quick turn in the road his bicycle struck the fender of the Zeigler machine and he was thrown with some force, although sustaining slight injuries. The boy, whose name was not given out, was taken to his home and the matter was reported to the police department.

Albert Saipal of New Britain, has instituted civil proceedings against Julius Radun, also of New Britain, for the recovery of $850 in damages. The case will be heard before the New Britain city court the fourth Monday in August. It is alleged in the writ that the defendant, January 1, 1921, gave his note for $500 payable six months after date with 7 per cent interest and the note is now in the possession of the plaintiff to whom it is payable, and it remains wholly unpaid. Deputy Sheriff Addison J. Greenslit recently served an attachment on a Mack five-ton truck owned by the defendant which was in storage in this city. Two prior attachments were made on the truck for out-of-town parties.

Archibald W. Buchanan, of Mansfield, agent for the state board of education, was at the common council chamber Thursday forenoon to meet applicants between 14 and 16, seeking employment certificates. Six applicants presented themselves and were granted certificates.

Herman Colorado of Willimantic has brought a civil suit against James E. Mead, also of this city, to recover damages of $500. The case, which is returnable before the Windham county superior court the first Tuesday in September, is the outgrowth of an automobile collision between cars owned by the parties concerned, on Union street, July 7. Allegation is made by the plaintiff that the defendant "proceeded carelessly, negligently and at a rate of speed greater than was reasonable and proper" at the time of the collision. It is alleged that the plaintiff's car was badly damaged, the upper crank case and fly wheel housing being smashed. A Ford touring car owned by the defendant has been attached.

Healy is referred to as the dean of section bosses on the four divisions of the New Haven road having terminals in Willimantic. He has completed forty years of service on the road. Mr. Healy states that conditions are much better now than when he was first employed, years ago.

At the session of the police court, Thursday morning, the first case to be taken up was that of Joseph Lesniak, a local barber, charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. Lesniak pleaded not guilty. While driving on North Windham, road, Thursday evening, Lesniak nearly ran into a passing motorcyclist and drove the latter into the bushes at one side of the road. It happened that the driver of the motorcycle was Motorcycle Officer Grant Bombria and as a consequence, Lesniak's Ford car was overtaken and the driver was found to be intoxicated. Lesniak admitted having had two drinks of home brew when arrested. The court imposed a fine of $100 and costs, amounting to $106.25.

Judge Foss severely reprimanded the boy and then sentenced him to the state reformatory for boys, but suspended judgment, placing the youth on probation for six months, in charge of Probation Officer S. Arnold Peckham.

Lyman, of Columbia, leader of the Babcock Cornet band, was in town for the rehearsal that evening, and so came to the picnic, bringing with him the talented young cornetist, Ellsworth Mitten of Andover, age 12. Mr. Vostinak also played several Slavic airs, patriotic and popular, and after repeated applause showed his up-to-date American spirit by a lively interpretation of Yankee Doodle, Dixie and Barney Google. FORECASTS 167,000 EGG YIELD AT STORRS

The management of the laying contest at Storrs has officially forecasted a total yield of 167,000 eggs for the year ending October 30th next. Professor William K. Kirkpatrick, who is in charge of the contest stoutly maintains that a long distance forecast of egg production is quite as reliable as tips on the market or foretelling the weather. Records on a mixed poultry population of 3,000 hens over a period of eight years show that on the average 78 per cent. of the total is laid in the first nine months of the year leaving 22 per cent. for the months of August, September and October. In these first nine months the hens at Storrs have laid over 130,000 eggs. On this base they should therefore lay 167,000 for the year. The nearest actual approach to this high record was made in 1917 when the production exceeded 163,000 eggs.

During the last week in July, F. M. Johnson's pen of Leghorns from Waldoboro, Maine, was an easy first with a score of 53 eggs. A pen of Rhode Island Reds owned by Harriet F. Lawton of Longmeadow, Mass., and three pens of Leghorns entered by Leo F. Grouton of Farmington, Conn., George B. Ferris of Grand Rapids, Michigan and D. E. Walls of Petaluma, Calif., all tied for second place with 50 eggs each. M. J. Quackenbush's pen of Leghorns from Nutley, N. J., was third best pen for the week with a total of 49 eggs. Two Connecticut pens of the same breed entered by W. E. Atkinson and Andrew L. Ohr both of Wallingford, tied for fourth place with 48 eggs each. The total for all pens in the thirty-ninth week was 3,453 eggs or a yield of a little more than 49 per cent.

CLOSING ARGUMENT FOR GOV'T IN MORSE TRIAL

Washington, Aug. 2.—Wartime activities of Charles W. Morse and his three sons, who with four others are on trial here charged with conspiring to defraud the government in the construction and operation of ships were characterized today as treasonable by Wilbur R. Turner, special assistant to the Attorney General, in closing argument for the government. Demanding a verdict of guilty against all eight defendants, Mr. Turner ridiculed the plea of defense counsel that the Morses were engaged in a patriotic endeavor to help the government win the war.

"Consider the evidence," Mr. Turner told the jury, "and all this talk about patriotism goes up in smoke. I prefer to use the name they have supplied me with—treason."

After the prosecution had concluded its argument, Nash Rockwood, chief counsel for the defense, in the absence of the jury, noted exceptions to some of Mr. Turner's remarks. He also made a motion that the government elect under which one of the subdivisions of the counts in the indictment it would stand. The prosecution will have an opportunity to reply tomorrow before Justice Stafford begins his charge to the jury which has been hearing testimony for three months.

The name of William McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, who at one time represented the Morses as an attorney, was brought up today by Edward Allison, also a special assistant to the Attorney General, who addressed the jury before Mr. Turner began his argument. The defense, Mr. Allison declared, attached much importance to the fact that Mr. McAdoo, as counsel, had presented the contentions of the Virginia Shipbuilding Corporation, a Morse concern, before the shipping board.

"Nobody connected with the government is criticizing Mr. McAdoo here," said Mr. Allison. "Mr. McAdoo is a distinguished man, but the brief that he read before the Shipping Board was not prepared by him. And they played a low-down, mean trick on him. They told him a bald falsehood in the brief when they said they had $1,000,000 cash paid in as capital stock."

PROWLER PROVED TO BE BOOTLEGGER, NOT BURGLAR

New York, Aug. 2.—After startling Police Magistrate Corrigan by frankly—almost proudly—proclaiming himself a bootlegger, Herman Otto Stone of Newark, N. J., was held in $1,000 bail today, on a charge of suspicion of burglary, as the mysterious midnight prowler who for the past four months had operated in the Hotel Hermitage.

The hotel guests had complained of hearing ghostly "pit-pats" in the hallways. Learning that the prowler had tried the doors of rooms here and there only to flit away when he found them occupied, the management appealed to the police. Last night detectives planted themselves in an eighth-floor room, leaving the key in the outside of the door.

It was early morning when the "ghost" walked. Swathed in bath towels and beturbaned, he entered the room stealthily. Emerging on the run he was captured after a chase down halls and stairways.

Naitily dressed and dignified of mien, Stone insisted when arraigned that he was a bootlegger, not a burglar, but despite his injured tone he was held for further investigation.

OTTAWA AUTHORITIES TO EXPEL AMERICAN CONVICTS

IMMIGRATION QUOTAS FOR NINE REGIONS EXHAUSTED

New York, Aug. 2.—Immigration quotas for nine regions already have been exhausted in the August rush, Commissioner Curran announced tonight and only 5,000 of the 12,000 immigrants who arrived in the early hours of Wednesday have been examined.

With the other 7,000 waiting impatiently on ships, 3,000 more are expected tomorrow and Saturday. Five hundred more came in today on the Constantinople and Tivivies.

The regions and their quotas so far exhausted are: Africa, aside from Egypt, 31; Egypt, 4; other Asia, the region about Mesopotamia, 19; Palestine, 11; Portugal, 698; Spain, 182; Syria, 177; Turkey, 681; and other Europe including certain small principalities and states, 17.

Because of the unprecedented congestion here, liners have been sent to other ports to land their immigrants. Among them was the Majestic, which sailed today for Boston with 1,685 aliens on board after landing first and second class passengers here. The Finland had been diverted to Boston and the Gothland to Philadelphia. Boston already has reached 2,500 immigrants of this present rush and Philadelphia 500.

Many employes at Ellis Island were recalled from their vacation to take up the work of examining the aliens. There is now a force of 500 employed at the station working from early morning until late at night.

Florida was bought from Spain in 1819.

Clothes Made Whiter With Half The Labor

It is possible to cut washday labor practically in half, yet double satisfaction in the beautiful appearance of the clothes, by the use of the wonderful new discovery, NACO. A little in the tub and perhaps also in the boiler, and no matter how soiled or stained, your table linens and white lines and cotton garments turn out as white and immaculate as when new.

Fruit stains, coffee stains, cocoa stains perspiration stains—even ink stains—quickly dissolve and disappear without leaving a trace. NACO also greatly assists the soap by softening the water and loosening the dirt and grime so that even an collar bands and wrist bands very little rubbing is required. Thus not only is the work considerably lessened, but the life of the garments is appreciably lengthened.

On other days and washdays, too, NACO will be found a wonderful household help. Added to the scrub-bucket and used on floors, walls, woodwork or in the wash-bowl, bathtub and sink it cuts dirt and grease with marvelous ease and sweetens and freshens wherever it goes. It is as harmless, too, as good soap.

For the greatest satisfaction on washday—for efficient assistance throughout the week—get NACO at your grocer's 15 cents the bottle.—Advertisement.

You get all the cream with a De Laval

GETTING all the cream means getting all the profit. It means that more money can be saved, or that more is available for use in building up the farm or for paying expenses.

Not every separator is designed so that it will get all the cream; some may do so for a short time.

But there is one machine that can always be depended upon to skim close—the De Laval. You don't have to take our word for it; ask any De Laval user.

A De Laval user gets more cream from the milk of each cow, gets longer service from his machine, and spends less time turning and washing it. Even if you have only one good cow it will pay you to own a De Laval.

Sooner or later you will buy a

MILLIONAIRE SPORTSMAN COMES NORTH TO MANAGE FIRPO'S AFFAIRS

Buenos Aires, Aug. 2—Horatio Lavalle, wealthy Argentine sportsman, amateur boxer and member of a prominent family, sailed for New York today on the American Legion with the expectation of taking charge of the training of Luis Angelo Firpo for his match with Jack Dempsey.

Senor Lavalle told the associated press that Firpo has accepted his offer to direct his training on the recommendation of the challenger's local adviser and patron, Felix Bunge, with whom he said he expected to keep in touch by cable until the day of the fight.

He said he did not go to the United States with the expectation of replacing Jimmy Deforrest, who trained Firpo for his bout with Jess Willard and some of his previous battles, but would aid Firpo in selecting his partners and advise him in business matters. He said he would omit nothing that would help Firpo in this, the most difficult emergency of the fighter's career.

Senor Lavalle said he wished to make it clear that he was not accepting a cent for his services and that he was paying his own expenses.

"Bunge and I believe," said Senor Lavalle, "that as Firpo's friend and countryman that I would be able to help him more than anybody in the United States. I understand his temperament, viewpoint and mental reactions. I'll be the principal second in his corner in the ring on the night of the fight as his friend and countryman, who will be able to encourage him in his own language. I have never seen Jack Dempsey but I have supreme faith in Firpo."

Lavalle himself holds the title of South American amateur middleweight champion. At the cabled request of Firpo he is taking with him Argentine-made boxing gloves of fourteen ounces weight to use in softening the challenger's blows on his sparring partners.

ENGLISH WOMEN WIN ALL THEIR FIRST MATCHES

Seabright, N. J., Aug. 2—Victories for the four high ranking players who arrived in America yesterday and the movement of William M. Johnston, of San Francisco and R. Norris Williams of Philadelphia, into the final round of the men's singles marked the day's play in the invitation tournament at the Seabright club.

The attention of the gallery was taken in the match between Miss Kathleen McKane, first ranking British woman player, and Mrs. Helen Gilleaudeau Lockhorn, seventh ranking player in the United States. Miss McKane employed an easy but forceful game. Her shots were accurate and she seemed able to force position at will. She defeated the New York young woman, 6-2, 6-1.

Mrs. Geraldine Beamish, ranked next to Miss McKane in England, won from Mrs. Benjamin Cole of Boston, holder of the National indoor and clay court titles, 6-1, 8-6. Mrs. Beamish employed a baffling chop stroke to advantage. In the other matches Mrs. Nancy Covell defeated Miss Helen Hooker, New York, 6-1, 6-1, and Mrs. R. C. Clayton defeated Miss Ceres Baker of Range, N. J., 6-3, 6-3.

The English women also advanced in the third round in the doubles, Mrs. Beamish and Mrs. Clayton winning from Miss Eleonora Sears, Boston and Miss Helen Wills, Berkeley, Cal., by default and Miss McKane and Mrs. Covell defeated Miss Ceres Baker and Miss Edith Handy, 6-2, 6-0.

"Little Bill" Johnston, who holds two legs on the Seabright singles bowl, went into the final round by defeating Harvey Snodgrass, the Los Angeles star, 6-4, 6-1. R. Norris Williams, eliminated the flashy South African, Brian I. C. Norton, 6-3, 6-3.

Johnston, with Clarence J. Griffin, winners of the national doubles titles three times, advanced to the semi-final round of the doubles in winning from Snodgrass and Wallace Bates, the University of California star, 6-2, 18-20, 7-5.

LARGE FIELD ENTERED IN CANADIAN OPEN

Toronto, Aug. 2—One hundred and forty six players, the largest number ever entered in the event, will start play tomorrow in the 72 hole round for the Canadian open golf championship. Sixteen of the entrants are from the United States. Al A. Watrous, of Radford, Mich., who won the title last year with a card of 303, one stroke better than Tom Kerrigan, of Mount Vernon, N. Y., Gene Sarazen, former United States open champion, John Farrell, the young professional of the Quaker Ridge club of Mamaroneck, N. Y., and Jock Hutchison of Chicago, are among the American stars.

A REGULAR TIME PLANNED FOR EAST SIDE NEXT WEEK

The ball is still rolling on the East Side and everything is well underway for the last ball game of the series Tuesday and also for the big parade and celebration after the game. In addition to Houston's Brass band, which will be three times the size it was last week the management has secured the services of Kellner's Town Clown band, known as the most terrible band on earth to take part in the parade.

Before the meeting tonight the management expects to have a third band signed up and also a well known drum corps. The rival managers agreed last night that the manager of the losing team shall ride the goat in the parade. The management extends an invitation to any organization or person to take part in the final celebration. Anyone interested in any way is requested to attend the meeting tonight at the Duwell club.

The whole of the East Side is on edge for the big event and Tuesday evening will be a wild one if the weather man is anyway near agreeable. Both teams are being put through a stiff practice every night so as to be in the pink of condition for the final test.

Baseball at J. B. Martin Grounds.

A very exciting twilight game of ball was played on the J. B. Martin diamond Wednesday night in which the challengers, the "Big Loom Weavers," lost a nine inning game to the "Officials" of the J. B. Martin B. B. team, score 12 to 11.

The feature of the game of of the game were the team work of the Officials and the brilliant work of their battery, Erlbeck and Headon. Erlbeck pitching his "smoke" ball occasionally not only deceived the hard hitters of the opposing team, but he also kept "Jerry" doing backstop duty, guessing, as well as fooling the umpire several times.

This evening on the same diamond at 6.30 p. m. the J. B. Martin team plays the Cornets of Norwich in a twilight game. This promises to be a good game for the Cornets have as good a lineup as any twilight team in Norwich.

Attention Bogus Bearcats.

The original Bearcats of Taftville will play Manager Benoit's "Bogus" Bearcats the three game series when he gets a reputation and not by taking the reputation of another team. Manager Franaski piloted his team to nine victories, and one defeat. Manager Benoit and two other players who were former members of the badly mistaken. Manager Franski Bearcats thinking he would get the Bearcats' reputation with it, but was to the name of Bearcats. When he says that this does not entitle them to the name of Bearcats. When the gets a reputation then come around and talk turkey and not before.

DONOHUE PITCHES REDS BACK TO SECOND PLACE

Cincinnati, Aug. 2—Donohue was at his best in the last game of the series today and Cincinnati went into second place in the National league race by shutting out Philadelphia 2 to 0. The visitors did not get a runner to third base until after two were out in the ninth inning. Glazner pitched well, the Reds scoring in only one inning when a pass, Bohne's single which Walker allowed to get through him for three bases, and a sacrifice fly by Donohue gave them their two runs. Pitcher Couch was transferred to Philadelphia from Cincinnati today by the waiver route and left with the Phillies for Pittsburgh this evening. The score:

TAFTVILLE PREPARING FOR TWO STIFF GAMES

Manager James Troland of the Taftville A. A. announced Thursday that he had contracted for two games to be played this week end, Saturday with the State Hospital on their grounds, and Sunday with the Corbin Red Sox on the J. B. Martin company grounds. A number of the fans will accompany the team Saturday in trucks and autos, and Sunday's game will be a big drawing card throughout this vicinity, as the visitors are known as being among the fastest teams that have visited this section this season. A large crowd will no doubt be on hand to watch the contest, which is sure to be interesting.

The Taftville team will probably pitch Morin against the Red Sox on Sunday and Bill Liberty will do the catching. Manager Troland will pick from the following men, Cardie, Jack, Jim and Francis Murphy, Liberty, Jarvis, Dugas, Gaudette, Lemieux and M. Dugas. The Corbin Red Sox will line up as follows: Blanchard 1b; Snyder lf; Wojak 3b; Barnett ss; Huber rf; Presser 2b; Carraza c; Corbin cf; Blanchard or Hine pitch.

In the last three games that the Red Sox have played they have scored 35 runs to their opponents 5. Blanchard, who recently held Simsbury to one hit, will pitch against Taftville.

Manager Troland has nothing to say about the outcome of the game with the State Hospital other than that he will have some good material to use in the box, he having secured two fast semi-pro pitchers for this game.

FORMER BOXER REPORTED MISSING WITH $1,450

New York, Aug. 2—John Romano, of Long Island City, manager of the Queensborough Athletic club, formerly known in pugilistic circles as "Battling Kiddie" was reported missing today and a general alarm was sent out for him. Simon Flaherty told the police he had sent Romano to a bank with $1,450 two days ago and he did not arrive there. The police suspect foul play.

ARCHIBALD MITCHELL.

When a community is called upon to mourn the passing on of such a citizen as Archibald Mitchell it may in truth be said to have suffered a loss. For fifty years he had been a resident of Norwich and identified with its business interests in a way that presents an inspiring example of [illegible].

The foundations of his life and character were well laid in his Scotch ancestry and his early training in his native land, no inconsiderable equipment for an ambitious young man. Industry, thrift, straightforward business methods, courtesy, and consideration for others were principles which he displayed in his half century as a business man and citizen here. Material reward came to him in abounding measure with the passage of years and with it there developed a sense of his opportunity to contribute a share towards educational and cultural lines. This found expression in his association with the Norwich Free Academy, the Otis Library and the Slater hall musical courses for which for so many years he was enthusiastic patron and supporter. With his love of music and his discriminating taste, his oversight of the seasons' programmes insured a high standard each year and he found his reward in the unmistakable appreciation which his townspeople showed of the musical advantages which they enjoyed from year to year.

It is of such men as Archibald Mitchell that his fellow citizens can say he played well his part in the span of life allotted to him and of whom they may retain a memory that is fragrant with good deeds and service to his fellowman.

SOFT COAL FOR NEW ENGLAND.

It is unlikely that any great amount of enthusiasm will be raised in New England by the announcement of the bituminous coal operators that they can keep this territory supplied with soft coal in the event of a strike in the anthracite field. The experiences of last winter make it apparent that the great majority of New Englanders do not want to use soft coal for heating their houses. The saving on cost may have induced some to accustom themselves to using soft coal, but the large majority want none of it as long as the glistening anthracite is in sight. On the other hand, if a strike should present the alternative between using soft coal or freezing, we should naturally be thankful for any system that would facilitate the distribution of soft coal here.

The bituminous operators say that they will do their part to keep the home fires burning in New England. In this friendly attitude, it may be that they also have their eyes upon getting a larger share in this profitable market, where soft coal is a negligible quantity in home consumption. They declare that they can not only keep New England and other anthracite consuming regions supplied but they can also demonstrate that soft coal of the right kind and properly prepared is a most satisfactory fuel for household use.

Such a campaign by bituminous operators to invade a market which belongs almost exclusively to the anthracite field may not be without its influence upon the hard coal operators and miners. They may wonder whether an effort by soft coal operators to supply this market in an emergency might not be followed by an organized attempt to keep a firm grip after the emergency has passed. It is a possibility that might have some bearing on the question of a strike. Whether this is so or not, the public need not get the idea that a strike is inevitable. The bituminous operators themselves express the opinion that it will not take place. The United States Coal Commission, it is said, is about to publish a report calculated to direct an overwhelming public sentiment against stoppage of work in the anthracite fields. While no man can say what will happen there on the first of September, there is good reason for the belief that production will go on.

THE IMMIGRATION RUSH.

Each month attention is invited anew to the rush of immigrants to our ports when steamships race to be the first in to land their passengers in the hope that they may be fortunate enough to be included in the quota for the month. At Ellis Island, where the capacity of the immigrant station is 1,700, fifteen steamers were expecting to arrive with 15,000 immigrants on August 1st. Except for those first admitted the remainder will have to stay aboard ship for from 48 hours to a week.

Immigration officials blame these outrageous conditions on the rapacity of the steamship companies and say that the government will have to take a hand to check the mad race if it can be stopped in no other way. Under the quota law of this country now in effect, limiting annual immigration from a given country to 3 per cent of the aliens of that nationality already here, it is possible to admit up to 20 per cent of the annual quota within a month. Quotas for some of the countries—that is the 20 per cent monthly quota limits—are exhausted for some of the countries almost immediately on the first day of the month. Immigrants from these countries now on the sea will necessarily be turned back when they arrive a few days or a week or two later. In the case of aliens who have spent their all to reach the land of promise it is a heartrending tragedy to be compelled to return to their native shores.

Secretary Davis of the labor department who is abroad to study immigration problems believes in amendment of the immigration law to provide for "selective" immigration by rigid examinations before the immigrant is allowed to embark. Well informed observers insist that the congress will not let down the immigration bars, despite the clamor of certain industries here for more foreign labor. With the quota law continuing in effect, congress may be called on to pass stringent laws regulating the steamship companies in order to prevent congestion such as that which exists after midnight on the first of each month in New York. The foreign countries from which the immigrants come might well lend a hand at such regulation in behalf of their nationals who are traveling to America.

NIGHTS FLIGHTS AND BUSINESS DAYS.

So many notable airplane flights have been recorded in recent years that not a few persons may fail to grasp the significance of the successful trip from Chicago to New York made between midnight and an early hour the next forenoon by Edward Stinson and two companions. Eight and one-half hours proved sufficient time for them to make the trip by air in a seven-passenger monoplane.

Here is a state of things that presents immense possibilities to any man of affairs. The ability to leave Chicago, New York or any other city late in the evening and arrive in a place 1,000 miles away at the beginning of the next business day constitutes practically elimination of space so far as regards the transaction of business within vast sections of the country. Such a passenger service has already been inaugurated between England and the continent although distances are not so great.

Telegrams and radio messages must continue to play important parts in present-day enterprise, but nothing can compare in effectiveness with the forceful personality, the immediate grasp of a situation by an alert mind, when important negotiations are under way. If a night flight henceforth will serve to transfer the business man in fair comfort a thousand miles or so, the speeding-up process in important negotiations of every description scarcely can further go.

Whatever eliminates delay materially lengthens life so far as life may be reckoned by achievement.

BAPTISTS AND PEACE.

The Baptists' World Alliance in convention at Stockholm has not been disturbed by the fundamentalist issue and not very much disturbed by the prohibition issue, though an English pastor did state the desirability of Britain's having a dry embassy at Washington. On the question of world peace the Baptists were undivided and very emphatic. Before electing the Rev. Edgar Young Mullins of Louisville, Kentucky, president for the ensuing year they adopted the peace resolutions which may give hints to some competitors for the Edward Bok prizes.

First of all the pledge is to urge their respective governments to make the maintenance of peace their first aim, and "to co-operate in forming international tribunals for the settlement of international disputes"—incidentally President Harding is a distinguished Baptist layman—and then the churches were called upon to look into school instruction, and;

"To employ their efforts in eliminating from the textbooks of all nations those things calculated to promote racial and religious antagonisms; to quench the worship of military heroes, and to kindle instead in the minds of the young an admiration for those citizens who serve the world in positive ways."

The task outlined is a difficult one. More than one generation will be required to quench the worship of military heroes. Yet is the task worthy and inspiring despite, even because of, its manifold difficulties.

Signor Mussolini on his fortieth birthday is still one of the youngest of the world's big men.

From what President Harding said about Alaska, the republicans ought to expect its full support if they could carve a state out of that territory.

POOR INVALID!

"I'll tell you one thing," sniffed the lady who was feeling much better than she had been, "I don't think much of your old Dr. Harpoon that you wished onto me when I was too sick to help myself. I just haven't any use for him at all."

"You don't say," gasped her astonished husband, losing his place in his book. "What on earth have you got against Harpoon? He cured you, didn't he?"

"I'd probably have got well, anyhow," sniffed the almost recovered invalid. "No thanks to him. Anybody could have given me three white pellets and a dozen teaspoons of a perfectly tasteless liquid. I have no doubt he laughed when he got outside and marked down $5 a call in his little book. All the time I was explaining to him just how terribly I felt and where the pain was he didn't do a thing but stroll around the room and look at the framed photographs on the walls.

"When I was relating how queer my heart was acting he was shoving my tortoise-shell things around on the dressing table and when he did condescend to come up to the bed and sit down he just said, 'H'm' and looked over my head absent-mindedly. I don't think that is any way for a doctor to act."

"How would you have him act?" inquired her still astonished husband.

"Well, if it had been you who were sick I guess you'd know!" declared the lady who was very much better. "I suppose you think I am one of those silly women who want a doctor to hold hands and sob with them, but it's nothing of the sort! I don't expect a doctor to act as though it was a social occasion, either, and to burst out into small talk! I don't care at all how businesslike he is or how curt, but I want him to pay some attention to me! I may not be as smart as Dr. Harpoon, but it was my illness and I guess I knew lots better how I felt than he did and he might have listened to me. He didn't listen any more than though I had been a dumb woman! 'The pain is right here, doctor' I said in my weak voice. Was he there to look at the spot pointed out? I should say not! He was over in the corner studying Cousin Jed's haircut, 1896.

"'Every once in a while,' I added. 'I get the queerest feeling in my head—not an ache, exactly, not a sharp pain, either, and I don't think you could precisely call it a throb, but it's awfully queer and it certainly must mean something, don't you think? Sometimes it is in one spot and then again it is in another and I get so nervous waiting for it to happen! Do you think it means anything?'

"He said something like 'Tut, tut,' as he turned around, and I almost believe he smiled. Now, I think a doctor who smiles when his patient is describing serious symptoms is too heartless for words. I don't believe in expecting them to perform miracles with nothing to go on, either, and that was why I took particular pains, sick as I was, to tell him in full how I felt and what I thought was the matter with me!

"I had a perfectly dreadful throat, and what did he say when he looked at it? Instead of murmuring, 'My, my! That must be terribly painful! We'll have to see to that!' he tossed down the spoon, yawned and said, 'Not bad! Not bad at all! Nothing to worry about!'

"And right in the middle of what I was saying he jammed a thermometer in my mouth, picked up my wrist in a leisurely way and held it while he asked you what you thought of the Russian question, anyhow—and when I asked if I didn't have a terrible fever he said, 'Oh, no only 4 degrees, not bad at all!' Then he finished the Russian question, and as he was going out of the door suddenly remembered me and said casually he'd have the drug store send something around.

"The more I think of it the madder I get, and the next time I see him I'm just going to tell him exactly what I think of his bedside manner anyhow! Just the fact that he cured me has nothing whatever in his favor and I'm going to tell him, see if I don't!"

"Now, I'm sure you're all right!" jubilated the hitherto anxious husband. "Dr. Harpoon said as soon as you were on the highroad to recovery no doubt you'd be terribly peevish, but it wouldn't mean anything!"

"Oh, he did, did he?" gasped the lady who was almost well. "You just wait till I get hold of that man! He'll listen to me this time, the hateful thing!"—Exchange.

Wives of Famous Men

Mary Scurlock, Wife of Richard Steele

Mary Scurlock, second wife of Richard Steele, English satirist and contemporary of Shakespeare, was a famous beauty of her day and was apparently, correspondingly haughty and capricious. For some time she held out against the ardent wooing of Steele, who wrote her upward of 400 letters, all of which have been published. Finally, though, she accepted him, saying that he was "as agreeable and pleasant as any in England." Then, feeling somewhat shy at his "sudden" conquest, she erased the dates from all his letters to her, that in showing them to a friend it might not appear that she was so rapidly won.

The best idea of Miss Scurlock can be obtained by reading some of the things that Steele wrote to her. Of her domination over him the following passage is eloquent:

"I have not a moment of quiet out of your sight, and when I am with you you use me with so much distance that I am still in a state of absence, heightened with a view of the charms which I am denied to approach. In a word, you must give me a fan, a mask or a glove you have worn, or I cannot live; otherwise you must expect that I'll kiss your hand, or, when I next sit by you, steal your handkerchief. You yourself are too great a bounty to be secured at once: therefore I must be prepared by degrees, lest the mighty gift distract me with joy."

Later after their marriage:

"How often has your tenderness removed pain from my sick head, how often anguish from my affected heart! If there are such things as guardian angels there are thus employed! I cannot believe one of them to be more good in inclination or more charming in form than my wife."

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Porter H. Dale, who is the first to announce his candidacy for the United States senator at the special election soon to be held in Vermont to name a successor to the late William P. Dillingham, is the present representative in Congress of the Second Vermont district. Mr. Dale comes of a family long prominent in politics in the Green Mountain State, his father having served as lieutenant governor. The son studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1896. Soon after he made his debut in politics. He served as deputy collector of customs in his home town of Island Pond, resigning this position to enter the State senate, of which he was a member in 1910 and 1912. Mr. Dale is now serving his fourth term in Congress. He is one of the leading business men of his section of the State, being interested in banking, lumbering and electric power and lighting.

Stories That Recall Others

No Damage Done

After much excitement the Smiths had at last managed to catch the train. Now, when they could sit quietly for a while, they began to wonder if they had left anything behind.

Mrs. Smith gave a shriek.

"Oh, Harry," she gasped. "I forgot to turn off the electric iron."

"Don't worry, darling," he replied. "Nothing will burn. I forgot to turn off the shower bath."

Holding Hands

A Little Talk on Thrift

It was Burke who gave expression to the solid doctrine that "education is the chief defense of nations". Nothing can be added to make more clear or more emphatic the profound truth expressed in these seven words.

But education, like all things else that are good, is passing through a constant process of improvement and it is noted with interest that practical plans have been worked out for teaching thrift in the schools.

The Committee on Thrift Education of the National Education Association has just issued a small leaflet outlining a preliminary course of thrift study that should be in the hands of every educator through the length and width of our country. It is not possible, in the scope of this article, to give an adequate outline of the educational methods and objectives which the committee and associate educators have worked out for the benefit of the school children of today and the future, but the following is an epitome of the aims sought for:

1—To give the child an appreciation of the principles of underlying thrift.

2—To make him familiar with the specific facts relative to thrift.

3—To develop habits of conservation and intelligent use of all his resources.

4—To create through the schools a public sentiment in favor of thrift and economy.

If the educational foundation of the boys and girls of this country can be successfully shaped along these lines as the result of the thrift committee's efforts, it is not going too far to say that a new epoch in education has been entered.

With thrift in the public schools of our nation the seven forceful words of Burke take on added significance. —American Society for Thrift.

MAGIC

Wind on before me, dim white road,
My feet are glad, they may not tire,
They lift me to a lilting dance,
And love is still my only load;
And all my heart's a shivering lyre;
That doth my way with song entrance.
I love the little poplar trees
That stand so still and very clear
Against the level evening sky!
I love the faintly fragrant breeze
That lifts my hair, and very dear
The sleepy sparrow's chirping cry!
I love the softly sweeping mist
That whipers up the grassy slope
And folds me in a cool embrace!
And Oh my soul is beauty kissed!
And Oh my lips are gay with hope!
And Oh I lift my happy face
Toward the star that silent gleams,
Low hung in luminous deep blue!
And darkness dear is creeping up,
And all the west is full of dreams,
And every deepest dream is true,
And brimming over is my cup!

Starch means discomfort, saw edges. Saw-edged collars kill shirts and ruin ties. Ordinary collars need starch to keep their bands from buckling. The VAN HEUSEN needs no starch. Its multi-ply fabric, light and flexible, is curved in the weaving. Bandless, it will not wilt or buckle. That's why it's economical and durable as well as comfortable and incomparably smart.

DISCOVERED SMALL FIRE AT CARPENTER SHOP

At 11.25 o'clock Thursday evening the Central fire station received a call from Watchman Frank Tuttle of the Max Gordon Corporation for a small fire in the carpenter shop owned and operated by William C. Young. While Watchman Tuttle was making his rounds he noticed smoke issuing in considerable volume from the chimney of the carpenter shop. He immediately called up the station, the firemen making a quick response. They gained an entrance through the second floor and found an air tight stove loaded with sawdust and shavings, shavings and sawdust also being strewn about the stove. Only for the timely discovery of Watchman Tuttle the shop would probably burned down. One can of chemical was used to extinguish the fire.

Owing to the shavings and sawdust being sprinkled about the stove on the floor there is a suspicion that the fire was of incendiary origin.

ISSUES SURVEY OF RECENT LEGISLATION

The current issue of The Woman Voter's Bulletin, published by The Connecticut League of Women Voters, features a survey of recent legislation, as follows:

There are four generalizations which are true of the past legislature: it was conservative, it was economical, it followed the lead of John Buckley to an extraordinary extent, and it was in opposition to the governor. Of course generalizations are never true in all particulars.

There were 2055 bills, resolutions and petitions introduced, of which 236 public acts, 418 special acts and one resolution making a total of 705 legislative acts. A selection of any particular group, as the most important is sure to be challenged. Perhaps the most commendable accomplishment of the legislature lay in the bills rejected rather than in those passed.

In the main, this review only covers such bills as group themselves under the headings of the league's standing committees. No general appraisal of appropriations is attempted.

When the bureau of child welfare was set up in 1921, it was probably the first time that Connecticut had made a basic change in its state administration the first time it was proposed. Changes of that sort should not be looked for often. If people are to obey the law, they should have time to learn what it is!

Certainly any criticism of the rejection of appropriations asked should be tempered by the fact that the party in power was elected on a pledge to reduce taxation: that the state board of finance reported that "the amount necessary for maintenance of the various departments and institutions practically equals the entire estimated income of the state for the two years ending June 30, 1925."

Insanity, feeble-mindedness and crime throw a huge burden on the state. It is only partially covered for the next two years by appropriations aggregating over five and a half million dollars. This is a clear economic waste, and largely preventable. "The chief cause of feeble-mindedness is feeble-mindedness." Yet the feeble-minded live at large in the community generally untrained and unprotected and surely multiplying burdens for the future. Our hospitals for the insane are too overcrowded to permit the admission of patients in the early, more curable stages of mental disease. The new buildings at Norwich provided by a large appropriation will be filled soon after completion. Yet the plan to co-operate with Yale in establishing a psychiatric hospital (see Bulletin March 3) was not put through. The expense of prisons, jails and reformatories, mounts, but expenditure for swift justice, good probation service, clean play and recreation lags behind. Ultimate economy demands a farsighted outlay for preventive work all along the line.

VERSAILLES MAN IS GRANTED COMPENSATION

In a decision filed Thursday with the clerk of the superior court Compensation Commissioner James J. Donohue of this city awards weekly compensation to Lawrence Colburn of Versailles during the period of his disability as the result of an accident June 13th at the plant of the Totokett Manufacturing Company where he was employed. While at work in the plant on that day Mr. Colburn injured his knee according to the testimony at the hearing has been totally disabled since and probably for some time to come.

The hearing, which was held July 31st, was called for the purpose of determining whether or not the injury received by the claimant was incident to this employment and whether it arose out of and in the course of his employment.

The evidence, according to the decision, established the fact that he was working on company time and was obeying the orders of his superintendent at the time he was hurt. The decision awards him compensation of $12.02 weekly during his disability, accrued payments to be made at once in a lump sum, and other payments weekly hereafter. The respondents are also to assume payment of all reasonable medical bills for services rendered on account of the injury.

Michigan Woman Writes True Story

"This sincere letter," says Peterson, "gave me another happy day and as nearly every mail brings praise for Peterson's Ointment, is it any wonder that I keep cheerful all the time?"

"Dear Sirs: I had a bad leg for 20 years, tried everything and had doctors, but no benefit. I tried Peterson's Ointment and five boxes healed my leg. I can never praise it enough. My leg was so painful at first that I had to put fresh ointment on every two hours, night and day. It stopped the pain at once. Mrs. Mark Richards, Lake Linden, Mich."

Besides running and old sores and ulcers, Peterson's Ointment is just as good for piles, eczema, itching skin, sore feet, prickly heat, sunburn, chafing, cuts, burns, bruises, scalds and scores of other ailments as any druggist anywhere will tell you. 35c, 60c, $1, $2.50, $5.

NORWICH-JEWETT CITY MOTORISTS TO APPEAR IN NEW LONDON COURT

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Aug. 3—Employes in the construction of the new schoolhouse at the corner of Riverview avenue and Alger street have been annoyed of late because of the mischievousness of youths in disturbing building materials and have lodged complaint with the police. Detective Sergeant Charles Hammond obtaining the identity of some of the youths, interviewed the boys' parents with a caution to them to the conduct of the lads in the future.

Mrs. Laura Fitch wife of Robert H. Clark, died this morning at her home, 39 Waller street, after an illness of several months. Mrs. Clark was the daughter of the late John Fitch and for a number of years was employed as operator for the Southern New England Telephone company in New London.

Henry A. Rogers, 81, a former resident of New London, died yesterday, at his home in Philadelphia. Mr. Rogers is survived by a daughter residing in Philadelphia and another daughter, Mrs. James B. Getchell, of 618 Williams street. Mr. Rogers was father of the late Dr. Henry Rogers of New London and formerly resided on Williams street, moving to Philadelphia following the death of his son, several years ago.

Edward Cody of State street, Mrs. Mary Clark of Providence, Miss Marthat McCoombs of Fort Wright and Miss Mildred Ross of Crystal avenue, patients at the Lawrence hospital, were discharged today.

Isadore Cohen, a New Yorker, is spending a vacation at Chesterfield. He was in New London last evening, and when he started to go to his boarding place drove his car by intersecting streets at a speed considered reckless by Motor Vehicle Officer Cavanaugh. So Cohen was held up. Then it developed that he did not have registration for his car. Cohen accounted for the speed at which he was driving by saying that a boy he had in his car needed medical attention. The officer regarded that as unfortunate so he offered to take the child to a physician at which the boy rebelled and declared that he did not need any doctor. Issy then admitted that he was "kidding" about the doctor and showed a chauffeur's badge issued to him in Brooklyn, where he resides on Albemarle avenue. He said he had paid for registration but had not received it. He was presented in the police court this afternoon and there was fined $5 for violation of the rules of the road in speeding past intersecting streets. The registration story was accepted by the court as true and judgment for that neglect was suspended.

Manuel Prachette, employed as a driver by the New London Ice company was charged with failing to support his wife and child when the police court convened this morning. The accused admitted that he is guilty, but explained that he desired to support his seven months old child as well as his wife, but differences in the family had led him to find a home elsewhere than his wife. Prachette had $23 in his duds and he said his employers were indebted to him in the sum of $45 which he could get by going after it. There seemed to be a chance of a settlement of the trouble in a way that would lead the Prachettes to become reconciled so the court ordered Manuel to pay his wife $10 a week, in fact give him the choice of doing that or going to jail for a month. Manuel decided to throw up his ten dollars every week.

Ray Smith, formerly of New London, now located in New York, is spending a few days in the city. Mr. Smith has been in Maine for a fortnight

An automobile owned and driven by Edward R. Schenke of 75 Union street was badly damaged late yesterday when struck by an unidentified automobile on the Thames river highway bridge. Schenke caused his car to stop for the purpose of paying toll. While his machine was motionless the unknown car crashed against it from the rear. Schenke did not obtain the name of the owner of the colliding machine, but he did observe its registration, C—35—980.

The Groton Lumber company has increased its outstanding capital by 549 shares of unissued stock. This brings the total outstanding stock to 954 shares of a par value of $1. On the new issue $47,430 has been paid in cash and the remaining $7,470 is in stock dividends. It was voted to reduce the authorized capital stock from $200,000 to $166,200. The certificates are signed by S. F. Westbrook, Henry L. Bailey and Lewis Joselin, as a majority of the directors.

The Empire bakery, No. 398 Bank street, Angelo Zerill proprietor, was closed this morning, a supply house causing an attachment to be placed to satisfy an alleged claim of $600.

The Swiss Dyeing and Cleaning establishment, No. 681 Bank street, has gone out of business, the place being in the hands of a receiver.

Edwin Keeney suffered a heart attack early this evening when he went to the bathroom of his home, 28 Pearl street, and collapsed, falling to the floor. He was found in a semi-helpless condition by members of the household. Mr. Keeney is in his 92nd year and exceptionally active, appearing about the streets daily. For many years he conducted the periodical store at the corner of Bank and State streets.

Tenants in the building at Nos. 234-240 State street, acquired a short time ago by Ward T. Alling in the interests of the Alling Rubber company for S. F. Peterson, have vacated the building because the new owners are to begin alterations at once.

A class of about fifteen initiated by New London lodge of Elks this evening, the degree being conferred by officers of the lodge at the quarters on Washington street. Lunch and a vaudeville entertainment followed.

S. Packer, proprietor of a store at No. 75 Truman street, complained to the police this evening that daily, for two or three weeks, and between 6 and 7 o'clock in the forenoon, thieves have stolen a quantity of bread and rolls that had been deposited at the entrance to the store prior to its opening.

Walter T. Smith of Pleasure Beach was arrested by Traffic Officer John Courtney, late this afternoon, charged with violation of the automobile law in failing to stop when given a signal to do so.

Paul Gentile, 80, a former resident of New London, died this morning at his home in Cleveland from heart trouble. He is survived by his wife and son and by two brothers, John Gentile of Groton and Cosmos Gentile of New London. Mr. Gentile was formerly on Bank street, moving about 10 years ago to Cleveland and in which city he conducted a barber shop.

H. Rakowsky of No. 43 Montauk avenue, complained to the police this evening that an attempt was made last night to burglarize his garage. A tenant in another part of the house detected two men at the door of the garage and inquired their reason for being in the yard. The crooks made a hasty retreat.

Rock Zekas, No. 132 Winthrop street and Katie Hornitsky, No. 661 Main street, were arrested this evening, charged with adultery. In default of a surety on their respective bonds for their appearance in the police court tomorrow morning, Zekas and the woman were locked up for the night. Zekas returned from work about 6 o'clock and shortly after reaching home invited a stranger to the house where, it is alleged, they partook of drinks. Finally the stranger accused Zekas of stealing $3 and when the former did not recover the money he went to the police station and lodged a complaint of theft against Zekah. Motorcycle Officer John Cavanaugh and Officer John Foley were assigned to the case, but before the officers arrived at the Zekas home Rock had invited the Hornitsky woman to the place and then locked the doors. Mrs. Zekah went to the house and when she endeavored to gain entrance was unable to do so. Mrs. Zekas went to a part of the house where a window was raised and climbed through the opening. Going to one of the sleeping rooms, she found Zekas and the Hornitsky woman in a compromising position. Mrs. Zekas was creating a scene when Officers Cavanaugh and Foley appeared at the house to investigate the complaint of the fellow who had claimed that Zekas had robbed him. Instead of arresting Zekas on a charge of theft, he was taken into custody on the more serious charge and upon complaint of Mrs. Zekas. Zekas' arrest tonight marks the 16th time that he has been arrested, his offenses being theft, breach of the peace, intoxication, selling liquor without a license and assault with intent to kill. Mrs. Hornitsky has been taken into custody eight times before, the charges against her being intoxication, frequenting a disorderly house and adultery and on the last named charge she is now at liberty on parole by the superior court.

Seven operators of automobiles are to be given a hearing tomorrow afternoon at 1.30 o'clock at the court house by a representative of the state motor vehicle department. The operators who have been summoned are: Audrey Berry of No. 27 Mulberry street, Norwich, charged with reckless driving; Fabyan Dallen of Jewett City, operating while under the inuence of liquor; Joshua O. Sands of Old Lyme, reckless driving; Walter B. Kenyon of No. 16 Lincoln avenue, Stonington, operating while under the influence of liquor; Joshua O. Sands of la of No. 8 Hamilton street, New London, operating without having obtained registration; Horace B. Pervere of No. 89 Montauk avenue, operating a car which caused a fatal accident and Charles Pisaitella of North Westchester, participating in two accidents.

NORWICH PEOPLE SELL NEW LONDON PROPERTY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Aug. 3.—Leon Dorsky and Morris Itzcowitz, proprietors of the Hudson Silk & Woolen house, Hull block, Main street, have acquired the Brainard building at Nos. 34-38-40 Main street of Harry M. Land and Mattie F. Land of Norwich. The price paid, it is understood, was $47,000. The deed transferring the property will not be completed for several days. It is understood that Messrs. Dorsky and Land will use one of the stores of their newly acquired property for their business as soon as the lease they now hold in the Hull block expires, which will be next year. The Brainard building is a three-story structure with two stores on the ground floor and offices on the second and third floors. It was formerly owned by the late William B. Coit and was sold to the Norwich owners about three years ago.

Norwich Market Growers' Association

This month is the height of the Vegetable Season and in spite of recent drought conditions, the supply of most varieties is ample, the quality excellent, and prices reasonable and fair.

Cabbage, String Beans, Shell Beans, Green Corn, Beets, Carrots, Cukes, Summer Squash, Tomatoes, surely the list is sufficiently varied to suit any and all tastes.

Some items require more cooking, others less, still others, none at all; but more, less or none, all are healthful and health-giving, locally grown, fresh from the soil.

Have you tried those greenhouse cukes that carry on them the little yellow lable? They're good!

TO DEALERS—James Graham of Lisbon, has a fine field of Potatoes which he is now digging—the quality is the best—he will be pleased to talk with you regarding them.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

The Wonderful Scarf

Now, let me see. In the last story, after the old peddlar had given Little Jack Rabbit and the little canary bird a magic scarf, she tied it around the little bunny in a bow knot, and would you believe it, no sooner was the scarf tied when the ends napped just like wings and the first thing Little Jack Rabbit knew, he was flying with the little canary bird through the air.

By and by they came to a wood where they perched in a tree which was not easy for the bunny boy because you know rabbits can't climb trees like small boys.

While the little canary was preening her feathers, the bunny boy fluttered down and undid his magic scarf and put it in his pocket.

All of a sudden, he heard a great grunting and there stood an immense wild pig. His bristles stood up on end like bayonets in a regiment of soldiers.

"Mr. Wild Pig, please get out of my way," cried the little bunny boy.

"This wood belongs to me," answered the wild pig with a disagreable grunt.

"Oh, very well," answered the little rabbit boy, and quickly tying the magic scarf around him, he and the little canary flew away.

By and by, they came to a pretty little village. On the front porch of a pretty white house hung a bird cage and on the steps sat a little girl crying bitterly.

"Oh dear, oh dear. My little bird has flown away."

Then, what do you think happened? Why, that little canary bird left the bunny boy and flew into the cage.

"Be glad, be glad and dry your eyes,
For I am back again.
I could not stay away for long,
Nor could I sing my old sweet song.
For home is here, and so I'll stay
And sing to you the livelong day."

She twittered.

Wasn't that a sweet song for the little girl to hear, and you may be sure she dried her eyes and danced about with very joy.

Pretty soon she united the magic scarf on Little Jack Rabbit and folding it up in a neat package, put it in the bunny boy's pocket. I guess the little girl thought that the canary bird had brought the little rabbit for her to keep.

"Where did you find him?" she asked, and the little canary bird replied: "Before the bunny boy reached our town,
A peddlar dressed in a suit of brown
Gave him a wonderful magic scarf,
And I'll tell you more but you mustn't laugh.
And the scarf made a pair of wings for him
And he flew o'er the treetops' leafy brim,
Till both of us reached this home of mine
And the dear old porch with the pink rose vine.
And next time I'll téll you some more about Little Jack Rabbit.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Figures made available Thursday show the mighty sweep of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, with a subsidiary—the Goodyear Mills—in this town toward the predominant position it occupied prior the nation-wide business slump in the early fall of 1920.

Remarkable success has attended the great corporation's activities during the first six months of the present year. During that period the net sales of the company were $55,439,631. Its total earnings during the period, after taxes and depreciation had been allowed for, were $8,967,079. The net earnings for the six months after the deduction of all charges and credited to surplus reached the amazing total of $6,314,315. The surplus on June 30, 1923, was $12,198,209. Cash on hand, United States certificates and other securities amounted on that date to $19,893,438. The ratio of current assets to current liabilities is in excess of 7 1-2 to 1.

This splendid statements means a great deal to the town of Killingly as a whole and especially to the large force of operatives at Goodyear and to the numerous stockholders of the company resident in this vicinity.

The rejuvenation of this great corporation, doing business throughout the civilized world, is being noted in financial papers throughout the country. While this town is concerned with Goodyear chiefly through its production of fabric for the manufacture of automobile tires, attention is called to the fact that its field of operations is much greater than is indicated by its mountainous output of tires, for it figures in a large way in about every branch of the rubber goods business.

At a session of the town court on Thursday morning there was rather a long drawn-out hearing of the case of the state vs. Omer Desautles, Putnam, charged with having been intoxicated while operating his car on the night of June 30 when it figured in a collision with another machine driven by Peter Laidlaw of Worcester and with reckless driving. The court found Desautels not guilty of driving while intoxicated, but guilty of reckless driving, a fine of $25 and costs, a total of $44.70 being imposed. Through his counsel, Attorney Irving H. Miron of Putnam, Desautles appealed, but after a conference between them the appeal was withdrawn and the fine and costs paid.

The accident that brought court action occurred on the state highway near the Killingly town farm. It was charged by witnesses that Desautles was driving a zig zag course just before his machine was in the crash with the Laidlaw car and members of the party in the Laidlaw car expressed the opinion that Desautles had been drinking. This was not established to the satisfaction of the court, however, and Desautles was found not guilty on that count.

Matthew Farrell of Worcester and Mrs. Cecilia Florence of Danielson were passengers in the Laidlaw car as the time of the accident, while Mrs. Desautels and David Beausoleil were in the Desautels car. No one was injured to any extent in the accident, after which Desautels took the people in the wrecked car into his machine and drove them over to Alexander's lake. Beausoleil did not figure in the taking of testimony at Thursday's session of the court, because, it was represented, he was asleep at the time the machines collided.

Three boys who live in adjoining tenement houses on the West Side were giving serious thought Thursday to the proposition that running an abbreviated wild west show without the consent of the owner of the animals figuring in the venture is neither good fun—if one gets caught—or at all profitable. This viewpoint was gained after they had been presented before Justice Frank M. Bedard and paid fines and costs amounting in each case to a few cents more than $11, or, to be more accurate, had them paid for by thoroughly displeased parents.

This trio of boys has been spending much of their time the past few days pestering a cow and a horse in a pasture on land along the river, above the old winebaug ball grounds.

Elaborating on their early performances with the animals, they went to a stable in the rear of the Quinebaug store and took a bridle—without telling anyone about it. The bridle was put on the horse, which thereafter figured in certain going-on that was neither good for the horse nor for rather reckless boys. The affair finally wound up with the boys cutting the bridle to bits with a knife.

Complaints about the boys' activities resulted in their being brought into court. Then there was the unavoidable conference with irate fathers after the court session—and a demonstration of the fact that a fine in court may sting a pocketbook, but doesn't interfere with one's sitting down in comfort for a week, as some other forms of punishment may do.

Advancing on East Killingly over all routes, a multitude gathering there in many varieties of vehicles from a luxurious limousine to an old time one-horse shay, a multitude assembled for Old Home day Thursday, found the community's welcome as heartfelt as ever and the opportunities for visiting with old-time acquaintances as joyful as in the past. Many sections of eastern Connecticut were represented too many among those who came were former residents of East Killingly or have fondly remembered associations there. A fine dinner was served by King George Jacques at noon. A program of exercises, including addresses, and band concerts were features of the day, a success in every way.

D. Howard Nolan of New Bedford, formerly in the insurance line in Willamantic to $40, when he was presented before Justice Frank M. Bedard on the West Side Thursday morning to answer to a charge of speeding.

Nolan was espied one day last month traveling at a rate of about 35 miles an hour, on the West Side and though State Officer Merril Keith tried to halt him was unable to do so, though the officer did get the registration number on the Nolan car.

Mrs. A. Van Woodworth left on Thursday to spend August at a college at Pleasure Beach.

K. A. Darbie has returned after a vacation of two weeks, much of which was spent at the Camp meetings at East Douglas.

Mrs. C. T. Thayer and son, Aylward, of Putnam were visitors with relatives in Danielson Thursday.

Henry A. Horning of New London was a visitor with Danielson friends Thursday.

The opening of August has brought exceptionally heavy tourist travel through Danielson.

Between 35 and 40 arrests were made by the police during July. A large percentage were connected with intoxicating liquor. The police made several raids and got several convictions. Substantial fines were imposed in each case and the city treasury was enriched to a considerable extent. Most of the drunks coming before the court, wwhen asked where they got the liquor, generally answered that they met a "friend" or a "stranger" who gave it to them, or that they had been to Webster or Woonsocket. As far as learned from these individuals, little or no liquor is being sold in the city. The campaign against drunks instituted by Captain William Jarvis two or three weeks ago has borne fruit. Not a single case of intoxication was reported Monday morning. The two previous Monday mornings the cases ran well beyond the half dozen mark. No minimum fine is recognized in intoxication cases. It is now $20 and costs, or else a jail sentence. The court holds the view that the temptation has been taken away from the weak-willed drinker and that he will not become intoxicated unless he seeks liquor. In this event he must pay the penalty, if he can not gauge his capacity.

Just what significance is attached to the fact is not known but a number of men have gone over Oak Hill recently looking over the ground and consulting blue print maps. There is a fine opportunity for good building sites on this hill, now overgrown with oak and chestnut trees, the latter all dead from blight. The sites give a commanding sweep of country. The crest of Oak Hill is within five to eight minutes' walk of the business section of the city.

If one wants to go fishing he need not leave Union Square. Some one has put several bullheads or horned pout or catfish or whatever you may call them in the watering trough. The taxi men at the railroad station take an interest in the fish and are making pets of them, feeding them peanuts, popcorn, candy and an occasional worm.

Omer Desautelle of Smith street was before the town court of Killingly at Danielson, Thursday morning, charged with reckless driving of his automobile and with driving while under the inuence of liquor. He was found guilty on the first count and fined $25 which he paid. A finding of not guilty was reached on the second count. The arrest was made following a collision near Killingly town farm, two weeks ago. State police officers testified that Desautelle staggered, that his breath smelled of liquor, that his eyes were half closed and that he was operating his car in a zigzag manner. Desautelle and his wife, who was in the car with him testified that he had not drank anything except two or three glasses of beer and that was over two hours before the accident. When asked where he got the beer Desautelle said that he drank it in Webster. Desautelle was represented in court by Attorney I. H. Miron of Putnam.

Total stock sales, 556,100 shares.

Twenty industrials averaged 88.30, net gain .34. High 1933, 105.88; low, 86.91.

Twenty railroads averaged 77.18, net loss .63. High 1925, 90.62; low, 76.85.

MARKET WAS DULL.

New York, Aug. 3.—Heavy selling of the railroad shares unsettled today's stock market after an early interval of strength. Trading, however, was relatively dull with the large bulk of the day's business coming from professional sources.

French and Belgian francs dropped to new low records for the year in response to Premier Baldwin's speech in the house of commons setting forth that there was no hope of an agreement between Great Britain and France on German reparations. The French franc sank to 5.71 cents, or within a point of the low of all time, and the Belgian franc was down to 4.57 3-4 but both rallied later.

There was nothing new in the day's news to account for the selling of the rails. Northwestern rails were again the hardest hit, bear operators laying stress on the failure of several of the large systems to earn their fixed charges in recent months. Rail officials recently have pointed out that the first six months of the year were always the worst for those roads and explained that large sums have been expended for equipment this spring and summer, to get them in shape for moving the heavy traffic this fall. Rumors of new financing by the St. Paul system also were circulated during the day but these lacked confirmation.

Great Northern preferred dropped 3 5-8 to 64, the lowest quotation since 1896, and St. Paul preferred Rock Island common and 6 and 7 per cent. preferred, Northern Pacific, Pittsburgh & West Virginia and Union Pacific sold off 1 to 3 points.

The average of 20 leading industrials showed a slight gain on the day but U. S. Steel, Baldwin, American Can and some of the other so-called pivotal stocks registered fractional recessions after having sold 1 to 3 points above yesterday's closing prices.

There was heavy buying for the short account in the early part of the session as a result of the unusually favorable earnings reports recently published by U. S. Steel, American Locomotive, General Motors, Foundation Co., Bethlehem Steel, Studebaker and other large industrial concerns.

Selling of the rails in the face of a report of record-breaking car loadings for the week ending July 21 was somewhat of a surprise. Speculative fear of radical railroad legislation in the next congress was regarded as a factor in this liquidation.

Call money opened at 5 per cent. dropped to 4 1-2, thence to 4 1-4 and finally to 4 where it closed. The time money market was quiet with brokers biding 5 per cent. and bankers asking 5 1-4. Loans for the longer maturities were arranged at the higher figure.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Aug. 2.—With no export demand of any consequence in sight, and gossip current that Europeans were selling wheat bought in the United States, wheat slipped down in price today after scoring a small advance. The market closed unsettled, 1@2c 5-8c to 1c net lower, with September 97 1-4 to 97 1-4@3-8c and December 1.00 1-2 to 1.00 5-8. Corn finished unchanged to 1-4@3-8c off. Oats 1-8c@1-4c to 3-8c down, and provisions 5c to 30c decline.

Unfavorable crop reports from both sides of the Canadian boundary were chiefly responsible for a transient upturn in wheat soon after the opening. Buying, however, failed to show any vigor and bulls were handicapped by a continuance of liberal receipts. Then came reports that France had resold considerable wheat which had been purchased for August shipment from the United States and there was talk also of exporters having made other resales of domestic wheat at the Gulf of Mexico. New low records in foreign exchange rates tended further to emphasize the bearish outlook.

Some good buying on the part of commission houses during the subsequent setback in wheat values helped to make the market less one-sided at the last, despite London official announcements that French and Belgian replies to the British reparations note held out no immediate prospect of a Ruhr settlement. The basis of at least some of the buying was that the wheat market had undergone a break of 30c a bushel, and that judged according to the purchasing power of the dollar wheat is at a pre-war level of 63c a bushel or less.

Corn and oats reflected the action of wheat values. Moisture and lower temperatures in the central west counted somewhat as a bearish factor.

Bearish aspects of the monthly crop reports were discounted as usual.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Aug. 3.—Considerable irregularity developed in today's bond market with the weakness of the French municipal and certain western railroad bonds as the chief feature. U. S. government issue held steady.

Selling of the French bonds followed publication of Premier Baldwin's speech on the Franco-British impasse on reparations. Bordeaux 6s and Marseilles 6s each lost a point on the day while the other active issues yielded fractionally.

St. Paul convertible 4 1-2s and "Katy" 6s, Series C, each dropped 2 points to new low records for the year. Northern Pacific 5s, Series D, and Minneapolis-St. Louis refunding 4s, each sold off about a point. Gains of a point or more, however, were recorded by St. Paul refunding 4 1-2s, New Haven convertible 6s and Seaboard Air Line adjustment 5s and refunding.

Eastern Cuban Sugar 7 1-2s, up 1 3-4, and Cerro De Pasco 8s, up 1, were the strong spots in the industrial group.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Aug. 2.—Heavy short covering imparted a firm tone to opening prices in today's curb market but considerable irregularity developed in the afternoon as a result of the reaction on the "big board."

Standard Oil of Indiana, more than 31,000 shares of which changed hands, was run up to 51 1-4 but dropped back last to 50 3-4 for a slight fractional loss. Imperial Oil of Canada and Magnolia Petroleum each registered net gains of about 3 points while Cities service, South Pennsylvania Oil and Vacuum closed about a point higher.

Motors were mixed although Cleveland showed a net gain of 1 point on the date. Gillette Safety Razor also gained a point on a small turn-over while Glen Alden Coal, Doubleday Rario and United Retail Candy Stores improved fractionally.

Narrow and irregular fluctuations took place in the mining group.

MONEY.

Not much gets by Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, and knowing his reputation was at stake, to hear that a fox had gotten by William Gavitt on East avenue was a challenge which the chief accepted. Accompanied by Police Commissioner Farquah Smith, Chief Brown (with an established reputation as a fox hunter) started early Thursday on the four-legged thief's trail. It may be that the fox knew what it was up against and submitted but anyway, it was Commissioner Smith's gun which stopped its evil career. The fox killed was but a trifle smaller than the one killed by Mr. Gavitt the previous morning.

Everything that the public contributes in the campaign to build a hospital in Westerly will be used for that purpose, without any deduction for the expenses of the campaign, according to an announcement made by Chairman Utter of the campaign executive committee. Mr. Utter said that several individuals have underwritten the entire cost of the campaign and will pay all campaign expenses.

"The importance of this action can hardly be over-emphasized," said Mr. Utter. "It means that everyone who contributes to the building fund will be able to know that every dollar he gives will be used for the purpose for which he gives it—to build a hospital—and that not a penny of it will be used up in the expenses of running the campaign.

"The only way to make a movement like this successful is to reach as many people as possible and to have the whole thing thoroughly organized. This necessarily means a certain outlay of money. The cost of the electrical work being done at the campaign headquarters, printing, postage, stationery, newspaper advertisements, etc., must all be paid. No one is being asked to donate his business services or his goods; those who work for the campaign in a business way may, of course, make whatever donation they feel to be proper during the campaign just as every one else will do.

"Most people understand that there have to be expenses of this kind, but just the same no one likes to feel that part of what he gives to the hospital will be used up in running the campaign. It is certainly a lot more satisfactory to know that what we give will go, 100 per cent., to the hospital."

CAN THE GOVERNMENT HELP TH EFARMERS.

(Written Especially For The Bulletin.)

A friend has sent me marked copies of two recent farm papers, blue-pencilled to call my attention to a couple of articles. I don't know whether this is because he agrees with them and wants me to join in his "Amen," or whether because he so teetotally disagrees with them and wants me to share his antagonism. It really makes little difference. The fact that he, a level-headed, sensible, working farmer has found them interesting, for whatever cause, leads me to infer that some other similar farmers might likewise be interested.

The first is in The New England Homestead, and is in the form of an Open Letter to President Harding, frankly calling for a little more governmental consideration of eastern farmers. The Homestead can't see any more than you and I can see, "why government should create more new farms (by western irrigation projects, et al) while existing farmers can't get a living price for what is being raised already." The Homestead asks: "If your administration wants to spend billions of taxpayers' money to increase the production of crops at a loss, to provide still cheaper food for consumers whose earnings already far exceed farmers' meagre returns, why not at least use that cash in the states whose taxpayers put up most of it?"

The Homestead says that the New England states pay over five hundred million dollars a year into the federal treasury and yet import three-quarters of their food. And it denies the wisdom of spending sums to create new farms on arid lands two thousand miles away, when the settlers on such farms pay big freight charges for the long westward haul of their supplies, and the eastern consumer must also pay high freight on the eastward haul of his grain. Instead, it says:

"How much wiser to use say $100,000,000 a year out of what New England pays Uncle Sam, for improving New England farms, developing New England industries, improving New England railways, utilizing New England power and other resources. Thus New England might at least feed itself, saving freight both ways," etc.

Now I am sure that you'll all agree with me that this last result is one passionately to be desired. New England used to feed itself—its people, its herds, its flocks, its horses and its chickens, and have something left over for its neighbors. It stopped doing so because, for a time, it could buy its fodder, human and animal, cheaper from the opening west. Now, having become habituated to that dependence, the profiteers and labor leaders who stand between us and the west are practicing upon our seeming helplessness. They apparently reason that we've simply got to pay whatever they see fit to demand; that we're hopelessly in their power; that we can't help ourselves—and that we are, therefore, their meat.

As a first result of this, prices of western-produced grains, meat, etc., to us of the east have been sky-rocketed out of reach and almost out of sight. They are so extortionately high that a good many of us are convinced we could once again raise our own supplies cheaper than we can buy them.

At least, we could, so far as land and soil are concerned. But how and where are we to find the labor to work our land and make the most of our soil? That's the stumbling-block we can't get over.

Does The Homestead really think for a moment that any possible governmental subvention, whether of $100,000,000 or of ten times that sum, would supply New England farmers with adequate labor at possible wages? The old Greeks had a fable about Cadmus having been able to sprout a crop of armed men by sowing dragon's teeth. But what teeth can the Washington administration sow to produce even a corporal's guard of hoe-handlers and pitchfork-wielders?

I should like to see a detailed statement of exactly the items which The Homestead would have the government spend $100,000,000 for in New England, for the benefit of New England farmers. Just exactly to whom and just exactly for what should each dollar of that big sum be paid?

Perhaps The Homestead has such an itemized schedule of proposed improvements and their individual costs. It would be at least informative to see such a schedule. It probably would be even more interesting to find out how many working New England farmers would agree with it—or with any other possible schedule from any other possible source!

The other marked article before me is a letter from an Ohio farmer in The Rural New Yorker. He leads off with a rather amusing illustration of city as opposed to country labor methods. Recently, he reports, he had to wait two hours for some work in the city of Newark, O. Now let me quote:

"Outside the window Your men were taking up a pavement. Across the street three men and a plug team were taking away a shade tree. Back of them seven carpenters were present on a building. 'Were present' is the proper term for all the fourteen. I could drop on one knee and move more brick than the four, could hook a good team to the log rigging, go to the woods and move a bigger tree out of sight in less time than the three, and if you will notice carpenters are the most sociable fellows during eight hours of the day."

On the twelve-mile drive back to his farm, he saw men, women and children grubbing away in the fields and the truck-patches, and reflected that it would take all the produce from an acre of wheat or of potatoes or of corn, or a 200-pound hog (at farm prices) to payone day's wages to each of the fourteen dawdlers he had been watching in town.

And yet "Farmers only take their thoughts off production long enough to look for help from legislation, loans, co-operation or other 'incidentals,' though farmers know or ought to know that "none of these things amount to a button when business sees they have a surplus."

His remedy is a practical and perfectly workable one, too. It is simply to "get out of the rut." Stop raising things every other farmer is already raising too much of, and go to raising things no one raises enough of. Balance farm production by taking up the growing of crops for which the demand is greater than the supply. Look at Kansas, he says, growing wheat to give it away—and only one sheep to every 160 acres.

See that South Dakota man getting less than $2 for four cars of potatoes and Idaho also in wheat and potatoes, when both states should have been growing sugar beets. We buy our linens and our linseed meal and our oil cake from Europe when we ought to produce them ourselves. Broom-corn is worth $320 a ton and only New Mexico grows it to any amount. It's almost impossible anymore to get decent buckwheat breakfast cake, because the western New York counties which are natudal buckwheat soils are devoted to wheat and truck crops and fruit, all of which are more or less drugs on an oversupplied market. These are all summaries of this Ohio farmer's comment. He adds, in conclusion:

"I am in earnest about balancing production. Forget legislation, loans, transportation and such alleged reliefs for awhile and see if we will cut down surplus products by trying to grow all the different foods and fibers needed in America, that they will all be short of the demand. Then, by working eight hours a day, moderately, and letting our families stay in the house, trucks will come after all we have and we will set the price."

Eh? How does that sound to you?

Seems to me the Ohio farmer is within less than gunshot of the truth. Anyway he is headed in the right direction.

What definite, immediate, this-morning aid can government give to farming, whether in New England or elsewhere? "God helps those who help themselves." "Who would be free, themselves must strike the blow." It is all right for small babies to cling to their mothers' gowns. But when grown men have to hang on to government's apron-strings, and begin whimpering for government pap—why, that's different.

It is said that drowning men clutch at straws. We all know that sick people too often poison themselves with patent medicines and quack nostrums. That's about what the west seems to be doing, just now. It is desperately clawing after the bobbing straw of governmental aid, or else pouring down on its protesting stomach the nostrums of such political quacks as advertise their worthless wares most blatantly and most mendaciously.

William Allen White, the more or less well-known Kansas editor, says that the west is "on the rampage, again." It certainly seems to be using its horns and its heels more than its brains. And just how much damage a wild bull loose in a china-shop can do before he is hog-tied and dragged out is always problematical.

All the more reason why the farmers of the east should keep their heads. It is no time for us to join in or even smile at the highly idiotic amusement of "rocking the boat."

I am inclined to believe, on such testimony as is available, that the farmers of the west are having a hard time of it. I know the farmers of the east are. But it is no more sensible to look to government for relief than it would be to rely on the fabled pot of rainbow gold for our weekly wages. That rainbow end never has been and never can be reached. Government never yet worked a miracle and never will.

Passing more laws won't help us. There are too many laws, as it is, particularly in the line of special legislation. A congress which shouldn't pass a single new law, but should repeal about a thousand unfair or unworkable laws would deserve very well of its constituency.

It is along that line alone that government can give us any practical and permanent help. We don't need and have no right to ask for special favors. We do have the right to ask, however, that government shall stop granting special favors to the other fellow. Exactly that is what government and courts—especially the latter—have been doing from time immemorial.

"The interests"—that is as good a name as any for the organized extortionists of commerce—are always on the lookout to buy, beg or steal special favors and immunities from governments and courts. They have accumulated great stores of such, to their own profit and the pillage of worthier classes. If all such special favors and immunities were stripped from them and they were compelled to "toe the mark" on the same terms with the rest of us, the race might be more even than it is. It certainly would be fairer. To that extent we farmers may properly enough look to government.

But we make ourselves guilty of the very injustice we condemn in others, if we imitate them in calling for special favors.

Moreover, furthermore and in addition, there aren't any on tap which would be worth a button to us, if we had them. Don't overlook that!

Bread Theatre.
For its feature attraction today and Saturday the Bread will present Mary Miles Minter in The Heart Specialist. This is a real drama picture and proves that Miss Minter is an artist capable of rising to the occasion, scoring a triumph in a new field of expression.
The Heart Specialist is a Realart picture made for Famous Players-Lasky distribution and is genuine entertainment. It tells the story of a young newspaper woman sent by her city editor to obtain a viewpoint on romance and of the surprising way she found it, and of the enduring nature that it proved to be.
Allen Forrest capably appears opposite to Miss Minter, while Noah Beery, Carmen Phillips, James Neill and other favorites comprise the supporting cast.
Other pictures on the bill include Pearl White in Plunder, the Pathe News and a Sunshine comedy. Continuous show Saturday from 1.30 to 10.15.

Fine Program at the Strand Theatre.
A very select and fine vaudeville and picture programme was presented at the Strand theatre yesterday and was well received.
The order of appearance of the acts were as follows:
Paul George opened with an odd comedy musical novelty that was very good.
Wild & Rose offered fine entertainment with their comedy act called "My Friend."
Johnny Dove and Mabel, "The Camouflage Duo," worked in blackface with song, dance and comedy patter. It is a good act all around.
The closing act featured the Gordon Sisters in "Twenty Twirling Toes," assisted by Eddie Gold. Their offering was very neat and was well received.
A doughboy-cowboy on a motorcycle is bad medicine for bank bandits. Thomas H. Ince has produced something new in the way of western comedy-drama in "The Sunshine Trail" now running at the Strand theatre. It's the story of a guileless youth who comes home from the war expecting to be a hero but who is thrown into jail instead and finds that his girl is wearing the other fellow's engagement ring. The lad goes about "scattering kindness on his way and doing a good to some one every day" but folks repay his kindness by doing him up good and brown. If you want to enjoy a good laugh see Douglas MacLean hitting it up as "Sonny" in "The Sunshine Trail." A News Weekly is also shown.

GROUP DISABILITY LIFE POLICY FOR VETERANS

A plan to have the members of the Connecticut posts of the Veterans of Foreign Wars covered by a group disability life policy was enthusiastically discussed at a meeting of delegates and officers of the state department at Hartford, Sunday. Judge Advocate Benedict M. Holden said he had conferred with the Aetna Life Insurance company relative to the plan. He was appointed chairman of a committee which he will select which will take up the matter further.

There are about 3,000 members of the order in the state, who will be eligible to be covered by the group insurance plan, if it is found feasible.

While ordinary group insurance on the employees of office, store or factory put all on the same basis, the amount of protection usually being according to length of service and the assumption being that all on the payroll and able to work are risks which can be assumed without examination, it is indicated that, in the case of the innovation proposed it might be necessary to have a classification scheme, in order to include all members, the purpose of the plan would be defeated. Such classification would, it is assumed, be based on the varying degrees of health, due to the hardships which the members endured in war service.

NINETY-EIGHT OUT OF EVERY HUNDRED WOMEN who have tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for ailments peculiar to their sex, have been benefited by it. What a marvelous record for any medicine to hold! Over 50,000 women replied to a questionnaire recently sent out by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., of Lynn, Mass., 98 per cent of whom definitely stated that they had been benefited or restored to health by this old-fashioned root and herb medicine. This is a most wonderful record for efficiency, and should indeed encourage every woman who suffers from any ailment peculiar to her sex to give it a fair trial.

TOURING CAR CRASHES INTO HOUSE AT POINT SALOON CORNER

After running past a standing trolley car, hitting Henry Lockwood of Yantic and carrying him on the fender a distance of twenty-five or more feet, a Studebaker touring car, driven by Samuel Marcille of New London crashed into the front of the residence of Andrew Clendinnin at the junction of Boswell avenue and North Main street, known as Point Saloon corner, about 10.30 o'clock Thursday night. Mr. Lockwood escaped with lacerations and bruises.

According to the story told the local police by Marcille, who is but 18 years and 6 months of age, he was following the trolley car south on Boswell avenue. The car stopped at the corner and before he could bring the touring car to a stop Mr. Lockwood who evidently intended to board the car, stepped from the sidewalk directly in front of the machine. The driver said he swung out to avoid hitting the man.

The machine hit Mr. Lockwood in such a manner that he was carried on the fender across the sidewalk and into the front of the Clendennin house. The touring car tore down several of the porch supports and crashing ahead landed up against the front door of the house. The lower part of the house near the door was smashed in, the front door partly torn from its hinges and a window smashed.

Mr. Lockwood was picked up from the porch floor and was rushed to the Backus hospital in an automobile that was standing nearby at the time. Examination at the hospital showed that Mr. Lockwood's injuries were not as serious as was at first thought.

The touring car which is practically new suffered considerable damage. The right front fender was practically ripped off and the left front fender badly bent. Both headlights were damaged, the hood twisted and bent and running boards smashed. The top of the car was considerably damaged.

Marcille was taken to police headquarters, and after telling his story to Captain D. J. Twomey he was released on bonds of $500 for appearance in the city court this (Friday) morning. He will be charged with running past a standing trolley car.

PUBLIC HEALTH NURSING IN THIS STATE

It may not be generally known that Public Health Nursing Associations in Connecticut submit to the State Department of Health a monthly report of their work on blanks supplied by the Department says the July Bulletin, issued by the department of health.

The figures given below are the totals from 49 of the 78 Associations in the state whose reports reached this office when this tabulation was made of reports for January, 1923.

The total number of new patients cared for during the month was 3,911 of which number 1,766 were given bedside nursing care for acute illness. 322 were obstetrical patients who received care before and after confinement. 636 babies under one year of age came under supervision of the Association in addition to 407 children between the ages of one and five. In tuberculosis nursing 44 patients under 16 years of age and 66 over 16 years of age were cared for as new patients. The mothers of babies and preschool age children are being instructed by the nurse how to keep their children well. In the tuberculosis work the return, sanatorium cases and the contact cases, particularly among children, are being carefully watched and instructed in the right ways of living. All of this work is being done under the doctor's supervision. The total number of patients under care during the month for all types of service cnluding both new patients and those carried over from previous months was 23,558.

During the same month 97 patients were transfered to the hospitals, 28 to the tuberculosis sanatoriums, 2,038 dismised as cured or improved and 153 died.

The number of nurses employed by these 49 Associations is 175 and they made during this month a total of 33,245 visits in addition to giving 171 health talks.

A map indicates in graphic form the development of public health nursing in Conecticut. In 1918 there were 7 towns that had public health nursing service. Today, through the efforts of the individual towns and of the State Department of Health there are 78 towns with such service. 41 of these organizations have been formed in towns that previously to 1918 had no nursing service. Not only has the number of public health nurses increased but the standard of work has been raised.

The willingness of the towns to cooperate with the State Department of Health in employing only nurses who have had special health nurse training or experience is one of the factors that has made Connecticut known outside her own borders for her good public health nursing. Such cooperation has protected the community against a poor quality of service.

The total population of the towns covered by nurses is 1,226,992 leaving 153,000 that is not covered by a community nurse.

The State Department of Health, through its Bureau of Public Health Nursing is ready at all times to assist further in developing and organizing public health nursing service.

CLAIMS LARGEST BASS CATCH MADE AT LAKE

Whether or not the man who told this story about catching bass, lands the prize catch at the outing of the Norwich Fish and Game association at Gardner Lake Sunday, he certainly should receive a prize recommended as follows, cut glass casting rod, equipped with a clothes reel, 100 yards of scrimmage line and a box of hookworms.

The prize winning story is as follows: Last week I went fishing at Gardner Lake and tried small minnows but had no luck for two hours, finally landing a small eel. Not wishing to come home empty handed, I strung the eel on a stringing line, a long one, and then threw it into the water. I kept fishing for another hour and finally landed a bull head. Fishing was rotten and I wanted to have something to show to the other fellows of the Norwich Fish and Game Association so I made up my mind to string the bull head. I started to pull up on the stringing line when suddenly I felt a tug and believe me I fought hard before I had that stringing line in the boat. What do you suppose I had?

No, sir, I had just nineteen of the prettiest black bass you ever saw, all between 1 pound and 3 pounds. Do you know that little eel had tricked those bass into trying to swallow him and then wriggled through their gills and strung them up one after the other.

Man, I used that eel once more on another day and in forty-five minutes I had seventeen more big bass all strung up for me. Well, so long, but if you ever want to catch bass go buy a little eel first. They are some bait.

The name of the fisherman who sprung this story is being kept a secret but it is rumored that he will be on hand to personally demonstrate his skill with a trained eel at the outing next Sunday.

NORWICH GIRLS BECOME MEMBERS OF SODALITY

Misses Emeldia and Rose Ouellet of 31 Fifth street, student nurses at St. Vincent's hospital, New York city, became members of the Sodality of the Annunciation of St. Francis of Rome, at a ceremony held recently by the Sodality at St. Vincent's hospital. The sermon was preached by Rev. John H. O. Rourke, S. J. A. class of 17 took vows.

This is the first society of its kind among the nurses of the United States and an effort is to be made to make it universal throughout the hospitals and Catholic Nurses' homes in the country.

Experiments are being made in using garbage to produce steam for heating.

STATE AID ROAD MONEY FOR TOWNS

With $1,000,000 available for construction and maintenance of State Aid roads for the next two years, the State Highway Department has taken steps to allocate this money to the 169 towns in the state. The money was appropriated by the recent session of the general assembly, and under the general statutes is available to towns in proportion to the amount of their grand lists. It is the first time that such money has been made available since 1919, the state aid highway bill passed by the 1921 session having been vetoed.

The law fixes $20,000 as the maximum that may be allowed any town for the two-year period. There is no assurance however, that any single town will be able to receive that amount from the present $1,000,000 appropriation. In other words, the requests for allotments have far exceeded the amount of money available In 1919, it was necessary to reduce the request at least one-half.

This department has extended to October 10th the time limit within which the request from towns will be considered so that it will be possible for the majority to take action on the matter at regular town meetings the first Monday in October.

The selectmen of all towns have been notified that failure to file application for allotments before October 10th will precitude towns from receiving their share of the funds, which will then revert to the general appropriation to be re-allocated to the towns which take advantage of the opportunity.

The state pays seven-eighths of the cost of state-aid roads built in cooperation with towns having grand lists under $1,250,000 and three-quarters of the cost in other towns. The corrected grand lists of towns in the first class, according to a compilation just completed by the board of equalization, will form the basis of the payments. There are thirty-nine towns in this class.

In 1919, 152 towns requested state aid, while sixteen refused to accept funds from the state and their allotments were denied by default.

The procedure is for the state to pay the full amount of the work, and accept reimbursement from the towns. The following towns are in the group which will reimburse the state for one-eighth of the cost of the work done all others paying one-quarter.

NEW GAME LAWS POSTED IN WOODS

Extracts of the new fish and game laws of Connecticut and full information on the open seasons for game have been issued by John W. Titcomb, superintendent of fisheries and game, and posted in conspicuous places in the woods and along the streams of the state.

The 1923 legislature changed some of the regulations on fish and game and added several new restrictions. After January 1, 1924, no form of fishing will be permitted without a license, except on land owned by or leased and occupied by the sportsmen. This includes commercial fishing, as well as pleasure fishing.

The regulation for fishers' licenses are much the same as those for hunters' licenses. Any person over 16 years of age, may secure a hunters' license by making application to the clerk of town, city, or borough or residence. Non-residents may secure licenses from any clerk. Aliens are prohibited hunting. Persons under 16 years of age may secure licenses to trap fur-bearing animals only. The only exemption from licensed hunting is made to residents or lineal descendents of residents on their own property or property leased by them, not for club purposes, when actually domiciled thereon.

A report of the game killed is required of every hunter. Sunday shooting is prohibited. Possession of a gun on Sunday is prima facie evidence of violation. The use of scented bait or snares is prohibited. Traps must have the name of the user stamped thereon and must be visited at least once every forty-eight hours. The use of explosives to take a squirrel from a tree or a rabbit from a burrow is prohibited.

Deer, woodcock, quail, Hungarian partridge and piping plover are in closed season this year. Among birds golden plover will be the first in open season. September 1 is the zero day for these fowl. Wild ducks, geese and brant come in on October 1. Among quadrupeds gray squirrels usher in the season on October 8. November first is the beginning of the dangerous period for the other animals.

Most of the game fish have passed the open season. Lake trout, black and striped bass, and pickerel may still be caught. Legal lengths for the bass is ten inches, and for pickerel and lake trout twelve inches.

Full regulations and laws governing fishing and hunting may be secured from the Public Acts of 1923, or from the superintendent of fisheries and game, State Capitol, Hartford.

NEMROD GROTTO MEMBERS WILL ATTEND CONVENTION

"On to Bridgeport" is the slogan of the New England Inter-Grotto Association which is to hold its fifth annual convention and field day in Bridgeport, on August 24 and 25. And "On to Bridgeport" it will be for at this early date indications are that between 8,000 and 10,000 Prophets will gather in the Park City to participate in one of the most gorgeous and spectacular assemblages ever to be held by a Masonic body in this section of the country. Members of the Nemrod Grotto of this city will attend the convention.

Obeh Grotto, of Bridgeport, which is to be host to the visiting Prophets and their ladies has prepared a programme of events that will rival the supreme council session recently held in Cleveland, Ohio. Co-operating with the Grotto in making arrangements for the convention and field day are committees representing the City of Bridgeport, the Chamber of Commerce, Rotary club, Lions' club, Retail Board, Manufacturers' Association, Kiwanis club and Exchange club.

From the railroad station to the Stratfield Hotel, the Grotto convention headquarters, and throughout the entire business section of the city, the streets will be gaily decorated with American flags, tri-colored bunting, and the rainbow hues and emblems of the different Grottoes of the New England Association. More than 200 stores in the principle thoroughfares have promised to lavishly decorate their store fronts.

Through the transportation committee of Obeh Grotto, all Prophets who travel over the railroad will be granted a fare-and-a-half rate. There is a condition attached to this privilege, however, which requires that at least 250 Prophets show their desire for the reduced fare by registering with the transportation committee immediately upon leaving the train at the railroad station in Bridgeport.

The program for the convention and field day has been arranged as follows:

Friday morning, August 24, Prophets register at headquarters and get souvenirs. Included in the souvenirs is a hundred-page book with illustrations and histories of Bridgeport's parks, industries, public buildings, and Barnum and Bailey's circus-quarters.

Elimination baseball game at Seaside Park, Bridgeport's beautiful watering-place on Long Island Sound.

Friday afternoon, Sight-seeing tour for the wives and ladies of the visiting Prophets.

Friday evening, Parade from convention headquarters to Park Theatre at 7.30 o'clock, where ceremonial will be held half an hour later. Following the initiation of candidates there will be an entertainment by a company of Broadway's Beauties. An entertainment for the ladies also will take place at 8 o'clock.

Saturday, August 25, Band contests, at 9 o'clock. This competition will take place in the center of the city so that the public may enjoy the "battle of music." During the same hour, the Convention Session will take place at which business will be transacted and officers elected. All past monarchs, present monarchs, chief justices, and masters of ceremonies will attend this meeting.

At 11 o'clock the parade of the Grottoes will take place. Thousands of people are expected to witness this procession. Immediately following the parade clam chowder and refreshments will be served. At one o'clock there will be an old fashioned beef barbecue, which will include short loin steak, corn on cob, baked potato, tomato salad, watermelon and refreshments.

The athletic events will be held at Seaside Park during the afternoon and the program consists of the final baseball game for the New England Grotto championship, patrol contests, field events, swimming and other contests. The prizes for the winners of the band contest, baseball championship, patrol contests and athletic events will be awarded.

At eight o'clock there will be a gigantic Mardi-Gras thru the streets of the city. "Fun, frivolity and foolishness" will be the keynote. This affair will be a huge masquerade and fancy costumes of every description will be worn.

SECOND MEETING OF NORWICH LION'S CLUB

With a goodly number of representative business men the second meeting of the Lion's club of this city was held in the Wauregan hotel Thursday noon with Organization President George A. Finn, presiding. C. E. Carpenter, organization secretary and treasurer, kept the minutes of the meeting.

Following the regular luncheon President Finn called upon H. M. McKinnon, for a few remarks, who gave a brief but enthusiastic account of the growth of the Lion's club. Lionel Ethier was elected the club's regular pianist and presided at the piano for the singing this week. All the men were much impressed with his playing.

Frank Rinella was elected tail twister and he kept things moving from start to finish. It is the tail twister's duty to impose all the fines and to keep things moving during the meeting.

The membership of the club has grown to 12 and it is expected that an increased number will be tallied next week. It was voted that for the present the meetings would be held at 1 o'clock this being done as the stores of the city are all closed at 1 o'clock on Thursday afternoons during the month of August.

MAY PROCLAIM NEXT FRIDAY NATIONAL DAY OF MOURNING FOR REVERED LATE PRESIDENT

Funeral Train, Bearing the Body of Warren G. Harding, is Scheduled to Arrive in Washington Next Tuesday—Trip Will Require 90 1-2 Hours—The Body Will Be Taken to the White House—Funeral Services Will Be Held Wednesday Afternoon in the Capitol Rotunda, After the Body Has Lain in State All Day—Wednesday Night the Body Will Begin the Final Journey to Marion, Where Funeral Services Will Be Held Friday—All Plans Have Been Submitted to Mrs. Harding, Who Continues to Bear Up Well Under Her Sorrow.

San Francisco, Aug. 3.—(By The A. P.)—An Avenue of mourning stretched tonight across a land of sorrow. It began here at the Golden Gate and it ended in the nation's capital, and over it for four days and four nights will travel a funeral train bearing the body of President Harding.

When the train, draped in black, drew out of a black-draped station here tonight, there began the saddest trans-continental trip in the history of the nation. There have been funeral trains bearing the bodies of chief executives of the republic before, but no such train ever passed over so long a route.

Ninety and a half hours will be required for the trip, when it is ended at 1.30 p. m. Tuesday, the body of Warren G. Harding will rest awhile in the White House where he served the American people for nearly two and a half years and then in the capital where, as a senator from Ohio he represented his native state for six years. Funeral services will be held in the capitol rotunda late next Wednesday after the body has lain in state all day, and then will begin the final journey to Marion, Ohio.

Arriving on the morning of Thursday at Marion among the home folks, the dead president loved best, the body will be given the tender and loving care of neighbors and friends until the following day when funeral services will be held and a national day of mourning observed. Then it will be laid to rest in the Marion cemetery.

San Francisco was afforded the first opportunity to pay respects to the dead leader when the body was taken from the Palace hotel, where it had rested since the end came last night, to the Third and Townsend street station. But before the long trip across the continent is ended almost countless other communities will be allowed the privilege, though to a lesser degree for the train only will be stopped to change engines and for other operating purposes. It is expected that people will gather along the route the entire way and with uncovered heads pay not only their own personal respects but those of the whole American nation.

Plans Approved by Mrs. Harding.

The arrangements for the trip to Washington were made by the grief-stricken members of the president's party today while literally thousands stood amout the hotel or walked slowly through the lobbies. The plans all were submitted to Mrs. Harding for final approval, and she was able to give them her attention for she still was bearing up well under the load of sorrow.

Mrs. Harding obtained some rest last night retiring at 1 o'clock and sleeping fitfully until morning. Throughout the day she moved about the presidential suite, always, according to those she met, more mindful of others than of herself. She remained steadfast to her determination made last night not to break down, but whether she could continue to do so during the long trip ahead only time will tell.

Messages of Sympathy.

Supporting Mrs. Harding in withstanding her sorrow were messages of sympathy from all parts of the world. Telegrams poured into the hotel all through the day. They came from two former presidents, Woodrow Wilson and W. Howard Taft; from members of the cabinet; from governors and mayors; from rulers of foreign countries and from persons unknown beyond the borders of their own communities.

Late in the day Col. George Filmer, Past Potentate of the Mystic Shrine, called to present the sympathy of San Francisco Shriners, and Mrs. Harding stood for five minutes talking to him, showing the effects of her grief only in a few tears that trickled down her cheeks. This was but one example of how she was courageously standing the strain.

Much of the work of making plans for the future was done by George B. Christian, Jr., who had served as Mr. Harding's secretary for years. Mr. Christian was in Los Angeles when the chief executive passed away, having gone there to read to the Knights Templar of Hollywood what proved the president's last public expression, and he was hurriedly carried to San Francisco by special train. The four cabinet members in San Francisco—Secretaries Hoover, Wallace and Work and Attorney General Daugherty—assisted in this task.

The funeral train is scheduled to reach Washington Tuesday, August 7 at 1.30 p. m.

The train itself is much the same as that which left Washington on the afternoon of June 20, carrying the president full of hope, on the trip across the continent to Tacoma, Washington, where the chief executive, Mrs. Harding and members of their party boarded the naval transport Tenderson for the voyage to Alaska. The private car "Superb," which carried the president then and from which he greeted thousands in rear platform addresses, had been set aside to carry his body back.

Party Traveling On Train.

The party which travels on the train also is much the same as that which left Washington 34 days ago. It consists of Mrs. Harding, Secretaries Hoover, Wallace and Work, all of whom made the trip out to the coast, and also Attorney General Daugherty; the two physicians, Brigadier General C. E. Sawyer and Lieutenant Commander Joel T. Boone; General Pershing, who had abandoned an army post inspection trip to make the trip back; Admiral Rodman, Commissioner Spry of the general land office; Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Jennings, who were the personal guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harding on the trip to Alaska, and Secretary and Mrs. Christian; Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Remsberg, the latter a sister of the late president, and family, also made the trip on the train.

The others on the train are military and naval aides, assistant secretaries, clerks and stenographers, the secret service men, and the newspaper men who have been a part of the party throughout. Then there are sixteen enlisted men and two officers of the army and navy, composing the guard of honor.

MRS. HARDING ATTENDED SERVICES IN SAN FRANCISCO

San Francisco, Aug. 3.—(By the A. P.)—Mrs. Florence Harding, widow of the late President, standing between Mr. and Mrs. George B. Christian, Jr., as the Reverend James S. West read the prayer over her late husband's body here today, nodded her head slightly as the pastor raised his hand and said:

"God is our refuge and strength."

As the minister ended his prayer, Mrs. Harding said "Amen."

The widow stood and watched the half hundred persons as they filed out, waiting for the room to clear in order that she might have a few minutes alone with her dead before the body was taken to the train for transportation to the national Capital.

The body of the dead reposed in a drab brown steel coffin, lined with white silk. The only inscription, engraved on a silver plate, was "Warren Gamaliel Harding."

The coffin was banked with flowers and floral tributes from citizens and consuls general of many nations, filled the sitting-room of the presidential suite where the simple religious ceremony was conducted.

The setting sun poured through the lower portion of the windows and flooded the flower bower with sunlight, which gave the room the appearance of an outdoor flower garden.

Mrs. E. E. Remsberg, sister of the late President, and Attorney-General Harry M. Daugherty, were the only persons in the room who were seated during the ceremony. The Attorney-General was helped into the room by Lieutenant Commander Joel T. Boone, one of the late President's physicians, and was assisted from the room by Commander Boone after the ceremony.

Mrs. Harding was the last to enter the room. She was holding the arm of Secretary Christian and continued to hold his arm as she stood in the center of the room, directly in front of the glass covered coffin.

When Rev. West concluded his Bible text and bowed his head for prayer, Mrs. Christian stepped from the side of the room and stood on Mrs. Harding's right. Both Mr. and Mrs. Christian held the widow's arms throughout the entire ceremony.

Mrs. Harding, dressed in deep mourning, with a black cape reaching to her shoe tops, was veiled. She held her gaze on the minister while he read as he raised his hand for prayer. Her eyes were dry at the finish of the prayer and in a half choked voice she uttered the word "Amen."

When the minister finished, Mrs. Christian stepped back to her original place, and Mrs. Harding, leaning on Secretary Christian's arm, walked to the front of the coffin, held her hand out to Rev. West and gazed at the face of her dead husband.

However, her gaze lasted for only a moment, and she began to talk with Rev. West. Several times she looked toward the small crowd, and after a few seconds her wishes seemed to be instinctively felt by those present. General John J. Pershing and General Morton led the procession out.

Mrs. Harding stood erect and watched those passing out, with never a break in her figure nor a catch in her voice as she continued to talk with the minister.

FINAL RESTING PLACE OF BODY OF WARREN G. HARDING

Marion, Ohio, Aug. 3.—(By the A. P.)—The spot in Marion cemetery where all that is mortal of Warren G. Harding will be consigned to final rest, is one of the most beautiful in the vicinity of the quiet town to which he oft times said he hoped to return as an "ordinary citizen." Situated at almost the exact center of the shady.

The old burial ground, the Harding family plot, where a President of the United States will resume his place among the kindly folk he knew and loved as neighbors, has cupped in a tiny valley.

Two giant elms cast deep shadows over slabs of granite which marks the resting place of the President's mother and of his sister, Mary Clarissa, and only a few steps away a gleaming gravel roadway winds through a perfect arcadway of foliage fashioned by the interlocking branches of virgin elms.

To the rear where the tiny depression leveels itself out, stretches a quiet vista of gently rolling grass land dotted here and there by the gray blot of a tombstone, all deepened into sombre tints by the shade of forest trees—a fitting background for the shrine of a dead President.

MRS. HARDING RECEIVES MESSAGE FROM HOME FOLKS

San Francisco, Aug. 3.—From Marion, Mrs. Harding received the following message signed "The Home Folks":

"It seems impossible that our big, generous-hearted neighbor and friend has gone. The community, this country and the world has lost the one man most needed today. The world has learned to understand and love him as we always have.

"We are grieving with you and pray god will give you strength."

FLAG AT HALF-MAST ON THE HARDING FRONT PORCH

Marion, Ohio, Aug. 3.—(By the A. P.)—The Harding front porch, the focal point of the 1920 campaign, today presented a sorrowful contrast to the summer afternoons of three years ago when President Harding, then only a candidate for his high position, enunciated his policies to thousands of enthusiastic pilgrims or stood, flanked by his wife, greeting well wishers with the quiet smile which became one of his marked characteristics as chief executive.

All was quiet around the spacious gray structure and the placid reaches of Mt. Vernon avenue, seemed even more tranquil than usual. Only a flag which fluttered idly at half-mast, gave indication that the man who left the home he loved to accept the greatest honor a country may give, was dead.

CARDS OF SYMPATHY LEFT BY THE WILSONS

Washington, Aug. 3.—Former President and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson stopped at the White House late today and left their cards. A year ago, during Mrs. Harding's illness, they paid a similar visit to the executive mansion to leave cards of sympathy.

WASHINGTON PREPARED FOR MOMENTOUS EVENTS

Washington, Aug. 3.—(By The A. P.)—The grief-stricken capital of the United States prepared today both to receive its dead and to welcome into authority a new chief executive.

Even before the departure from San Francisco of the funeral train which symbolizes a nation's sorrowing remembrance of President Harding, arrangements had taken form here for such a ceremony as will express in brimming measure a nation's tribute to the kindly, gentle leadership of its fallen chieftain.

At the same time, as if stopping its tears to face bravely again toward the future, official Washington rendered its allegiance to President Coolidge, who has come into the chief magistracy of his country in the vigorous prome of a public life already made notable by executive achievement.

The whole transition was made quietly and without flurry or confusion. None of the pomp and circumstance which usually welcome incoming presidents to Washington awaited Mr. Coolidge on his arrival late tonight to take up his new responsibilities, and except for the solemn demeanor of officials and the sorrowing faces of little groups who gathered before bulletin boards to read details of the tragedy on the far-away Pacific coast, there was little to show that one chief executive had passed and another had taken his place.

Throughout the day Secretary Hughes, as ranking official of the government present in the capital, devoted himself almost entirely to the preparation of funeral plans and data on urgent matters of state to be laid before the new president on his arrival. The conference between them was arranged to take place at the New Willard hotel, where Mr. Coolidge has lived as vice president and where he will maintain his residence and will lay our the groundwork of his administration while the executive offices at the White House are being put in order for him. Because of repair work in progress there, and in deference to Mrs. Harding, it will be several days before the President and the First Lady of the Land take charge of the executive mansion.

One of the subjects to be discussed between Mr. Coolidge and Secretary Hughes was the detailed programme for the state funeral of Mr. Harding but the plans had not reached a stage tonight where they were ready for announcement.

ARMY AND NAVY TO HONOR THEIR DEAD COMMANDER

Washington, Aug. 3.—(By the A. P.)—The Army and Navy tomorrow will honor their dead commander in chief. On every ship and at every shore station and at every fort and every army post throughout the country guns will boom forth a sorrowful salute and all flags will be at half mast, thus to remain until after the funeral. In addition, a period of mourning for thirty days will be observed.

Orders for the honors were sent forward today by the acting heads of the war and navy departments. That to the army will be read tomorrow at 10 A. M., when the troops at various points will be paraded. Signed by Dwight F. Davis, acting Secretary of War, it reads:

"It is the painful duty of the Secretary of War to announce to the Army the death of Warren Gamaliel Harding, President of the United States, which occurred at San Francisco, California, at 7.30 P. M., Aug. 2, 1923.

"The grief of the nation in the untimely death of the President is shared by the Army of the United States, in the welfare of which at all times a deep interest and solicitude, his kindly wisdom and strength, his conscientious devotion to duty and his loyalty to our national ideals earned for him the respect of every American citizen. Appropriate funeral honors will be paid to the memory of the late President and Commander in Chief at the headquarters of every corps area and department, at every military station and at every camp of troops of the United States in the field.

"The Vice President of the United States, Calvin Coolidge, has taken the oath of office and assumed the duty of President in accordance with the provisions of the constitution."

At the forts and army posts a salute of 13 guns will be fired at daybreak and thereafter there will, be single shots at half hour intervals until sundown when a salute of 48 guns will be fired.

"Regulation colors will remain at half mast until after the funeral of President Harding and a period of mourning of thirty days will be observed by all ships and stations."

FERVENT PRAYER AT SERVICE FOR PRESIDENT HARDING

San Francisco, Aug. 3—The Rev. James S. West, pastor of the First Baptist church of San Francisco, delivered the following prayer at the services for President Harding here today.

"Almighty God, our heavenly father, Thou are the supreme ruler of the nation and of the world, the loving Heavenly father of all Thy children, almighty in Thy strength and infinite in Thy tenderness.

"We approach Thee humbly and reverently but boldly and expectantly in this hour when our hearts are wrung with sorrow, the nation is bowed in grief, and the eyes and heart sympathies of the world are turned toward this place.

"The great and beloved chief magistrate of our nation has suddenly fallen at the moment when we most brightly hoped that our earnest prayers for his speedy and complete recovery were being graciously answered, when his great work, as it seemed to us, had only well begun. Our hearts are broken, we are sore stricken with the sense of loss to his family, loved ones, friends, the nation and the world.

"Our hope is in Thee and Thee only. We humbly beseech Thee that Thine infinite grace and comfort may be bestowed upon us abundantly in this hour of our deep need as individuals, and as a nation.

"We thank Thee that in the depths of our hearts for the noble, Christian character lofty principles and notable service of him who Thou hast called from sacrificial service to rest eternal.

We bless Thee for his unshrinking courage, his stalwart strength, his radiant kindness and gentleness, for his self-forgetting devotion to the cause of justice, brotherhood and peace for the individual, the nation and the world, in the propagation of which he sacrificed his life, and as a martyr to which he is lovingly enshrined forever in the hearts of the grief-stricken but grateful people.

"We fondly hope and earnestly pray that what he wished and sought to accomplish by his life may now be accomplished by his death. Raise up others, we beseech Thee, who shall carry forward and complete the great work which he began.

"We beseech Thee to bless with wisdom, poise and strength, all those who were associated with him in the great affairs of the nation, and upon whom with his going there rests so great a burden of responsibility.

"We beseech Thee, especially, to bless him, who by this providence is called to the chief magistracy, of the republic.

"Let Thy tenderest benediction of comfort and sustaining grace be upon members of the stricken family, his aged father, his brother and sisters, and especially, upon his faithful, devoted wife and helpmeet. Comfort her with the hope of eternal life and according to her great need, be Thou her sufficiency day by day until that bright morning dawns when she shall see again the face of him who she has loved long since and lost awhile.

"We make this petition for Thy rich blessing upon the nation and the world in the name of him who is the resurrection and the life, Jesus Christ, our Lord and Savior."

Movement for Extra Session of Congress

Rumor That Pressure Will Be Brought to Bear on President Coolidge.

Washington, Aug. 3.—(By the A. P.)—Pressure for the calling of an extra session of Congress is to be brought to bear on President Coolidge. It will come largely from two sources, those seeking legislation designed to relieve the farmers and those who see in the threatened strike in the anthracite coal fields the possibility of another fuel famine in New York and New England during the coming winter.

What the decision of the new chief executive will be remains for the future. Recently, however, he was quoted as saying that at that time he saw no necessity for an extra session. This view was in the line with that of President Harding, who often voiced his determination that there should be no extra session unless some unforeseen emergency made one necessary.

Should Mr. Coolidge call Congress together in advance of the date for the beginning of its regular session—December 3—he would establish a precedent. Twice before a President has died with Congress absent from Washington and in either case did the men who succeeded to the presidency, Chester A. Arthur and Theodore Roosevelt, issue a call for a special session of the lawmakers.

Movements looking to an extra session already have been launched by senators and representatives from the West and from New England. Recently several senators met at Minneapolis and dispatched a telegram to President Harding urging that Congress be assembled so as to enact legislation for the relief of the farmers, particularly the wheat growers. The telegram was sent to Brigadier General Sawyer, Mr. Harding's personal physician, with a request that it be presented when the executive's condition permitted. These and other senators are expected to present like requests to Mr. Coolidge.

Senator Walsh, who comes from Mr. Coolidge's own state, has issued a statement, urging a special session because of the anthracite situation, and other senators and representatives, with whom Mr. Coolidge has had close political association in the past, also are deeply interested in that situation. They are expected to bring strong pressure to bear on the President with a view to action that might be expected to prevent a repetition of the suffering experienced in New England last winter because of a coal shortage.

FRANCE REALIZES THE LOSS OF A TRUE FRIEND

Paris, Aug. 3.—(By the A. P.)—President Harding's death is taken in France as an event of first importance. It even has placed the grave political crisis which may lead to an end of the entente in the background for the time being.

The President of the republic and the Prime Minister today transmitted expressions of sympathy to Mrs. Harding and to the United States, and other officials and public bodies did the same. There was evinced a realization that France has lost a true friend. "A man who commanded respect and a perfectly upright man," was the phrase used by one of the editorial writers in an afternoon paper, and words of similar import were to be found in each column of the newspapers touching on the demise of the American chief executive.

PRESIDENT CALVIN COOLIDGE NOW AT THE HELM OF THE NATION'S SHIP OF STATE

The New President and Mrs. Coolidge Arrived in Washington at 9.10 Last Night—Had Been Sworn in as President of the United States by His Father at the Parental Home in Plymouth, Vt., Before Daybreak Yesterday—En Route to Washington the New President Had the Escort of a Heavy Guard—In New York the Guard Included 20 Secret Service Men, 200 Patrolmen and as Many Detectives—Friends Declare President Coolidge is "As Plain As an Old Shoe."

Washington, Aug. 3.—(By the A. P.)—Calvin Coolidge, today grasped the helm of the ship of state as it fell from the lifeless hand of his captain, Warren G. Harding.

Quietly he took upon himself the duties of pilot.

Up practically all night receiving the news of his chief's sudden death, he had taken in the sitting room of his father's farmhouse in Plymouth, Vermont, the oath to perform the duties of the thirtieth President of the United States.

Then, a visit to his mother's grave, and he was off to Washington. He arrived in the capital at 9.10 P. M. to be met at the railway station by an official party including Secretary Hughes and Postmaster General New.

Then before retiring he conferred with Secretary Hughes and Senator Curtis of Kansas, republican whip. Tomorrow the new chief executive planned a busy day. He intended to remain in Washington until the body of Mr. Harding arrived from San Francisco, Tuesday, and go to Marion, Ohio, for the burial.

President Coolidge went directly to his suite in the Willard hotel where he and Mrs. Coolidge will remain until Mrs. Harding at her convenience, moves from the White House.

The new President planned to rise bright and early tomorrow morning and be at his desk by nine o'clock. Mail accumulating during his vacation in New England and conferences on Mr. Harding's funeral arrangements will absorb his attention. He will also look after preparation of a proclamation for a day of national mourning for Mr. Harding.

Those who came with the President consider it unlikely that he will announce any important steps in his administration until after the country has recovered from the shock of the death of Mr. Harding.

COOLIDGE HAD A STRENUOUS DAY EN ROUTE TO WASHINGTON

New York, Aug. 3.—(By the A. P.)—President Calvin Coolidge, was whisked through New York today en route to Washington, to take the nation's helm relinquished last night by President Harding.

Sworn in by his aged father, John C. Coolidge, before daybreak this morning, in the parental home at Plymouth, Vermont, the new President motored to Rutland and three boarded a private car which brought him into the Grand Central terminal at 4.1 A. M., eastern standard time. Twenty-seven minutes later he had been escorted, under heavy guard, through silent, toward Washington on a special train.

Grave and quiet, the President avoided all ostentation during his brief stay here. He rode a freight to the street level at the Grand Central, leaving by the 45th street entrance to avoid dense crowds which packed the concourse and the Park avenue entrance. He entered a motor car with Mrs. Coolidge, Governor Proctor and former Governor Clement of Vermont, and E. L. Kingsley, republican national committeeman from that state, and was driven swiftly away.

A few times on the short drive he lifted his hat in acknowledgment of the silent, hatless crowds that lined the streets. His gravity never left him.

Arrived at the Pennsylvania terminal, the President immediately descended by elevator to his special train and entered the private car at the rear. The shades had been closely drawn and the President did not show himself again in the few minutes wait for the transfer of his baggage to be completed.

Protected By Heavy Guards

The President had one of the largest guards seen on a presidential visit to New York in years. It included 20 secret service men, 200 patrolmen and as many detectives, divided between the two stations, and a mounted and motorcycle escort of 40 men.

The President did not meet the army of New York newspapermen who were massed to cover his arrival and departure. He did, however, receive some of the correspondents who had been assigned to "cover" him at Plymouth Notch, and who had visited him in the small hours this morning to obtain his first statement upon his elevation to the presidency.

He chatted with them of many things, but to each request that he amplify his morning statement, in which he announced he proposed to carry but his dead chief's policies, and hoped to retain all members of the cabinet, he replied: "I do not care to enlarge on that. I think it explains itself."

To Occupy Vice Presidential Suite

As to his movements on reaching Washington Mr. Coolidge was still uncertain. He expressed the hope that he might not be expected to reside at the White House until Mrs. Harding had had opportunity to return and make her arrangements. He said he expected to go to his vice-presidential suit at the Hotel Willard, adding that he would not be certain on this point even until after he had reached Washington.

Asked whether it would be necessary for him again to subscribe to the oath of office before a justice of the supreme court, he replied:

"No indeed. Any person authorized to administer an oath can swear in a President of the United States."

The exodus from Plymouth was so sudden that the President has not yet received messages of congratulations from his two sons, John and Calvin, Jr., 2. John, who is 17, is attending the Citizens Military Training Camp at Camp Devens, Mass. Calvin, Jr., a few years younger, left several days ago for the Coolidge home at Northampton, Mass., planning to earn spending money during his vacation by working on a farm.

The President said he rested well during the night in spite of the strain of the midnight hours. He appeared fresh and strong upon his arrival here. He had started for Washington shortly after dawn, driving 37 miles to Rutland to catch a train.

On the New York Central, the entire railroad army stood at attention as the presidential special went through, orders for precedence and special attention having reached every branch of the service. Crossing flagmen, towermen, train and yard service employes bared their heads at most stations between Albany and New York.

Small crowds gathered at the wayside stations stood silent, sober and undemonstrative, as the special thundered by.

At Grand Central terminal, the new President first learned by personal experience the strain and tension that goes with presidential appearances in large cities.

Secret service men, patrolmen and motorcycle men were scurrying everywhere, alert, brusque, pushing back the too-curious, shouting gruff commands—safeguarding the President.

The flying wedge of motorcycle men that escorted him cut a clean path through the heavy rush hour traffic and landed him without incident aboard his Washington train.

CHARACTERISTICS OF THE NEW PRESIDENT AND MRS. COOLIDGE

Washington, July 3—(By the A. P.)—Friends of Calvin Coolidge say of him that he is "as plain as an old shoe," but for Mrs. Coolidge, the new first lady of the land, is reserved the title of being one of the best housewives in New England.

Restricted in social entertainment here by living in a hotel while her husband was vice-president, she had not had the opportunity to demonstrate the excellence of her cooking, which her friends say held wide repute in New England, but now it is predicted that she will resume the practices of marketing and shopping; will supervise the menus at the White House, and probably will cook some of the president's favorite dishes, as she used to do in Northampton.

Tall and graceful, with black hair and blue eyes, Mrs. Coolidge already has established a popularity in Washington which is confined to no faction or party. A good mixer socially, she came to Washington with no prejudices and has allowed none to develop.

As wife of the vice-president, she became president of a dining club composed of the wives and daughters of senators, and in that capacity she proved a distinct success.

Mrs. Coolidge is noted for a conservative taste in clothes, finely poised, she wears things comfortably and well. She lives suits best of all.

"I feel perfectly comfortable in a suit and pretty blouse," she once explained.

The Coolidge red was made fashionable by her soon after coming to Washington but recently she has worn blue a great deal because it is economical. She also has been noted for her well-shod feet, generally having her footwear match her costumes.

Mrs. Coolidge plays the piano, insisting that she does so merely to accompany her two sons, both of whom play string instruments. The two boys have been away to school during most of the time their parents have been in Washington with the result, she says, that their music has not caused much annoyance to Mr. Coolidge. She also is a dyed-in-the-wool radio fan.

While Mrs. Coolidge found the duties of the wife of the vice-president arduous she always showed marked vigor and pleasure in meeting them. Deeply interested in the welfare of her husband she has been a frequent visitor to the senate galleries where she followed the debates over which he presided. She often accompanied him on his speaking tripe.

Mrs. Coolidge is a staunch republican but she has never been partisan as has never attempted to advance herself as a leader. She never permits herself to be interviewed on political subjects, laughingly remarking an explanation that she had established the rule so as to keep from contradicting her husband.

TWO BULLETS FOUND IN HEAD OF WASLIE TRINYLE

Roxbury, Conn., Aug. 3.—Two .38 calibre bullets were found in the head of Waslie Trinyle of 67 Burton street, Waterbury, whose body was found yesterday morning in Roxbury, according to a statement made this evening by Coroner Samuel A. Herman, of Winsted. The bullets were found when Medical Examiner H. S. Karrmann, of Woodbury, performed his autopsy this afternoon. The discovery of the bullets throws a new light on the mysterious murder as it was originally thought that Trinyle died as the result of a battered head.

Death was instantaneous, according to Coroner Herman. The bullets entered the back of the head, slightly above the neck, and lodged in the skull.

The Willimantic Police department has set a new record for monthly arrests, a total of sixty having been made during July. During June, the total was forty-nine which was considered quite large. The new record set by the department was made under the reorganized department with Allan McArthur acting as chief of police. Eighteen of the accused were charged with intoxication and nineteen were charged with violation of the motor vehicle laws, accounting for two-thirds of the total.

The police court also reached the mark for a record during July, when thirty-three pain fines and costs, adding a substantial amount to the city treasury.

According to the police records, the total number of monthly arrests had been on the increase since the advent of prohibition. There were but six arrests during July, 1919, made by the Willimantic police officers.

The work of reorganizing the police department and bringing it to the highest point of efficiency is being carried on by the police committee. It is expected that by the end of the month the full complement of supernumeraries will have been appointed and that the men will be ready to answer when called upon. Another addition to the department at an early date will be the appointment of a captain, authorized by the general assembly at its last session. The department will then have three officers, a chief, captain and lieutenant. Their hours will be so arranged that an official will be present at the police station at all times.

Improvements are also being made in the street signal system in order to bring the officers on the several beats in closer touch with the officer at the police headquarters.

A red flashlight will be installed in front of the Jackson street fire house to notify the officer on that beat. The upper Main street patrolman is warned by a light placed in front of the entrance to the police station. The signal light in Sodom will be moved and placed opposite the Lester H. DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

Danielson, with the rest of the country, was stunned Friday morning at the announcements of the death of President Warren G. Harding. A press despatch to The Bulletin, relayed here by telephone, and radio sets brought the first knowledge of the president's death to Danielson, but so late Thursday night that few learned of the country's loss until Friday morning.

The Bulletin was first in this field with detailed accounts of the president's death and other news features pertaining to important matter and papers were greedily taked by early risers on their way to work.

Flags on the state armory, public buildings and private residences were placed at half-mast as a mark of mourning and respect. While plans were slow in formulating during Friday, it was indicated that the president will be memorialized at the Sunday services in Danielson's churches as well as in churches in other communities hereabouts. Later a general memorial service will be held, in all probability.

Incident to the half-masting of flags Capt. F. O. Armington said Friday that he had received a number of inquiries as to the correct method of displaying the flag on such occasions as this. Quoting from the war department regulations Captain Armington said that flags are displayed in the usual manner, with the blue field up and half way of any mast to which it may be attached.

In the case of flags suspended across a street the regulations are that on streets running north and south the blue field goes to the east. On streets running north and south the blue field, or union, goes to the north.

Within a few days, it was stated here Friday, a special campaign will be inaugurated in this territory in the interest of the Windham House fund of Connecticut college. Mrs. E. W. Higgins, Norwich, chairman of the fund as successor to Mrs. Miranda C. Butler Robinson of Danielson, Miss Rosamond Danielson of Putnam Heights, treasurer of the fund, and Miss Louise C. Howe of Norwich will personally interest themselves in the effort to be made here and will come into the field probably during the next week.

Interest in the Windham House fund has experienced a revival recently. Within a few days cash and pledges of approximately $5,000 have been received. A deposit of $4,000 made at the Danielson Trust company is evidence of the strides being made toward completing a fund projected several years ago and not completed, though good progress has been made.

Only this week Mrs. Robinson announced a gift of $3500 for a suite of rooms in memory of her husband, J. Rienzi Robinson. The stimulus produced by this gift and others recently made may be sufficient to arouse the people of Windham county to the importance of the projected work and of the desirability of providing promptly as possible such accommodations as Windham House will furnish at Connecticut college, now retarded in growth because of lack of dormitories.

An old Cadillac used to haul a trailer on which poles were drawn was demolished and the front end of a trolley car smashed in on the trolley line at Shanty hill, a mile south of the borough Friday afternoon, in a rather unusual accident in which, happily, no one was injured.

The truck was on the tracks about parallel with the rails that three large poles on the trailer might be unloaded on the westerly side of the trolley line when a northbound trolley car due at Danielson center at 3.10 came breezing up the line from the direction of the Dyer dam and shooting around a curve that obscures a view of the line for any considerable distance ahead slid into the pole rig despite the fact that the brakes on the trolley were set tight as they would hold by Motorman William Babcock, who escaped injury by dashing back through his car when he realized that an accident was inevitable. The few passengers on the car escaped with nothing more serious than a jar resulting from the collision. Conductor John Maher was on the car with Motorman Babcock.

At the present time the Connecticut company is engaged in doing some replacement work in the vicinity where the accident occurred. Ivan Kempton, driving a truck owned by Warren A. Thatcher, who is in the employ of the trolley company as a motorman, had come in from Rhode Island with a load of poles just before the accident and was quoted as saying afterwards that he was ordered to put the poles across the track where there are open lots. He was all set for unloading when he heard the rumble of the approaching car over a part of the route where the line runs on private right of way and where good speed usually is attained. Snatching a red flag off the truck, Kempton hurried at top speed down toward the curve and frantically signaled the car as it hove in sight. Motorman Babcock did his utmost to avert a collision, but was unable to do so. The Cadillac was completely wrecked.

Rhode Island justice has dealt sternly with Arthur Sousa, 18, and Herculano Sousa, 19, who stole the car of Augustine Pechie of Danielson while the machine was parked in Union square in Providence Thursday afternoon of last week. Arthur, out under a deferred sentence on a charge of breaking and entering and larceny in Bristol a little more than a year ago, was ordered sent to the state prison by Judge Arthur P. Sumner of the superior court. Herculano is being held under bonds of $2500 for the grand jury. The youths were arrested in Warren, R. I., where they were observed pushing the car, which was out of gasoline, and because they appeared to be acting in an unusual furtive manner. Mr. Pechie has recovered his car.

At East Killingly today, Miss Ethelyn Shefield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Sheffield of that place, and Warren Kelley of Providence will be united in marriage.

Judge W. Fenner Woodward and A. Van Thompson, while in Providence saw the new feature stunt with an aeroplane—the writing of a cigarette advertisement in the sky, which visitors to New York saw during May. This achieved by the use of smoke released from a plane and made to form letters by the manoeuvering of the plane. Even the "." was dotted with a puff of smoke by the skillful aviator.

Though this is not the kind of weather when the average person wants to take on any additional obligations, there is an adourned annual borough meeting scheduled for next Monday evening to fix the tax rate for the ensuing year. This rate may be 10 mills, or slightly higher.

Motor races near Providence this afternoon will attract Danielson men who like to see cars travel at high speed.

A fleet of motor trucks bearing racing horses and racing equipment from Woonsocket to Norwich rolled through Danielson during Friday. On one of the trucks halted here while the men with it went for a lunch was a sizeable pet dog. Perched high on some boxes at the rear of the truck he finally became lonesome and jumped off. He didn't reach within a foot of the ground, however, as his hitch rope was too short and he hung by the neck in imminent danger of strangling, until F. X. Lemieux could reach him and toss him back on his perch, where he was content to remain until his friends returned.

Thomas Lajeunesse is leaving in a few days for a visit with relatives in Canada.

Attorney Louis Woisard, recently admitted to the practice of law in Connecticut, is now at his home here. He will rest for a time before beginning practice.

Just what this means is not known It may have been used in rum running or may have been forfeited for some other cause. Zito's only interest is in getting his car back and he with Captain of Police William Jarvis, left for Montreal to recover his property.

The citizens of Putnam, like all people throughout the United States, were shocked, Friday morning, to learn of the death of President Warren G. Harding. People who were up at a late hour Thursday night received the news over the radio. Others coming down to business saw flags at half mast and at first could not account for this demonstration. Slowly the fact dawned upon them that possibly the president had passed away. None would believe this sad fact however until it was confirmed by the morning newspapers.

Putnam has a personal interest in the situation. President Harding was a personal friend of George L. Padgett, editor of the Windham County Observer, who did newspaper work with the president at Marion, Ohio, and had but recently received a fine autographed photograph of the president.

Dr. Foster, a former Putnam boy and a graduate of Putnam high school, spends his summers on the Putnam Heights road. It has been his custom annually to hold clinics at the hospital but heretofore he has held them one day a week for several weeks. As this broke into his vacation each week it was decided to hold the clinics on six consecutive days this year.

Mrs. M. A. Bassett of Scarsdale-onthe-Hudson, with her older son, passed through Putnam on an automobile trip Thursday and stopped to call on friends and to lunch with Dr. and Mrs. Sheppard on the Putnam Heights road. Mrs. Bassett was formerly Miss Hannel Goodspeed of Putnam. The family moved from Putnam over twenty-five years ago. Mrs. Sheppard is also a former Putnam girl, Miss Nellie Foster, and is a sister of Dr. Harry Foster of New York, now in Putnam on his vacation. Dr. Sheppard is also a prominent New York physician.

The first outdoor meeting held by the local council of the American Federation of Textile operatives, Thursday evening, attracted a gathering of about one thousand. Addresses were made by Secretary P. O'Connell of Salem and A. J. Gauthier of Baltic president of the Connecticut Textile Council. Mr. Gauthier outlined the cause of the strike, a demand for the full twelve and a half per cent. increase in wages given by other mills engaged in the same line of work, including the Taunton mill of the Manhassett Manufacturing Company. Mr. O'Connell talked on the situation and complimented the police and officers employed at the time the strike began. He alluded to the fact that the present employes were mostly transients who would probably migrate in the future, while picturing the strikers as local men and women who, when employed, spent the money they earned in Putnam. Another meeting is to be held next week Thursday evening, when President James Tansey of Fall River, of the American Federation of Textile Workers, will be the principal speaker.

EAST SIDE BALL TEAMS PREPARING FOR BIG CELEBRATION TUESDAY EVENING

The residents of the East Side held a spirited meeting last night at the Duwell in regards to closing up the Married Men and Single Men series next Tuesday evening with a real blow out. The meeting was called to order at 8.30 with over two hundred men and women present. Mr. Frank Greene was appointed chairman and Col. Fowler clerk. Mgr. James Pedace of the Single Men was appointed secretary and treasurer of the big event.

The various committees were then appointed, as follows: music, Mr. George Houston, John Corcoran, Frank Monroe, A. Boyens, J. Pedace and Bruno Pedace. Miss Mary Walz was appointed as chairman of a committee in regards to the large turnout of the enthusiastic women which is expected. The Horrible committee will be in charge of W. Kellner, W. Pedace, and Bob Woodmansee. The Misses Dorothy Burton, Grace Walz, Louise Norman and Marion Pedace were appointed to solicit for contributors. Messrs. Greene, Riley and Woodmansee were appointed to secure automobiles for the event.

After the committees were appointed Secretary Pedace announced that his Honor the Mayor and the Court of Common Council had been invited to attend the ball game and to take part in the parade, and that a stand would be erected on the ball grounds from which they can view the ball game. It was also announced that in addition to Houston's Brass Band, the Italian Band, and the Boy Scouts Drum Corp of St. Patrick's church would be invited to parade. Col. George Fowler officially offered his services as marshal of the parade. Before the meeting adjourned it was unanimously voted to hold a block dance after the parade and to hold another meeting Monday evening at 8 p. m. The meeting was adjourned at 9.30.

During the evening Mgr. Pedace announced that the rumor in regards to Bergen not pitching next week were false and that the south-paw would positively appear in the box. Golberg had a dozen pictures of himself in different poses taken and promises to give his many admirers one apiece as soon as they are finished. Col Fowler last night declared that he felt highly elated as to the honor which was put upon his shoulders in regards to leading the parade and that he will prove to the citizens that he is a natural born military leader.

THURSDAY FEATURE DAY AT BAY STATE MEET

Some of the Bay State horses that finished the three-day meeting at Worcester on Thursday arrived at the local track at the Norwich fairgrounds on Friday afternoon and were quartered in the stables. More of the horses are expected to arrive today and by the first of the week it is expected that there will be nearly 100 horses at the track. It is expected that among the horses at the grounds there will be two with marks of 2.01 3-4 and 2.02 1-2, pretty fast steppers for the half-mile oval.

Thursday will be the feature day at the track, the program including four events—the 2.17 pace, 2.14 trot, 2.11 pace and the free-for-all. It is this last event that Peter Kennedy 2.03 1-2, Dwight Edwards' brown gelding is entered and Peter Look, 2.01 3-4, the horse of A. J. Wills of Lawrence, Mass. Both horses were sired by Peter the Great.

TILDEN GETS PERMANENT POSSESSION OF SEABRIGHT CUP

Seabright, N. J., Aug. 3.—William M. Johnson of San Francisco today gained permanent possession of the Seabright invitation cup when he won the annual tournament for the third time. He defeated R. Norris Williams, 2nd, of Bryn Mawr, Pa., in the finals 5-6, 4-6, 6-4, 6-1.

The match, which was bitterly contested until Williams went to pieces in the last set, told visibly on both players. Johnston, though he kept his power to the end, was almost completely worn out. When he weighed in at the start of the match he scales showed 116 pounds. In the intermission after the third set he weighed only 111.

The intense heat seemed too much for the champion at the start of the match. The set developed into a service duel, and went to six all, when Johnston donned his Wimbledon hat and took the set.

Williams took the next by forcing the rallies and by brilliancy in varying his length. Johnston won the third after a tremendous show of cross court work, and the fourth was all his from the start.

In the semi-finals of the women's singles Mrs. Molla B. Mallory, national champion, scored an upset when she avenged the defeat suffered in the Middlesex tournament in England in June, by winning from Miss Kathleen McKane, English champion, 6-4, 6-3.

In the other frame of the semi-finals Mrs. R. C. Clayton, another member of the English women's team which has come to this country to play in the international matches at Forest Hills later in the month, defeated Miss Eleanor Goss, 6-4, 3-6, 6-4. This makes the finals tomorrow an international affair, Mrs. Clayton against Mrs. Mallory.

DEMPSEY IN NEW YORK; WILL TRAIN AT SARATOGA

New York, Aug. 3.—Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion, arrived from the Pacific coast today en route to Saratoga Springs, where he will prepare for the world title engagement with Luis Angel Firpo at the Polo Grounds on September 114.

The champion appeared as fit as he claimed to be. He intended spending the night here and starting for the Spa by motor tomorrow morning. His manager, Jack Kearns, and a troupe of sparring mates, included George Godfrey, the giant negro, Jack Burke, of Pittsburgh, and Billy Wells, the English middleweight, were ready to accompany him.

The training camp of the titleholder will be pitched on the White Sulphur Springs shore of Saratoga Lake. Little heavy work will be attempted until about August 10 at which time Kearns intends sending Dempsey at high speed.

Independents at Sterling Sunday.

Sunday the Sterling baseball team will line up against the New London Independents on the Sterling grounds. As the New London team defeated Sterling two weeks ago by a ninth inning rally the Sterling boys are out for revenge. Turner of Rhode Island State College will be on the firing line for the home team with Brunsdon on the receiving end. This battery backed up Frechette, Pechie, Kendrick, Raney, French, G. Kelly, Burton and Tatro will give the New London boys something to worry about.

FAVORIAN WINS FEATURE STATE AT WINDSOR

Windsor, Ontario, Aug. 3.—Favonian, sired by J. Malcolm Forbes and driven by Fred Edman of Memphis, Tenn., won the twenty-ninth renewal of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' stake, Detroit's most famous trotting stake, the feature of the second day of the Grand Circuit meeting at Devonshire track, today. Favonian, who ruled an odds favorite, took the first heat but was badly beaten in the second, finishing sixth. In the deciding heat Favonian won by a nose from Clyde the Great.

This was the thirtieth time the stake has been raced and Devonshire is the fifth track over which horses have trotted the event.

Split heats resulted in all three of today's events. Meriam took the 2.10 pace after losing the second heat. Robert Direct, after losing the first heat of he 2.06 pace, came through in the next to win. Rifle Grenade, won the first heat.

CORNETS AND VELVETMEN PLAY TO TIE SCORE

Friday evening at the J. B. Martin ground the Cornets and the Martin team battled to a six-inning tie, the game being called on account of darkness. The Cornets stepped out in the lead and in the final inning were leading the Velvetmen 3 to 2. In the last half of the final inning after the bases had been filled Zoom St. Germain was sent in as a pinch-hitter and his single scored the tying run. Heebner who played third base for the Cornets captured a foul fly that ended the game with the score 3 all. The Cornets play a return game with the Velvetmen next week.

ALL BASEBALL GAMES POSTPONED YESTERDAY

RIVERVIEW MEETS TAFTVILLE IN SECOND GAME OF SERIES TODAY

One of the hardest struggles of the season for the baseball supremacy in this vicinity will take place on the hospital field this afternoon. The Riverview club of the Norwich State Hospital will clash with the Taftville A. A. in the second game of their three-game series.

The first game is now a matter of history, the Riverview club visiting Taftville last Saturday and handing them a handsome trimming in a one-sided but hard fought game, the score being 9-2. Last week Manager Troland of the Taftville club had his wires crossed when he tried to compare Mike Morin with Tony West. The Riverview boys hit Mike's offerings to the four winds, while Tony was sending the Taftville batters back to the bench with their bats hanging helplessly by their sides.

Manager Troland notified Manager Bill Donovan yesterday that he had signed up two of the leading twirlers of semi-pro ball to send against the hospital team today. They are Pete Wood of the Fiske Red Tops of Chicopee Falls and Gottersiogh, the spit ball merchant of Hartford. Pete Wood is the brother of Smoky Joe Wood of the Cleveland Indians and present coach of the Yale College hurling corps. Bill Liberty of Jewett City will be on the receiving end of the battery.

Tony West will toe the rubber for the Riverview club with Bill Reddy on the receiving end. Fay will cover first, Hart 2d, Massey ss and Mills 3b. Taftville will have practically the same infield and outfield as last week. Manager Donovan has all arrangements completed to accommodate the largest crowd of the season. There will be plenty of parking space, and the new grandstand will take care of a large crowd.

The game will start at 3 p. m. (daylight saving time).

Tommy Corcoran will handle the indicator.

The lineups:

Taftville: Wood and Gottersiogh p, Liberty c, Jack Murphy 1b, F. Murphy 2b, Liberty ss, Dugas 3b, Gaudette lf, Jarvis cf, Jim Murphy rf.

Riverview—Hart 2b, Reddy c, Mills 3b, Couillard cf, Clabby lf, Massey ss, Fay 1b, West p, Walsh rf, Schaffrich rf.

Taftville vs. Corbin Red Sox.

Besides the Hospital game today Taftville has another stiff game on its hands for Sunday when the team clashes with the Corbin Red Sox at the J. B. Martin grounds. The Red Sox are wicked hitters and touched West for 18 safeties in the last game so Taftville will be up against an even stronger team Sunday than they are today.

Morin will be used against the New Britain team and with any kind of support should have a fair chance of trimming the localmakers. Blanchard will be used against the local boys. Blanchard has made a good pitching record this season, having won practically all his games and last week in his game with the Simsbury team he held them to one hit.

HAL CORBIN
Hard Hitting Captain of Corbin Red Sox

Manager Troland's lineup will be the same as he uses today against the Hospital team with the exception that Morin will start the game. The Corbin team will use the same lineup that trimmed the Riverview club on July 21.

Attantion, Mr. George Madden

Manager Spencer comes forth with a bold and brazen statement that his team can beat the fast going Nuggets any day in the week for fun, money or marbles. He further says that the Nuggets, although they hold second place in the Twilight league and have beaten the Cornets before, have no reputation and as a ball club they are terrible. Still he is extremely anxious to descend from his pinnacle in the baseball world and engage said Nuggets in mortal combat on the diamond. How about it, Georgie?

Attention Hardigs!

The East Ends would like to know why the Hardigs do not say anything about a game for Wednesday. The East Ends Manager thinks that the Hardigs are afraid to play the East Ends. If Mgr. Kamos of the Hardigs desires a game with the East Ends let him put his acceptance in the paper no later than Tuesday morning. This is the last time that the East Ends answer the challenge of the Hardigs. What about it Hardigs?

Packard Single-Eight Runabout

PACKARD
SINGLE-EIGHT
Results Never Before Attained in a Motor Car

THE Packard Motor Car Company presents the Packard Single-Eight, embodying principles and results hitherto unknown.

Companion to the Single-Six—successor to the Twin-Six, it surpasses in extremes of sensational performance, ease of control, and riding luxury any car on the market.

More brilliant also in every other essential of motoring—the Single-Eight demonstrates an ample margin of superiority in performance over any possible claimant for comparison.

Packard has developed for the Single-Eight motor new principles of engineering, differing from anything previously used, which not only eliminate lack of balance and consequent vibration, but accomplish another result equally as important:—

The Single-Eight is not merely endowed with a tremendous wealth of power, but the motor is so simple and accessible that it competes with its companion car—the Single-Six—in ease and economy of maintenance.

We invite you to enjoy behind the wheel of the Single-Eight, an experience which no words of ours can adequately portray.

TWO NORWICH DRIVERS' LICENSES RESTORED AT NEW LONDON HEARING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Aug. 3.—Alzert Zalos of New Britain, who has been under treatment at Lawrence hospital, was able to return home today.

Two wife-beaters will be in the police court tomorrow morning. This afternoon Edward Zanesky and Stefan Yankosky, were arrested charged with breach of the peace and beating their wives. Both were locked up in default of a surety on their bond. Shortly after noon Miss Lucy Connor, residing at No. 23 Hill street, heard screams from Mrs. Yonkosky at her home, No. 8 Schoolhouse lane, and Miss Connors saw Yonkosky beating his wife on the veranda. Miss Connors telephoned the police. Motorcycle Officer William Babcock going to the Yonkosky house he found Mrs. Yonkosky much the worse for her treatment at the hands of her husband. Yonkosky was then escorted to the police station. Hardly had the officer arrived at the station house with his prisoner that a complaint was received that a man was beating his wife in the house at the corner of North Bank and John streets. Officer Babcock found Mrs. Zanesky in a condition that indicated the treatment she had been subjected to. Zanesky was quickly made a prisoner.

After operating on Bank street for some time, thieves last night directed their attention to State street stores and the hardware establishment of Lyon & Ewald, located in the Cronin building was burglarized. The thieves evidently are seeking firearms solely, for that was the only plunder taken, although a sum of money that was in the cash drawer was not disturbed. The crooks obtained 13 high grade revolvers and a shotgun. Entrance to the place was gained by going to the rear where the windows are protected by wooden shutters covered with metal. A chisel was used, being inserted between the shutter and the window sash and in this manner a bolt that held the shutter in place was gradually forced out of its socket. The thieves then smashed a window, through which they passed and into the store. It is believed that the crooks had knowledge of where the revolvers and shotguns were stored, for nothing else in the place was disturbed. A few weeks ago the store of the Aben Hardware company at No. 76 Bank street was burglarized and in that break firearms was the principal plunder taken.

Walter F. Smith was in the police court this morning, charged with failing to obey the signals of an officer. He was fined $5 and paid, though not with very good grace. Obstinacy seemed to be the trouble, for Smith persisted in going directly contrary to the way he should have gone and which might have saved him from an accident.

Samuel F. Houston of this city, in the employ of the highway department, was in court for leaving his automobile with the engine in operation and without brakes being placed to prevent the car from starting. He accounted for his violation of law by saying that he merely stepped from the automobile to a news dealer's place to get a paper and that while he was gone the policeman tagged his car. The policeman declared that it was just such cases as this that the law was made to reach, but the court suspended judgment and let Houston go unpenalized.

Rock Zekos and Kate Hornitzky were arrested Thursday night for adultery. They were locked up and today were presented in court. Acting Prosecutor Cronin did not have the case ready to go to trial and the accused held in a bond of $1,000 each for a hearing Wednesday next. Katie furnished a bond but Rock went to the county jail to stay till Wednesday.

The case of the state against C. H. Williams, in which the reckless operation of an automobile is alleged, has been several times postponed. It was continued again today with the promise that it would go to a trial when it again called.

Now that President Harding has died from ptomaine poisoning supposed to have come from eating crabs and its consequences, the restaurants are using greater care than usual to see that no tainted food gets to patrons. Some of the crabs and fish used in this city comes from Baltimore and are on the way, iced, for several days. Occasionally that they have passed the "fresh" stages is apparent to the dealers and the restaurant men, but it takes conscience to throw such fish away when they have been paid for at a good price and the temptation to serve them to diners is great.

It is claimed that there are not more than half the number of pool tables in use and those who have operated the rooms claim there is no money in the business any more.

Something must be done to put a stop to speeding on Montauk and Ocean avenues, residents along those thoroughfares claim, or there will be some serious accidents there. Last evening Motorcycle Officer Cavanaugh stopped several drivers and cautioned them, but something beside caution seems to be necessary to check the speed.

Italian people of this city turned out last evening to witness the production of pictures representing the eruption of Mount Aetna in Sicily, their native people and their countrymen call on them for aid without receiving it. The Italians filled the playhouse last evening.

Premises on Bank street which were occupied by six different stores up to a few months ago are now vacant.

Waldo E. Clark, manager of the state pier, is away from the city on a vacation of about three weeks.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel has suspended the operator's license of Edward Ludorf.

The little son of Mr. and Mrs. Meyer H. Hollandersky of Broad street, is ill at the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Hollandersky, at the Pequot.

An automobile, owned by Harry W. Griffith of Springfield, Mass., and operated by Kenneth Bartlett, was damaged this afternoon when in collision with an automobile owned by the city and operated by Kenneth H. Holmes, an employe of the water and sewer department. Bartlett placed responsibility for the accident upon Holmes.

Bridget A. Ryan has sold a house and lot, corner of Williams and Chappell streets to Isadora Amenti.

The Edward T. Brown estate has sold a parcel of land on Crescent street to Alexander T. and Dora Fairbanks.

Susan H. Mansfield Thursday sold the residence at No. 802 Ocean avenue to Henry Holt Smith. Today Mr. Smith transferred the property to William Z. and Madeline S. White.

Ida M., wife of Charles Niles, died this morning at her residence, No. 18 Gorton street. She had been in ill health some time and besides her husband is survived by a sister, Mrs. Neff, of New London.

George L. Holdridge, 75, died Thursday night at his home, 74 Bayonet street. He had been ill several months. Mr. Holdridge is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Frank Joseph of New London and by a brother residing in Mystic. Mr. Holdridge had operated a bakery business in New London and outlying sections of the city, and in Waterford and Niantic. He abandoned active work about two years ago, following sustaining a broken leg when his vehicle was in collision with an automobile. Since that time Mr. Holdridge's health gradually declined.

Funeral services for Henry A. Rogers, formerly of New London, whose death occurred in Philadelphia Wednesday, were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. James B. Getchell, 618 Williams street. Rev. Joseph R. Elder officiated. Burial was in Union cemetery, Waterford.

City Manager Barlow this afternoon informed Captain of Police Charles A. Finney that he had received complaints from residents in the vicinity of Belden and Blackhall streets that youths were making a practice of entering yards and stealing fruit, between 6 and 7 o'clock nightly.

Alito Guiliani was arrested this afternoon by Motorcycle Officer William Babcock, charged with being stragglers from the United States navy, Guiliani will be delivered to the naval authorities at the submarine base.

Martin R. Cullin, 72, died early this morning at his home, No. 28 Grand street, following a shock suffered the night before. He is survived by his widow, two sons, Harry of New London and John, of South Manchester. Mr. Cullin was a carpenter and janitor of the office buildings until he was stricken.

Seven violators of the automobile laws who had been penalized by Motor Vehicle Commissioner Robbins B. Stoeckel by the suspension of their respective licenses, were given a hearing before Milton E. Snow, an inspector of the motor vehicle department, this afternoon at the court house.

Michael Clifford of Norwich, whose license was suspended for evading responsibility, had his credentials restored upon an explanation being made satisfactory to Inspector Snow.

Anthony Barry of Norwich received his license back with a warning. The license was suspended following Barry being convicted of reckless driving.

Horace S. Pervere of No. 89 Montauk avenue received the return of his license. Pervere operated a car on Mallory Hill nearly a year ago, which resulted in the death of one of the occupants when the machine overturned.

Charles Pizzitola of North Westchester got his license back, but with a warning that if he figured in another accident the license would be revoked. Pizzitola informed the inspector that his first accident occurred in Colchester when his father, a passenger in the machine, and who is extremely nervous, shouting at the young man at a time when the driver should have used extreme care in the operation of the automobile.

Walter B. Kenyon of Stonington, convicted last May in Stonington on the charge of operating a car while under the influence of liquor, received his license back.

Joshua Sands of Old Lyme admitted that the automobile he operates had figured in two accidents and that one of them occurred on a day when Sands took "a couple of drinks." Sands was given a warning as to what he might expect if he had a second conviction.

Winthrop Barber of Pawcatuck, recited to Inspector Barber how the machine he had operated had struck and killed a child in Westerly several months ago. Inspector Snow did not consider that the driver was at fault for the child's death and returned Barber his license.

Anthony Piscatella of No. 8 Hamilton street, convicted on the charge of operating an automobile without registration, had his license returned.

PRESIDENT HARDING.

The nation is stricken with grief at the death of President Warren G. Harding, which came so unexpectedly in the sick room at San Francisco. Inseparable from the sense of a calamity to the nation is the feeling of personal loss which touches all ranks of his fellow-citizens. So do the American people take to their hearts and feel a peculiar possession in the man who occupies the presidential chair. With President Harding this may be said to have been particularly true, for he had a lovable, human personality and simplicity of bearing in private life that were not lost when he was elevated to the presidency.

Mr. Harding came to the presidential chair when the problems of peace were before the nation and he died with the words of peace and brotherhood upon his lips. In his last two prepared addresses, that at San Francisco and that before the Knights Templar at Hollywood, although not delivered in person, peace among the nations and Christian brotherhood were the regnant thoughts. As his farewell message they will be deserving of much consideration. Except for the natural regret at leaving a great work unfinished, the final call came to him as he might have chosen to hear it, in the full vigor of his mental and physical powers, clear-eyed and discharging the duties of his great position to the end.

It is too early yet to make just appraisal of his uncompleted administration, but it can be said that no president ever tried more sincerely to serve his country. The problems of peace and of a changed world viewpoint towards war brought a weight of responsibility that might well compare with the problems of the war years. Towards the solution of these, the ratification of the treaties negotiated by the Washington conference may be considered the great accomplishment of his administration. He was pressing towards the goal of further achievements. At any time his death would have been a blow to the nation; it is all the heavier that he is obliged to leave the task in other hands, although able ones, in days of such anxious uncertainty as these.

TROLLEYS AND BUSES.

Something unique in a transportation situation is presented by the spectacle in New Jersey of a people turning overnight from trolleys to jitneys and apparently hailing the change with delight. From the reports on the first two days of the trolley strike there, the motor buses seem to be handling the traffic situation as well, or even better than the trolleys ever did.

The Public Service Railway company, with a virtual state monopoly in 147 communities, is reported to have antagonized its patrons by its indifference to rendering service although maintaining high fares. The sympathy of the public is with the trolleymen in their demand for higher wages, and the trolley company is more than willing to call it all a bad job and get out of the business. According to its president, Thomas N. McCarter, the strike will save the company $1,300,000 a year, but granting the men's demands will cost $4,000,000 a year. Because the company is in other business as well as transit, it could drop its trolley lines and still pile up earnings. This would be without regard to its charter obligations to furnish transportation service.

Worn out with the vexations, discomforts and delays they have been forced to endure at the hands of the trolley, the people are freely patronizing the motorbuses and the state utilities commission has removed all restrictions previously imposed to protect the trolley lines. Hitherto, competition of City officials are warning the heads that unless the company makes an honest effort to resume service the city authorities may exercise their claimed right to take up the tracks from the city streets.

Some neighboring trolley systems offer comparisons with New Jersey in fares, service and wages. In Connecticut there is a 7 1-2 cent fare (four tickets for 30 cents); in Philadelphia a 7 cent fare (four tickets for 25 cents). Under these charges it has been found possible to give service that has satisfied the public and wages and working conditions to the men that have kept them on the job. With a 10 cent fare in New Jersey, neither service that satisfied the public nor wages that satisfied the men has been given.

New Jersey's trolley troubles seem to present a painful but graphic lesson on how not to serve the public.

TOO MANY LAWS.

Of the making of many books it has been said there is no end and the same might be asserted of laws. Each year more than 600 large volumes are filled with decisions of courts of last resort, passing on the constitutionality of statutes and interpreting laws that have been passed by congress and state legislatures. Books of this character account largely for the growth of Columbia University's law library at the rate of 8,000 volumes annually, giving it 110,000 books dealing on law, although it does not hold the record in that respect. The library of congress, the collection of Harvard university and the list of the New York city bar association all exceed that number.

The unrestrained desire to regulate everybody and everything clogs legislative machinery with inconsequential subects and it has been found by authorities who were sufficiently aroused to the prevailing trend several years before the World war that more laws were passed in this country by congress and the legislatures of the forty-eight states than were even introduced in the same period of time in the national and local legislative bodies of Great Britain, France, Germany and Austria. Since the war it is believed by some that the ratio has been greatly increased.

The business of law making with a muddle of legislative verbiage resulting is one that is proving very difficult to control, yet with so many conflicts among statutes and with confusing court precedents developing it is a most important task. The tangle already made is one that it will take long to straighten out. The American law institute, recently meeting at Washington, recognized the importance of making a start in codifying and clarifying the whole body of American law and definite steps to that end have been taken. In the meantime congress and state legislatures can help by passing fewer and better laws.

AUTOMATIC TRAIN CONTROL.

Ever since railroad trains have been running, systems and devices to prevent collisions have been a necessity and there has been a constant development and improvement along this line. But the human element, human failure, the engineer who would take a chance, the flagman or switch tender or despatcher who would make a slip, have been a peril against which there was no protection. It is then of much public interest to know that the Pennsylvania railroad has obtained such results from a system of automatic train control as to justify hopes that it may solve the problem of preventing train collisions, regardless of human failure.

This is to be accomplished, the road's announcement says, by a combination of electrical, pneumatic and mechanical devices applied both to the track and the locomotive, which automatically slow down, or when occasion requires, bring to a complete stop any train that approaches too closely another on the same track, whether going in the same or opposite directions, or when switches are improperly left open. These functions are performed without any action being required on the part of the engineer or the fireman.

Signal bulbs in the cab tell the engineer whether he has a clear track for one or two sections ahead and the automatic device makes it impossible for him to exceed the speed allowed for that division. Should he attempt to exceed the maximum speed, the air brakes will be automatically applied. If the engineer fails to take the action that is indicated for him by the cab signal, the automatic control device will apply the brakes and bring the train to a full stop. Should the electric current fail, the train will also be brought to a full stop.

Tests of the automatic train control have been going on for a year and will be continued. Considering the thousands of trains that are operated every hour all over the country, the wonder is that there are no more serious accidents, but to reach the point where collisions will be impossible is the result which passengers and railroad management alike will hope for.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

The artist knows how difficult it is to preserve the purity of color. Hamerton in his "Intellectual Life" has this remark to make: "even the simple oil painting has its dangers along this line. The colors sink and alter; they lose their relative value; they lose their pearly purity, their glowing transparence—they turn to buff and black." Not alone is this true in the painting of pictures, but applies just as much to the painting of houses. Oh, how soon does a house painted a beautiful creamy white grow dark and dingy, especially on streets where black cinders are dumped! Even the beautiful bloom on the maiden's cheek grows sallow under the stress and storm of the wife's duties. She may try to patch it up by the use of artificial paint, but God's bloom is gone, and gone forever. The brilliant ramblers in my backyard that so delighted me for a few days have bleached into decay. But after all there are some compensations for the loss of the bloom.

Somebody has said that "young men are careless of longevity." Too many of them are influenced by the Epicurean gospel: "let us eat and drink for tomorrow we die." Is it not, however, true that years adding to the fullness of the mental life are very precious? To the growing lad when the animal life predominates it is not at all strange that it should be the physical side of life with its sports, pleasures and vigorous exercises that should appeal to him more strongly. It is not so much future mental attainments as present physical possessions that should grip him. He is more interested in a merry-go-round than he is in the study of cube root. That is why he needs careful guidance. He needs to be protected from himself in the interests of longevity. Let him read Pendennis and see how old age is nothing but vacuity and misery if the early years have been fed on nothing but sport and fashion.

Nature generally shows a repugnance for dead uniformity. As these lines are written we are passing through a long period of semi-cloudy weather. At times the sun faintly struggles to shine through the broken clouds and then gives it up as a bad job. Two weeks ago we were struggling with a few days of torrid heat, then nature with one of her whirligig flops turned on the faucet and let down some cool breezes from the north of Canada. Then this was soon moderated with a little stickiness mingled with much cloudiness. But nature is consistent in her fickleness. She is not monotonous anywhere. How various is her topography here in New England. One cannot gaze in any direction from any given point and have even a similar view. We see exactly the same thing in our individual make up. Probably no two faces were ever created precisely alike in all details. Without its variety it would be a stupid world.

All commendation is to be given to present day efforts for the improvement of physical girthood. This thought came to me the other day with a good deal of emphasis when I saw two young girls, dressed in the regulation khaki, with dress suit cases packed, getting into an auto to be taken to a camp under the auspices of a Camp Fire Troop. I have elsewhere expressed myself as strongly as I could in favor of the Boy Scouts' organization and the arguments there used apply justly to the Camp Fire organizations. Fortunately the day is past for emphasizing mere daintiness as a marriageable asset in girls. Physical strength and vigor are not inconsistent with those higher refinements that we associate with the sex. The hothouse plant has given way to the hardy shrub that thrives even in the outdoor life of New England. While I do not believe in extremes I am much more in sympathy with the bold, self-reliant flapper, than with the timid, insipid prude.

The Psalmist has given us this bit of experience to mull over: "I have seen the wicked spreading himself like a green bay tree." So have all of us, perhaps not like "a green bay tree" but "spreading" himself all right and actually get away with it. I suppose the meaning is that the writer has seen the wicked prosper? And why not? There is nothing incompatible between wickedness and the possession of a keen intellect. A man may break every law of God and man and still have the capacity for making money. He may climb up into the "seats of the mighty" along political and social lines—as many have done and still do—by trampling down everybody else who stands in his way. Simply because a man is too good is no evidence that he is great. The reward of being good is not the possession of great power, neither is it the opportunity to "spread himself like a green bay tree" or any other tree.

It is, however, doubtless true that the average godly people throughout the world are better off than the average of the wicked simply because they take better care of themselves, and that puts them into a better condition for earning and saving than those who are in the clutch of bad habits. I don't believe that any reasonable Christian expects that the resultant of his goodness is to be silver and gold, houses and land. At least there is nothing in the Bible to warrant such an expectation. He leads the clean, straight, uplifting life simply because reason and revelation tell him that it is the only one in which he can justify his manhood. His reward is the consciousness of doing right in the sight of God. The reward of the wicked is here and now; it is what time and sense can put into his hands. And if it his only reward, God have mercy on him. But eye hath not seen, nor ear heard the rewards of those who love Him.

The outing season is now with us, and one is inclined to ask if it doesn't have a more far-reaching value than it seems on the surface. We are getting to be so busy that it seems to be time poorly spent to take merely a day off to go to some crowded beach to eat sandwiches and drink cold coffee. But in order to fully realize the importance of an outing—and here I am thinking of the church picnic—let us put ourselves into the viewpoint of the children. Unless we remember vividly our own children we cannot realize what a picnic, and especially a church picnic, really means. I personally think that its value is not likely to be overrated. The greatest danger to our Sunday Schools is the liability of losing the boy when he gets into his teens, and one of the strongest cords that binds him to the school is the quality of its social life. Now, when the school as a whole goes on a picnic, and makes it a great day for the child he feels that it is the ideal place for him.

Four hundred and thirty one years ago yesterday Columbus sailed from Spain on his western trip of exploration which resulted in the discovery of, and the last, continent. Next to the birth of Christianity it would be difficult to point to an historical event more far reaching in its consequences than the embarkation of August 3, 1492. Had it not been for the Santa Maria of 1492 in all human probability there would not have been any Mayflower in 1620. The Old World had become so hidebound religiously and politically that a new continent was required for the establishment and successful working of democracy in church and state. It is not much to say that the map of the world was changed not only geographically, but also politically and religiously with the discovery of America. Whatever may be said of the motives of Columbus, his name will always stand foremost in the list of discoveries.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

Loneliness.

"And was with the wild beasts."—Mark 1:13. Our Lord fought a lonely battle in the temptation in the wilderness. St. Mark's is the graphic gospel. It was a desolate place—this of the temptation. This swift stroke of St. Mark's pen brings it out: "And was with the wild beasts," no pleasant homes spread their roofs there. No villages nestled there. Wild beasts crouched, hunted there. It was an arena of loneliness.

So our Lord, amid desolateness, away from human fellowships, with but the prowling beasts for company, fought a lonely battle. Very suggestive is all this, it seems to me. After all, the deepest fact about everyone of us is that each one of us is alone.

Not even the dearest heart and next our own knows half the reasons why we smile or sigh. Has not the necessity of some personal decision sometimes startlingly forced the fact of your real and isolated loneliness back upon you? You stand where the ways fork? You must go this way or that. Which shall you go? You study circumstances, you try to discover providential indications, you pray, you seek advice from friends; all right and wise and well; but in the last analysis yourself, the separate soul, must elect this way or that and receive the results your personal and necessary choice may bring yourself.

The sweet and comforting fact is that our Lord Himself knows all about this loneliness. Our Lord fought a lonely battle in the temptation. He was with the wild beasts. Therefore our Lord can interpret pity, sympathize with our loneliness, the best defence against the dangers and despair of lonely hours in the consciousness of Christ's care and presence.

I could not do without Thee;
No other friend can read
My spirits strange, deep longing,
Interpreting its need,
No human heart could enter
Each dim recess of mine,
And soothe, and bless and calm it,
Oh, blessed Lord, like Thine.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Trees From Park Commissioners.

Mr. Editor: The Lowthorpe Association wish to express through The Bulletin their appreciation of the kindness of the Mohegan park commissioners, who at the suggestion of Ozias Dodge, recently presented more than one hundred young pine trees, which have been set out on the hillside south of Lowthorpe Meadows. It is hoped that these trees will flourish and in years to come become a source of pleasure to the future citizens of Norwich who will then be living to enjoy the meadows and the hill.

Only a few years after being admitted to the bar, Mr. Barkley was chosen prosecuting attorney of his county. In 1909 he was elected a judge of the county court, resigning from the bench in 1913 to accept a seat in Congress.

BATTLING BIRDS

"It's a great thing to have brains," concerned the man who was gazing out of the kitchen window. "If we didn't have brains we should be just as badly off as that bunch of Idiotic English sparrows out there on the back steps!"

"What have they done?" asked the man who had just dropped in and then happened to ask for a drink of water and so had been escorted to the kitchen by his host.

"I threw them old bread," explained the man who had started the conversation. "Because they are such pert little beggars and it is so hard for them to work out a living this time of year. What if they do make an awful racket and never sing? They're birds, aren't they? And we are supposed to be kind to birds. I threw plenty of bread, and what do they do? Instead of sedately picking out their own pieces of bread and letting it go at that, each bird grabs a piece, then looks around and sees that another bird also has a piece of bread, whereupon No. 1 drops his and grabs for that presented by No. 2.

"No. 3 begins to row and fight, and then No. 2 flops down in the melee, tries to steal both pieces of bread and gets attacked by the whole bunch of bolshevike. They peck and hammer and shriek and chatter and forget all about the bread, usually flying away fighting to the death. The bread all dries up and blows away and they go around tightening their feathers over their vests and saying: 'Gosh, but it's a hard winter!'

"Or else one solitary bird comes along, sees the provisions apparently scattered about by bountiful nature and goes nutty in its fear that it is going to miss something. First it grabs a big piece and turns a somersault trying to fly away with the whole thing. It drops that and attacks another piece, plunging in head first and emerging with crumbs down its ears. After manicuring its face it finds itself standing with its back to the whole line of bread. Gazing about it blinks distractedly.

"'What!' the bird says, breathing hard, 'can I be mistaken! A minute and now it has vanished! Who took my bread? Leave me at him!' And the bird tumbles about in a fit of rage and flies away boiling with wrath and excitement to tell all its friends how the largest find of the season was swept away just as it was in his grasp. "This, my friends,' he shrieks, 'is what we are going to remedy when we are in power! This grasping of capitalism will be punished! They snatch the food from our very mouths! Are we slaves?

"There were six birds out there just now quarreling over a supply of bread big enough to have fed them for a week. Some tramp bird from across the alley had broken into the crowd and they couldn't make up their minds whether to lick him or go in for the big feed. First they would grab some bread and go would the tramp—then they would drop their prize and pitch onto the stranger.

"It seemed to irritate them to ferocity that he was able to fight them and hang onto his bread at the same time. It was beyond their comprehension and every time they pitched onto him and he emerged ruffled but victorious with his chunk of bread intact they just about had hysterics.

"They rushed around saying to each other, 'Look!' See what he's got! It's ours! Take it away!' and each time he refused to give up, except when he noted that some one of the gang had a bigger piece than he did he would let go and grab that one. He kept up that progressive prosperity, as one might say, until they yelled so and jumped on him so viciously that the whole lot of them tumbled and rolled off the steps to the ground and under the fence into the next yard. Meanwhile the puppy hopped up on the steps and gobbled all the bread and the result is not one of the beggars gets a bite"

"My goodness, Edmund,'" cried the horried wife of the talker, coming out into the kitchen and surprising them, "I should think you'd have sense enough to look what you are doing! You've laid your magazine right down on top of the currant buns I was letting rise to bake for dinner—and if you haven't emptied your water glasses into the bowl of mayonnaise I just made! Do go on out of here!"

"Well, you shouldn't keep things setting around so carelessly!" said the philosopher indignantly. "Come on, Hopscotch—let's go where we can talk in peace! Just like a woman!"—Chicago News.

Wives of Famous Men

Margaret Shippen, Wife of Benedict Arnold

A favorite form of fictional writing is one in which the heroine is faced with a situation in which she must choose between love and duty, or sometimes between love and pride. Occasionally heroines of real life are faced with similar situations, and one of these—for she was indeed a heroine—was Margaret Shippen, wife of Benedict Arnold, traitor of his country during the Revolutionary War.

So great was Mrs. Arnold's love for her husband that it survived the cruel blow it received when he admitted to her his treason. When Hamilton returned after a vain attempt to capture Arnold, he found waiting for him a woman unlike any picture he had conjured as the wife of a traitor. She was most pathetic, standing there with her baby in her arms, waiting for her husband's return. When Arnold Hamilton told her her husband was to be banished and would never see her again, she fell violently ill.

Never did a woman so little deserve such a fate. She was endowed with all the beauty and grace of youth. Her face, says a biographer, had in it "all the innocence of a child's." Her love for her husband was a white flame that nothing could extinguish, and he, in turning traitor to his country, had also turned traitor to her. But even though he broke her heart it did not kill her love. Her hopes, centered as they were in home, husband and child, were completely crushed, but she never complained. She remained loyal to him until the end of her life, never permitting anyone to speak ill of him until the end of her life, never permitting anyone to speak ill of him in her presence. It is difficult to believe that a man who was capable of commanding such great love could stoop to the act of treason that Benedict Arnold committed.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

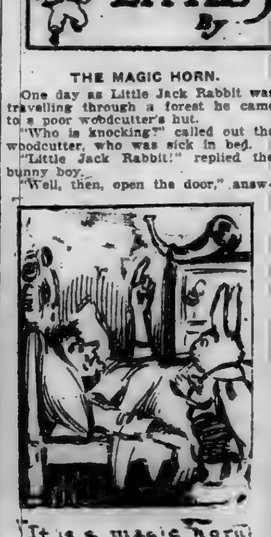
THE MAGIC HORN.

One day as Little Jack Rabbit was travelling through a forest he came to a poor woodcutter's hut.

"Who is knocking?" called out the woodcutter, who was sick in bed.

"Little Jack Rabbit!" replied the bunny boy.

"Well, then, open the door," answered the woodcutter.



"It is a magic horn!"

"What can I do for you? Have you food enough?" asked the bunny boy.

"I have tasted nothing for two days," replied the poor man, closing his eyes, for he was very weak.

"Goodness me," thought the little rabbit, "it's lucky I have some chicken sandwiches and angel cake in my knapsack," and drawing up a little table to the bed, he spread a feast upon it.

"Bunny boy you have saved my life," said the woodcutter. "Do you see that horn hanging over the fireplace? Take it down for it is yours for the asking. It is a magic horn so I have been told, but what use have I, a poor woodcutter, for a magic horn."

Hopping upon a chair, Little Jack Rabbit took down the old horn and slipping it in his jacket pocket, bid the woodcutter goodbye and once more set upon his journey of adventure.

But gracious me, he had gone but a short distance when a band of robbers jumped out from behind a thick bush.

"Give us your purse, bunny boy or we'll cut off your head and the tip of your tail!" they shouted, thinking of course, that Little Jack Rabbit would be frightened to death.

"My purse is for the poor and needy and not for robber men," replied Little Jack Rabbit.

"Ho, Ho!" cried the tallest robber. "Brave words, but my little bunny you are one against many. Hand over your purse or your life won't be worth a pewter dime!"

Well, this so angered our rabbit boy that he raised his pop gun, but in less time than I can tell it, the tall robber struck it with his big club, knocking it out of his paw. But don't get worried, little reader, for all of a sudden, the bunny boy remembered the magic horn, and taking it from his pocket, blew upon it and would you believe it, the blast that came from that magic horn fore the leaves from the trees until the forest was as bare as if it were the middle of January.

"Hold on!" shouted the robbers, "don't blow again, but Little Jack Rabbit only grinned and blew another blast. Off came the robbers' hats rolling along the ground like hoops.

"If I should take a good blow," cried the bunny boy, "you robber men would find yourselves at the other end of the earth and maybe farther!"

"Here, take this big bag of gold," said the biggest robber man, "your hurricane horn is too much for us," and, dropping the bag of gold he ran away with his comrades.

"Words can but fail to assuage your grief, even though the nation mourns with you in your great bereavement through the loss of your husband and our President. SPECULATING ON EFFECT OF PRESIDENT'S DEATH

New York, Aug. 3.—Her first shock at President Harding's death past, New York, the financial and business center of the nation, tonight turned to speculation on the effect the president's passing is to have on the nation's material welfare.

They will open for half day sessions in the morning.

While all the important financial and industrial men interviewed expressed confidence in Calvin Coolidge, the new president, characterizing him as an able man, amply qualified for the arduous task to which he has been called, there was some difference of opinion as to how the sudden shift of power would affect business.

MAN TRIED TO COMMIT SUICIDE IN THAMES RIVER

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Aug. 3—Enrick Johnson, fireman on the tug Mercury attempted to commit suicide early this morning when he made a strenuous effort to throw himself from the deck of the tug into the Thames rived and that he was not successful was because members of the crew of the tug lashed the fireman to the deck of the boat. The Mercury reached the mouth of the harbor shortly after 1 o'clock with a tow. Hardly had the tug headed up stream than Johnson appeared from the fire room. His actions were such as to attract the attention of the crew and in a few minutes the fireman tried to throw himself over the guard rail. He was seized by some of the crew, but fought them so fiercely that he was forced to the deck and then tied fast.

The tug continued up the harbor and after anchoring the tow in midstream, continued to the lumber wharf of the F. H. & A. H. Chappell company. Going ashore Capt. Michael Rabb communicated with the police asking that assistance be given him in caring for Johnson. Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Patrolman George Laboue were detailed to bring Johnson to the police station. Johnson exhibited every indication of being demented. He was treated by a physician and because of his mental condition the attending physician ordered that Johnson be committed to the Norwich State Hospital for the Insane for observation. Sergeant Murphy and Patrolman Laboue took him to the institution.

FLETCHER POST SENDS TELEGRAM OF SYMPATHY TO MRS. HARDING

At a meeting of Robert O. Fletcher post, No. 4, American Legion, held Friday evening at post headquarters on Main street it was voted to send a telegram to Mrs. Warren G. Harding, expressing the sympathy of the post in her bereavement of the death of President Harding.

The following telegram was dispatched:

"It is with a deep sense of personal loss that Robert O. Fletcher post, No. 4, American Legion, Norwich, Conn., learned of the death of our president, and we wish to express to you our sincere and heartfelt sympathy."

It was also voted that a copy of the telegram be written into the records of the post and that a page in the records be dedicated to the memory of President Harding.

The meeting was opened shortly after 8.30 o'clock by Commander John A. Cunningham and the usual business was transacted. Bills read by Post Adjutant Webster D. Copp were voted paid.

The call for the fifth annual convention of the American Legion, Department of Connecticut was then read by Commander Cunningham. The convention is to be held at New Britain, Sept. 13, 14 and 15. Each post is to be represented by two delegates, with one additional for each 100 members, sessions to be held in Odd Fellows' hall, Arch street, where the convention opens at 10 o'clock Thursday, September 13th.

The following delegates were elected to represent Fletcher post: First delegate, Commander John A. Cunningham; second delegate, Charles W. Cassidy; third delegate, Adjutant Webster D. Copp. Alternates, Arg. William M. Skelly; second, Leslie Fletcher; third, William Anderson.

It was voted to secure the eight reel motion picture, "The Man Without a Country," the picture to be shown at a local theatre to raise funds for post work and expenses. The following committee was appointed to make arrangements for the showing of the picture: Commander Cunningham, Herman A. Bruckner, Samuel Jannes, William Skelly and Clifford C. Oat.

It was voted to hold a dance in the near future and to secure an out of town orchestra, of note this being left with Charles W. Cassidy, chairman, who will name his own committee.

On motion of Mr. Skelly the post went on record as favoring the offering of a resolution at the state convention voicing a protest from Fletcher post against the policy of releasing war slackers before their prison terms have been served.

It was voted that plans be made to raise funds for th post with a view to enlarging the fund now laid aside for the Legion Home of the future.

Following the regular business session various committee meetings were held and plans discussed for post activities during the coming months. The meeting was one of the most enthusiastic since the organization of the post.

WOULD REMOVE MILK STATIONS FROM HIGHWAY

Removal of milk stations along public highways so located as to cause traffic hazards is the object of a plan in which the state board of agriculture is co-operating with the department of motor vehicles. Serious accidents have been attributed to improper location of such stations, and the state is adopting a policy requiring that they be set back a safe distance from the highways, like gasoline stations, so that automobiles parked in front of them will not obstruct any portion of the highway.

The following is a copy of a letter sent to the Connecticut Milk Producers' Association and independent milk producers by Secretary Leonard H. Healey of the state board of agriculture:

"At a meeting of the state board of agriculture was held July 25th, at which time information was received from the commissioner of motor vehicles that complaints were coming from various parts of the state relative to a traffic hazard.

Milk stations have been erected so close to the roadway that the vehicle collecting the milk stands partly on the traveled portion of the highway when loading. This not only results in delay, but is liable to cause accidents as well.

In consideration of this information, it was voted that the secretary be instructed to inform those interested and suggest that steps be taken to obviate this difficulty before some action becomes necessary by those having authority in such matters."

The motor vehicle department has found that several milk stations protruding over the edge of the highway are situated near curves in the road so that motor vehicles coming around the bend, while milk was being loaded into a truck at the station, would have to be braked quickly to avoid accident, particularly if a third car were approaching in the opposite direction.

NORWICH STORES TO CLOSE DURING MITCHELL'S FUNERAL

The Norwich Retail Merchants Association voted, at a special meeting held Friday morning in the Norwich Chamber of Commerce rooms, to recommend that all Norwich stores close from 2 o'clock until 3.30 o'clock this (Saturday) afternoon out of respect to the late Archibald Mitchell, one of the leading merchants of the city. A delegation representing the Merchants Association will attend the funeral this afternoon.

Frederic W. Cary, C. Edward Smith and John J. O'Rourke were appointed a committee to draft resolutions on Mr. Mitchell's death. The resolutions, a copy of which is to be sent to the family are to the effect that in the death of Mr. Mitchell the business and financial life of the city have suffered a great loss. The principle on which his preeminent business was founded have been an inspiration to his fellow merchants, his associates and employes.

The resolutions go on to state that Mr. Mitchell's leadership in every movement for the advancement of the civic and mercantile and charitable life of the city have insured success to many public movements and that the size and prestige of his firm laid the beginning of Norwich as a shopping center for eastern Connecticut and have brought incalculable prosperity to Norwich.

Guest at Lawn Party.

Mrs. R. M. Schwartz of Norwich was a guest at a lawn party and bridge given by Mrs. Kasper Sharaf and Mrs. Nathan Lubow at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Shaw at 73 Faire Harbour place, New London, on Wednesday evening. Thirty-three tables were played and the sum of $100 was netted for the benefit of the Hadassah Medical unit of Palestine.

The house was attractively decorated with flowers and the grounds were illuminated with hundreds of varied colored lights. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

The annual Canoe Carnival is to be held at West Rock, Crystal Lake today (Saturday). This has been the big summer novelty since it was inaugurated five years ago.

NO COMMUNICABLE DISEASES REPORTED FROM NORWICH

No communicable diseases were reported from Norwich last week according to the weekly morbidity report issued by the state department of health. Communicable diseases reported from towns in eastern Connecticut during the week follow:

Diphtheria—Stonington, 1; Columbia, 1; Stafford, 2.

Scarlet fever—Colchester, 2; Lebanon, 1; Putnam, 1.

Measles—Stonington, 5; Somers, 1.

Typhoid fever—East Lyme, 1.

From June until frost-time, certain individuals suffer considerably from pollen infection, termed "hay fever," says the weekly report.

Hay fever is caused not only by the pollen of the grass, but of many weeds, flowers, shrubs and even trees. Rose fever is another name for the same condition when due to pollen of certain roses. The common rag weed and golden-rod have claimed many hay fever victims.

Physicians in many cases are able to test individuals who are susceptible to hay fever, and find out which pollen causes the trouble. After this, it is possible to a certain extent to immunize the individual so he will not suffer from hay fever when the season starts.

NORWICH MOURNS DEATH OF PRESIDENT HARDING

Norwich with the rest of the nation mourns today the death of President Warren G. Harding. The news was received here shortly before 12 o'clock Thursday night and within an hour the news had spread to all parts of the city and there was a general expression of sorrow.

Mayor Milo R. Waters upon receiving the message of the death of President Harding issued orders to Joseph J. Fields, superintendent of the town and city hall to fly all flags at the court house at half mast until after the funeral. Casper K. Bailey, first selectman of the town ordered that the flag at the Chelsea parade be hung at half mast. Throughout the city at homes where flags are being displayed they are at half mast.

All eyes are now turned toward Washington and Calvin Coolidge of Massachusetts, who has been sworn in as the thirtieth president of the United States.

GOVERNOR TEMPLETON EULOGIZES PRESIDENT HARDING

Governor Charles A. Templeton on Friday issued a statement in which he eulogized the late president, Warren G. Harding, both as chief executive and as a man. Governor Templeton said:

"No president in my lifetime was more universally loved than President Harding. He was a man of a great and generous heart which loved all mankind. He sprang from good Ohio stock closely akin to the early settlers off Connecticut. He gave himself without stint or limit to the public service and his last days were spent in bearing a message of friendship and good will to the people of the western country. He had a wonderful capacity for securing harmony and cooperation among all his associates and in these days of unrest and turmoil, no man could have done more to restore peace and tranquility. His great soul, his lovable nature, and his courageous patriotism will forever enshrine his name in the hearts of his countrymen. His initiation of the Washington peace conference and guiding its deliberations to a successful issue will be a lasting service to the cause of world peace. A great and a good man whom I knew and loved has fallen, and the nation's loss is irretrievable. My personal sorrow is beyond words.

(Signed)

"CHARLES A. TEMPLETON
"Governor of the State of Connecticut."

When issuing the foregoing statement, Governor Templeton stated that he had requested Adjutant General Cole to order all flags throughout the state to fly at half staff. Governor Templeton also stated he would issue a proclamation previous to the day of the late president's funeral, in which proclamation he would request the suspension of all industry in the state during the hour of the services.

PUTNAM EDITOR KNEW PRES. HARDING WELL

Putnam, Aug. 3.—In speaking of the death of President Harding, Friday, George L. Padgett, editor of the Windham County Observer of this city said:

"For three and a half years I was the owner of the Marion Mirror. The day after I went to Marion, Mr. Harding, the owner of the Star, came over to see me and we soon became intimate friends. Mrs. Padgett and I were at his house often, and he and Mrs. Harding were frequent visitors at our home. He had the best small town daily newspaper that I knew. He stood high in everyone's estimation, and his paper was then a power and had a large circulation, although he was a republican and the city, at that time having a population of 20,000, was democratic. Mrs. Harding was a widow with one son when they married. Her son became a physician but died when he was 23 or 24 years old. Mrs. Harding's father, Amos Kling, was very much opposed to her marriage, and for many years would not speak to Mr. Harding. Mr. Kling was Marion's wealthiest resident and very influential. In inspite of his opposition Mr. Harding was popular and his paper gained a wide circulation.

"We went on frequent trips together and in 1900 the four of us, Mr. and Mrs. Harding, Mrs. Padgett and I went to Daytona, Fla., for a vacation. I sold my paper in 1901 when the four of us made a second trip to Daytona. Soon after I became sick and did not see Mr. Harding again until a year and a half ago when Mr. Gilpatrik and myself called on President Harding at the White House in the interest of Lieutenant Moriarty of Putnam. Although it was a day on which he usually denied himself to visitors he made an exception in our case and we had a very pleasant visit.

"Mr. Harding was the average small town citizen, with more brains than the average, however. He was an excellent newspaper man and he developed into a good public speaker. I heard him make his first speech and his hand and his voice shook with nervousness. He was elected to the legislature of Ohio, was nominated and defeated for Governor because it was a democratic era. Later, of course, he was nominated and elected senator and his public life began.

"As a personality Mr. Harding was gracious and kindly, a delightful companion with faculty of making and holding friends. At the time that I went to Marion, Mrs. Harding, who was the President's first aid throughout his career, worked in the office of the Star, having charge of the carrier boys.

WILL REQUEST SUSPENSION OF NORWICH INDUSTRY

Mayor Milo R. Waters said Friday that previous to the day of President Harding's funeral he will issue a proclamation in which he will request the suspension of all industry in the state during the hour of the funeral of the late President.

ASKS CITIZENS TO FLY FLAGS AT HALF MAST

In a proclamation issued Friday afternoon Mayor Milo R. Waters asks the citizens of Norwich to fly the American flag at half mast out of respect to President Warren G. Harding whose sudden death Thursday evening shocked the country. Mayor Waters' proclamation is as follows:

In the death of President Harding the citizens of Norwich will cause not only a great calamity but a personal loss. His wonderful personality and dignified simplicity had endeared him to the hearts of every American. Coming of old Ohio stock, he was a typical American in every sense of the word. Norwich, like all of the cities in the country, born in sincere grief at the loss of such a leader. In accordance with the proclamation of Governor Templeton, I will ask all of the citizens of Norwich to lower their flags to half mast until after the funeral.

MILO R. WATERS,
Mayor of the City of Norwich.

In Norwich 50 Years Ago

Fire from unknown causes swept through the stage house of the Norwich Bleaching and Calendering Company yesterday causing a damage of nearly $100,000.

Other items of the week taken from the files of the Bulletin of 1873 are, in part as follows:

Monday, July 28, 1873—Three baseball games were played in the city Saturday, that is two were played, one argued. The Academy trimmed the Scratch team by a score of 29 to 16, the Stars beat the Actives 31 to 30, and the Modocs of Greeneville and the Atlantics of Boswell avenue played an argument of nine innings, neither team winning.

Norwich was visited yesterday by the worst electrical storm seen in many a year. One young lady was paralyzed while in bathing and the house of E. P. Pratte on Cemetery street, Greeneville was struck, the inmates stunned, and the house damaged to the extent of over $500, while two trees in the yard were splintered. Later a tremendous flash startled the whole city and shocked many residents of Cliff street and vicinity. It struck a fence, composed of eight heavy stone posts, connected by a heavy chain, located on the Peckham property and completely demolished six of the posts. Another section of the flash traveled a quarter of a mile and split open two sections of water pipe on Elm street.

The Richmond Stove company has prepared several stoves to be exhibited at the Cincinnati exposition. All are beautiful specimens of iron moulders art.

Tuesday, July 29, 1873—It is likely that some of the local boats with a taste for the salty ocean will answer the call of the naval authorities for the recruitment of one thousand sailors for the iron clad fleet stationed at New Orleans. The iron clads are in perfect trim and ready for sea. Headquarters of the fleet is at Key West.

We learn that Vigilant Engine company, No. 6, of Patterson N. J., will be in Norwich on the 17th of September. The local fire department is planning to turn out and give the New Jersey boys a royal welcome during the visit here.

A young man who recently lost his parents and has just recovered from a severe illness which has left him absolutely penniless has written to a neighboring paper asking for a position as humorist.

The Preston Dwindlers start today on their annual camping out excursion to Averitt's cove, with Chief Engineer "Kit" Moore in charge, and Chapter J. Richards along as surgeon. The camp will go under the title Camp Pitch, in honor of the chaplain of the organization.

Wednesday, July 30, 1873—There is something of a historical fitness in appointing Jeremiah Halsey as chairman of the capitol commission. Mr. Halsey's grandfather whose name was also Jeremiah Halsey, built the present state house in Hartford, and it certainly was a wonderful piece of work, as the present appearance of the building attests. It is believed that no lost money on the work however and the state to reimburse him granted him a tract of land known as the Gore, which however, failed to produce money value. There is in the rooms of the Historical society of Hartford a portrait of Mr. Halsey, the builder of the state house with a sketch of the state house, as it then was, in the background.

The police court has not functioned in about a week, a most unusual thing for the local court.

The steamers City of Norwich and City of Lawrence are to take on additional work after the first of August. Both will begin carrying cargoes of fruit in addition to the human freight.

Lieut. W. J. Rose of General Crook's staff at Prescott, Yama county, Arizona is to come here for a visit in about a month. He will be royally welcomed here.

Thursday, July 31, 1873—The Falls company is receiving granite and other materials to repair their dam at the worsted mill, which was partially carried away by the freshet last winter and the work is soon to begin. The new plans are to carry the dam about three feet higher than the old one, and make it more substantial and strong.

On Saturday last Capt. Samuel Comstock's sharpie, White Foam made the distance from New London to her dock in this city in just one hour and a half. It is doubtful if any other sharpie can equal this feat.

Over 600 local people went on the steamer City of Lawrence yesterday when the Universalist society went on a trip into the sound, going as far as Greenport, L. I., not returning until well into the evening.

Friday, August 1, 1873—At the regular meeting of the court of common council held last evening the members of the board of compensation were elected as follows: Hon. James A. Hovey, William C. Osgood and E. C. Crowell. This board is to adjust all betterments and assessments in the city.

An inhabitant of the rural districts came to the city yesterday looking for a horse and was told by a merchant that he had two for sale one for $75 and the other for $80. He also had another horse that he would not sell but would give away if the person taking it would promise not to drive it or work it on city streets, as the merchant wished the horse to have a good home. The farmer agreed to this but first went over to look at the two the merchant offered for sale. After some time he asked to see the other horse and he was directed to a barn some distance away. Entering he asked the man at the barn where the horse was that Mr. — wished to give away. This man showed him several fine steeds and then pointing to an old carpenter's horse, said, "that's the horse you want." What happened when the farmer saw the merchant has not been made public.

A local man brought in four bushels of huckleberries yesterday. It is claimed they came from Lisbon, but natives of that country say these wasn't four bushels of huckleberries to be had in Lisbon.

Saturday, August 2, 1873—The Norwich Bleaching and Calendering company in Greeneville suffered a loss by fire yesterday that will reach nearly $100,000. The fire broke out in the singe house and quickly enveloped the structure destroying it and the valuable imported machinery and stock. The origin of the fire is unknown. About one hundred hands were thrown out of work because of the fire but some of them will find employment in the reconstruction work as the company intends to build immediately and start operations again before cold weather.

The company is to be congratulated on the success in saving much of the machinery and stock, but Norwich hopes never to see a blaze like that again. Both the Greeneville and Norwich fire chiefs received checks from Moses Pierce for their fine work at the fire, Greeneville getting $100, Norwich $200.

George Stone and Melvin Foster are to be seen at billiards in this city soon and it is expected that many people will take in the match.

Parrots are selling at $11 each at the office of J. M. Huntington & Co. in New London, and several local people have bought them.

Most of the furniture of the old court room and lobbies was sold yesterday to Melvin Foster who intends to open the rooms about September first.

New York direct to Norwich fruit shipping is becoming a fine business and the City of Norwich came up the river and anchored at Allyns Point filled to the decks with fruits.

Harry Lathingwell was badly injured yesterday when dragged 25 feet and then run over and dragged again by his heavy truck. The horses became frightened and ran away, Lathingwell catching the reins in time to be dragged. He was thrown under the truck and was struck by the front axles throwing him around completely. He was picked up and taken home and will be confined to his bed for some time. Fortunately no bones were broken.

THE SOCIAL CORNER

SERVICE IS ONE STEP ON THE ROAD TO HAPPINESS.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY
Love Lightens Labors

A good wife rose from her bed one morn
And thought with a nervous dread
Of the piles of clothes to be washed and more
Than a dozen mouths to be fed.

There's the meals to get for the men in the field
And the children to fix away
To school and the milk to be skimmed and churned.
And all to be done this day.
It had rained in the night, and all the road was wet as it could be:
There were puddings and pies to bake, besides a loaf of cake for tea.
And the day was hot, and her aching head
Throbbed wearily as she said:
"If maidens but knew what good wives know
They would not be in haste to wed."
"Jennie what to you think I told Ben Brown?"
Called the farmer from the well,
And a flush crept up to his bronzed brow
And his eyes half bashfully fell.
"It was this," he said, and coming near,
He smiled and stooping down,
Kissed her cheek—"It was this, that you were the best and dearest wife in town."

The farmer went back to the field and the wife
In a smiling absent way,
Sang snatches of tender little song
She'd not sung for many a day.
And the pain in her head was gone,
And the clothes were as white as the foam of the sea.
Her bread was light and her butter sweet
And as golden as it could be.

Just think the children all called a breath.
"Tom Wood has run off to sea.
He wouldn't I know, if he'd only had,
As happy a home as we."
The night came down, and the good wife smiled
To herself as she softly said:
"Tis so sweet to labor for those we love,
It's not strange that maids will wed."

BERRY GRIDDLE CAKE

Dear Social Corner Friends: There seems to be a mistake in the berry griddle cake recipe which I sent last week, so will send it as it should be: 1 1-2 cups sour milk, 1 cup molasses, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 egg, little salt, 2 cups pastry our, 1 quart blue berries. Put the berri in last. They need to be rather thin, but the egg makes them turn all right.

I fry small cakes for they turn easier. Eat them with butter, the molasses makes them sweet enough.

HER NEW YORK EXPERIENCES

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: I have recently enjoyed a week's visit in New York and like all strangers in a big city, observed many new things. The subways of rapid transit within the stone lined tunnel which produces an echo sound continually, electrically lighted, equipped with fans, the automatic sliding doors at the side of the cars and the hurry of the passengers out and in. The guard or conductor, speaking through the megaphone, as he calls out each station, also adds "watch the door!" I had the opportunity of passing though the tunnel under the river from Brooklyn to New York also through the tubes under the Hudson river fom New York to Hoboken. As I saw the double decked elevated railways and the many ordinary trolley surface lines, also the numerous busses, to say nothing of the vast vehicle traffic, I concluded "there are all ways to get there."

It was my great pleasure to take a trip up the Hudson river, on one of the Day Line boats, I went with a lady friend, who lives in New Jersey City and whom I had not seen for many years, so we enjoyed talking over events of our younger days. We went on the beautiful steamer Robert Fulton, which may well be called a floating palace. We left the pier at Desbrosses St., at 9 a. m., which is near the south part of New York, thus affording us a grand view of many other piers, both sides the river, where the ocean lines arrive and depart. The scenery up the river is very interesting, the palisades on the Jersey side, the tall buildings, the soldiers' and sailors' memorial, Grant's tomb, all the prominent views from the great city. There is much water craft of various size and class. All along the river bank the land is rather high, although the New York Central railroard and the West Shore follow closely to the water's edge. Many small villages are seen as we look to either side. West Point has a wonderful site as being very high and mountainous in that section. It is just 50 miles from New York to West Point, and ten miles further to the city of Newburgh. Here we landed, and spent one hour and 30 minutes. We took dinner at a restaurant, then stepped into a bus and went to Washington's headquarters, which is a very old stone house and furnished as it was similar to the days when occupied by the great general and his family. Our return trip tdown the Hudson was on the beautiful steamer Hendrick Hudson, and was just as interesting, for what we missed going up we could see this time; also it was in the late afternoon, and somewhat cooler. Quite a study to see so many people and all conditions in a large city. Some of the public service men are not very obliging while others are most courteous and kind.

Best wishes to all.

JENNIE.

ENJOYED DAY AT WILDWOOD

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: It has been a long time since I wrote, just because I cannot find time to write, and send it in by Wednesday morning. I wonder if any of the other sisters put off writing to the same reason?

Also a fine idea that we write the month our birthday comes in as we then write once a year; and we should do that to be a good member.

I was more than pleased to meet more than (50) fifty people at our Club No. 4 picnic at Wildwood.

And that Neighbor Everready was there with her cards. I would like to spend the day with you some time this fall. I want to thank Bee Time's daughter for the fine recitations she gave us and say that I am sorry she is going west for the next year, but wish her good luck.

LAST ROSE OF SUMMER.

REMEMBERS FORT NED.

Dear Sisters: As I read Bluebell's letter about a trip to Fort Ned it aroused memories of the days long ago when I too lived in dear old Westminster and often drove up and down that peaceful old road with the river flowing calmly on one side, so close that it seemed as if only a special providence could save someone from falling in if they turned out a little too far. Still nobody ever did that I know of. Perhaps for one reason there was never much travel on that road. And it is truly a quiet and peaceful place and there are some spots where the river winds out into the meadows that furnish scenes worthy of an artist.

I have often wondered how Fort Ned got its name, but like many other odd names that attach themselves to places it seems to be lost in obscurity. But when I was a very little girl I can remember going there and it wasn't the place of ruin and desolation that it has been for many years, for people lived in the tenement houses and there was a factory, a paper mill, I think, and a store; but like a great many other such places that one will find scattered around the country its glories have departed and it is only a place of memories to those who knew it in the years long gone

I am sure I know Bluebell and probably remember her better than she would remember me. If I am not mistaken you used to live in the second house back of the church, and you with your father and mother and sister used to occupy a seat almost opposite our's at church. It is always pleasant to find someone who remembers the same places and people that we do and as we grow older we begin looking backward instead of forward, for there is so much to remember in the past and the years are shortening in the future and there isn't room for so much.

With best wishes.

CLUB NO. 1'S MAY AND JULY FROLICS.

Dear Members All: It's never too late to be sorry, it's never too laje to be glad, so I guess it's never too late to report good times.

I was not appointed as press correspondent, but in my absence. I see no one reported. Here goes.

Our club at Willimantic had a real May party in charge of dear Hope Cobweb ,which was a success, and pleasure to all who attended.

A social morning was followed by a May luncheon, of delicious salads, cold meats, stuffed eggs, escalloped corn and potatoes, fancy cookies, ice cream, etc.

At each cover was a dainty May basket filled with confectionery.

The club's color scheme was carried out and May baskets, well laden and filled, also with flowers, were center decorntions of table and later were won as prizes in the contests.

Dinner over, there were stunts, which sure caused a laugh to help digest the hountiful repast.

Being one of the judges of the drawings, I'll say we are proud of our artists.

How many oats in a bushel? How many candies in a jar? Races were on when I left, so right here I'll haye to leave you to guess, as I did when on the wrong way to my train.

Distance kept me away from picnic at Versailles which I understand was put down as a red letter day.

It was my good fortune to be at Wildwood Park, and it was a great pleasure to meet many of my old friends in that and nearby vicinity, as I spent five years not far from there teaching, so when Last Rose of Summer bobbed up, it was no wonder I let out an Indian war whoop, since for four happy years, I gazed often upon her and her abode.

It was also my pleasure to add to my knowledge many whose letters I'd enjoyed and know I know Who's Who? even though you thought I ought to when I entered the car.

The day was perfect and the sociability more so, and the dinner a real picnic affair. Nothing was missing.

A vote of thanks should be extended to the committee, also to the water boys and girls, unless it came via parcel post by Rural Free Delivery, and then the sisters would add three times three, as we not only devoured the food, but drank plenty of water from the far distant pump! Ask them!

The afternoon was enjoyable with readings by a Miss Heath, a graduate of Emerson school of oratory; Miss Heath gave her services.

Like all good times, it came to an end and we departed in various ways.

By the kindness of Olga, I had the pleasure of returning to my home with her in her car, and I expect you'll see her at Fitchville.

Had I a car or aeroplane I'd be there.

Now this letter is long enough to make up for all those some of you have looked for.

Should have written before but my writing and painting was prohibited about six months, but this proves I'm on the line, so I'll ring off, and it's up to Who, why some of you to report for Fitchville.

Ever and always,

NEIGHBOR EVERREADY.

LIKES THE CORNER LETTERS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: While reading the nice letters from the sisters I thought how nice it is to have so many nice interesting ideas to pass around to each other. It is nice to know what the other sisters are doing. Some on vacations, write and tell of their trips, some are canning and some planning for fall. Some of them have had to part with dear ones in their midst and some have had many other trials.

What wonderful weather we are having for July so cool and nice. My hubby's sister has a nice Buick car and she takes her mother and oftentimes Old Fashioned Mother for a ride. They sometimes come to see us and we are always glad to see them. I presume Silver Locks is busy down at her daughters in Pennsylvania. They have four little youngsters down there—two girls (twins) and two boys.

They have great times together I'll bet. They, too, have a Buick car and enjoy nice rides in it. Silver Locks writes and tells of her nice trips to many interesting places down that way. We are so glad she can enjoy herself with them. One of the sisters wrote of making a shortcake on a waffle iron. I tried it and it was dandy. It makes it nice to be able to have things like that without heating up one's house to bake. I have canned a few jars of rhubarb. We like it in winter in pies and sauce, too. I wonder if anyone else cans it the same as I do. Fill each jar, one at a time, full of rhubarb and hold under the cold water faucet and let cold water run in slowly until jar is overflowing. Be sure there are no air bubbles in the jar and seal tight. Store away for winter use.

Best wishes for all.

YELLOW DAISY.

CANNING HUCKLEBERRIES.

Dear Members of the Social Corner: I feel rather guilty of not writing before but really I have been so very busy that I couldn't find much time to write. I have had a lot of company and been on the move most of the time. I thought if I didn't write pretty soon someone would say that I was getting to be a slacker, but I don't intend to wait as long again. I like to see the page full. We couldn't get along without it for it makes the whole paper more interesting. The men folks are through haying and we are all glad it makes quite a difference in the work inside as well as outside and now the berry season is here which means a lot of canning, I will tell how I can huckleberries. I take and fill the glass jars full of berries, shake them down a few times and fill with water and put them on the stove in a kettle of water with the rubbers and tops on, but not tight, and cook until the water in the berries look quite red and then they are done. Take them out and tighten the top. I like this way much better than putting them into a kettle all together which makes them all mussy. I hope some of the sisters will try this way and see how much nicer they are.

I am very busy doing some fancy work for the Brooklyn fair and with the housework and all am on the go most of the time, but I enjoy every minute. I think it is better to be doing something. I like it and take a lot of comfort in it. I sometimes sing or hum and once in a while I whistle, seems as it makes the work lighter. Look on the bright side, keep it in view. I enoyed the meeting of the Social Corner in June very much and got a little acquainted with some of the sisters and am looking forward to the meeting in October which I hope to be able to attend.

What has become of Grandma Gray? Hope she will have another poem for us next time and Free Air—has she blown away?

Quite a few of our family spent a day at Rocky Point and had a very pleasant time. The dinner was excellent.

I am afraid my letter is getting long so will ring off, with good luck to all.

RURAL AUNTY.

FOR OCEAN BEACH PICNIC.

Dear Corner Members: We enjoyed the day at Ocean beach, New London so much last year that we thought we would repeat the pleasant outing at the beach again this year and have set Wednesday, August 8, to go. We hope all members everywhere with their friends will try to go. We have a basket lunch unless you choose a shore dinner.

Dom Pedro, Lucy Acorn, June, Brownie, Aunt Hester, we expect to see you there as you live so near.

We hope for a fine day, but if positively rainy in the morning we will postpone till the next day.

Members from Club No. 1 go in a bus that leaves about eight o'clock. Arrangements have to be made in advance.

THEODA.

BLOTTING CASE

Blotting Case: Cut two pieces of white cardboard, 10 by 12 inches, cover with crepe paper on the outside, and with A G S on the inside. Fasten them together near the upper left-hand corner with a short wire, placing sheets of plain blotting paper, pinked around the edges, between them. Over the wire place a bow of crepe paper. Beneath, write in gilt letters the motto:

"May there never be a spot
That these pages cannot blot."

KITTY LOU.

MACARONI WITH NUTS

Maccaroni With Nuts: Cook some macaroni in boiling water until tender. Put a layer of the maccaroni in the bottom of a buttered baking dish. Cover with a layer of chopped nuts, sprinkle with salt. Place another layer of maccaroni, then nuts and so on until dish is full.

Make a sauce of one cup boiling milk thickened with one teaspoon of flour; season with salt and pepper and one teaspoon of butter. Pour this sauce over macaroni and nuts in the dish. Cover with buttered bread crumbs, and bake in a moderate oven thirty minutes.

Many thanks for the Social Corner readers for the reward for the idea of "How to Make a Fireless Cooker."

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Strand Theatre, Mon. Tues. Wed.

Dorothy Dalton in "The Law of the Lawless," with Theodore Kosloff, Charles de Roche and Tully Marshall in featured roles, has a role that suits her perfectly and one she likes immensely. She is seen as a Tartar girl, and this enables her to wear the picturesque costumes of the Roumanian hills, which enchance her charm and give the colorful effect which always registers so admirably on the screen. Besides, the part is one which gives Miss Dalton an opportunity for the display of the vivid acting, fiery, almost primitive in character, for which she is famed.

Theodore Kosloff is also cast in a Tartar role and to this his strong personality, artistic preceptions and dramatic force lend themselves perfectly.

Charles de Roche is excellently cast as a gypsy chieftain. His splendid physique, his strong features, his immense acting, all come into play in this part. Tully Marshall is seen as a village money lender. Fred Huntley and Margaret Loomis also are in the cast, and the latter, always a favorite, brings to her characteristic beauty, charm and grace, as well as her ability to act.

The story of "The Law of the Lawless," which will be seen at the Strand theatre for three days beginning Monday next, deals with a Tartar girl who is sold at auction in payment of her father's debts and bought by a gypsy Chieftain. He compels her to marry him and his manly qualities soon prompt her to love him. When her husband is captured by her countrymen, she goes to his rescue with highly dramatic results.

The second feature attraction will be Round 9 of the famous H. C. Witwer's "Fighting Blood" stories.

A comedy and News will round out the program.

BREED THEATRE

Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, in planning a return to the screen, could not have chosen more wisely than to star in "Modern Marriage" which comes to the Breed Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

It is a picture replete with emotional clashes and physical thrills and is played throughout in the richest, most sumptuous environment. "Modern Marriage" is a society drama of life in New York and its vicinity. Quick in its pace, tense in action and powerful of climax it bids fair to stand out as one of the most satisfying pictures of the year, to say nothing of the importance attaching to it as a means of bringing back two favorites to a loyal public.

Especially is the picture plentifully sprinkled with thrills—not forced ones but the logical outcome of the dramatic situations behind them. The first begins when Denise Varley (played by Miss Bayne) goes to the apartment of a man to get letters she has foolishly written. Her husband also goes, unknown to her, to demand satisfaction of the man; while there is still another caller, a girl of whom the profligate has grown weary. The upshot of this is learned in the newspapers which announce the murder of the man in his apartment. The news is brought to the Varleys in the midst of a reception at their home.

A later thrill occurs when the only person who knew of Denise's visit to the apartment is engaged as her husband's secretary. Still another tense moment comes when the girl who has been cast off and whose jealously of Denise was no secret, is employed by Denise's husband as a companion for her. Another critical moment occurs when the Varley's child, sledding down a steep hill, strikes a tree and is hurled in midair. The biggest thrill of all comes toward the end of "Modern Marriage," when a desparate fight between Varley and the secretary is shown.

What leads up to this and what happens in the midst of it and at the end, is more absorbing when seen that read.

Other pictures on the bill include Topics of the Day and an Educational comedy.

Today's bill consists of Mary Miles Minter in "The Heart Specialist," Pearl White in "Plunder" the Pathe news and an educational comedy.

Feature Picture at Y. M. C. A.

Sunday at 4 p. m. at the local Y. M. C. A. the third part of the feature picture "The Chosen Prince" will be shown and both sexes are invited.

The showing on this occasion will be as follows: David returns from the battle victorious. The women sing his praises. Saul becomes jealous and throws his javelin at David. Finally he says that David shall marry Michal. David bids farewell to Michal and sets out upon his expidition. Marab rejoices, thinking she will be free. David is successful and is called The Chosen Prince. David and Michal are married with elaborate ceremony. Saul's anger waxes strong against David. David flees to the temple where he gets Goliah's sword. Saul's order to slay the priests is carried out. The domanent theme of the pictures is jealously and its evils.

Rev. G. F. Bailey will deliver a brief message in connection with the picture.

August Sale of Furs

BEGINS TODAY

Value Is the Keynote of This Sale Which Will Continue Through the Month of August

More and more are shrewd women coming to realize that August is the proper time to buy that coveted fur coat. Their reasoning is logical. First because the manufacturer in many cases needs cash with which to carry on his regular fall business and is glad to sell his product at a very small margin to move his tremendous stocks. Second, because the weather conditions in August make it an illogical month in which to sell a fur without a mighty special inducement, which is in one case a small margin of profit. With this in mind the woman or miss that contemplates the purchase of a fur coat for this winter's use will save herself money by taking advantage of our sale.

TAFTVILLE

Matthew Wisicukas of Lisbon was brought before Justice Walter Drew of that town, Thursday evening, on complaint of the Dairymen's Association of Providence, R. I., charged with being in illegal possession of containers which were the property of the association, and for using the containers for other purposes than milk and cream. Wisicukas was in possession of ten cans, some of which had been changed, and the agents of the Dairymen's Association intimated that perhaps the officers of the federal government might be interested in the case. The association claimed that the containers were worth from $3 to $6 each. Attorney B. W. Danielson of Moosup represented the Rhode Island firm, which stated that they were not seeking to increase the burdens of the farmer, but only to prosecute the unscrupulous. They come in contact often with those who masquerade as farmers, in buying up old homesteads in this section, and disguising the real objects of their ambition behind a cow and a few chickens. Justice Drew imposed a fine of seven dollars and costs, and the man was also assessed for the containers which were found in his possession.

At times the game became pretty warm and provided the spectators with plenty of thrills. Much interest is being shown in this series and the games are largely attended. Next week when the deciding game is played to see whether the series ends or continues, a record breaking crowd is expected out.

SELECT TOWN OF LEBANON FOR FEDERAL AGRICULTURAL SURVEY

The town of Lebanon has been selected for a federal agricultural survey as part of the Connecticut Agricultural Economic survey this year. The announcement of the selection of Lebanon as one of the communities in which an extensive study of agricultural auditing is to be made this summer and fall was made by Prof. I. G. Davis of the Connecticut Agricultural college at a meeting at the Goshen Community club. Prof Davis said that preliminary conferences had been held with a considerable number of leading citizens all of whom had endorsed the project and promised their cooperation, and urged all other people of the town to cooperate to make the survey a success.

In part the address given by Prof. Davis was as follows

For eight years now the farm bureaus, the agricultural colleges, the United States Department of Agriculture and the high schools of agriculture have been trying to work out a programme of work which would make farming more profitable and which would enable the farmer to live better, to enjoy more of the better things of life, and enable him to do this with fewer hours of hard labor. We know that the efficiency of agricultural production has been greatly increased on many farms, that production costs have been reduced and that marketing methods, both in the sale of farm products and the purchase of farm supplies, have been vastly improved during these eight years.

But these agencies are not satisfied with the results accomplished. Perhaps we have accomplished as much as could be expected thus far, but in the years to come, a more thorough-going programme must be developed than heretofore. We must hit the nail more squarely on the head than we have before. The farmers are going to demand better, more effective and basic work than has been done before and you have a right to demand better work.

But we cannot hit the nail more squarely on the head until we know more definitely just where the nail is. We cannot develop a better programme of work until we have better facts about the present conditions of our agriculture. To get the facts about agriculture and farm life is an expensive and long piece of work. So we have gotten together, the college, the farm bureau, the high school people of the United States Department of Agriculture. We have decided that the thing to do is to take one town in the eastern United States and try and get a complete and thoroughgoing study of the agriculture of that town. We want to analyze and survey the soil. We want to study the present use of the land. We want to get at the inside facts about the business of every farm and about every farm house. We want to ask questions which are usually regarded as more or less impertinent but which are pertinent to the subject at hand, and which must be had if an accurate picture of real conditions is to be had. We want to get the facts on every farm—not part of them, so that an accurate picture of the whole situation can be secured.

We want to apply to the problems of agriculture in some typical community, methods similar to those which the American Telephone Company, the Standard Oil Company and the United States Steel Company would apply in studying and making plans for a business development.

This study is frankly an experiment. What results it will give we cannot say, but if it succeeds, as we hope it will, it will have great value to the community where it is carried on and much greater value to the agriculture of the whole of Southern New England and the East. It will demonstrate a method which will come into more and more general use.

Our immediate problem has been where to do this work. We have canvassed this question for two months. We felt that if the work was to be successful we must choose a town that first of all is truly agricultural. Then we must have a town whose people are sufficiently intelligent and progressive to understand the possibilities of such a study as we contemplate and to give us real co-operation. We needed to select a town which constituted a more or less natural economic unit, and a town that has a recorded history which will enable us to make comparisons with the past. We found after studying the matter that Lebanon was indicated as the ideal town in which to make this study. The fact that Lebanon has an up-to-date high school, with an agricultural department and that it has a live grange and Community club also influenced our choice.

Further than that we were able to secure the co-operation of the Jewish Federation for the work with farmers of that race. An added reason for selecting Lebanon.

We have conferred with about a dozen leading citizens of Lebanon and having their indorsement and promise of moral support we have decided to go ahead.

So you see men going about the towns testing the soil and mapping the land you will know what they are doing. If you are approached by men asking you questions about your business you will know what it signifies.

We have but two things to ask of the farmers of Lebanon—first that you give us your co-operation and your moral support. This is an experiment. We believe it will yield results. Don't ask what it will amount to. We don't know. But with your moral support in interesting this section of the town in the project we believe it will have great value. Secondly we ask every man for about three hours time to talk over with us this business. We will do the rest.

All information you give us will be absolutely confidential. Your records will be known by number only and no one except the workers will have access to the records and no one except two people to the key.

So, gentlemen, we bespeak your co-operation and moral support in our effort to work out here in Lebanon a method of studying agricultural problems and conditions which authorities agree promises to yield valuable results.

The economic survey will be under the direction of Professors I. G. Davis and A. W. Manchester, of the Connecticut Agricultural college, C. L. Hendrickson and an assistant will do the economic field work. Samuel Koatolofsky will do this work on the Jewish farms.

Professor Morgan of the New Haven Experimental Station will conduct the soil survey, and Prof. Albert E. Moss of the New Haven station and the Agricultural college will be in charge of the Land Utilization survey. Director Slate of the Experiment Station at New Haven and Storrs will spend a week in field work during this month. The United States Department of Agriculture will furnish other workers.

At the close of the meeting a resolution was offered by Edward Jones, endorsing the project, expressing the appreciation of the town at being selected for this important piece of work, and voting their cooperation in the project. The resolution was unanimously adopted and passed.

The survey started Friday morning when Massrs. Morgan, Moss and Hendrickson began their work in Lebanon. It is hoped that the survey may be completed by Thanksgiving. It is not expected that the result will be known before the first of next year.

The survey is to be a very complete one and will require considerable time and patience. The Connecticut Agricultural Economic survey includes the listing of every farm under a number, the post office address, person owning the farm and present occupant or operator. Next comes the accurate filling of acres owned, acres tilled, operated by occupant, acres mowed for swamp hay, acres detached, and distance of fields, pastures in rotation, a general description of each acres to show clear, brush or wood land.

The survey on crops will show the amount on hand at the beginning of the year, amount and value per unit, crops grown in year, total value per acre, produce sold and amount on hand at close of year. This survey includes some sixty different crops.

Next comes the inventory of feed and supplies on hand, to show value at beginning and close of year, including poultry, swine, horses, cattle, etc. Next is a survey of machinery and farm equipment to show depreciation. Then comes the capital, depreciation and improvement, showing farm expenses, receipts from stock products, forest products, miscellaneous products. Then is the survey of last important sales, classification and amount received. In final work comes general notes such as distance from city, number in family, on farm under 16 years; days worked, days away underfrom home, and finally a check to see if the farmer keeps farm accounts, 4 classes, milk record of individual cows, culls poultry, uses certified seeds, does cooperative buying, is member of grange, member of farm bureau, etc.

WESTERLY

Announcement has been made of the complete membership of the executive committee in charge of the $250,000 hospital campaign in Westerly, and it is stated only two persons declined to join the committee, both advancing entirely reasonable circumstances which made it impossible for them to accept. The committee includes sixty-one members, as follows:

Executive committee—George B. Utter, chairman; E. R. Allen, Mrs. Davis C. Anderson, Henry D. Bailey, E. E. Bradley, A. Lloyd Briggs, Mrs. Clayton, A. Burdick, C. J. Butler, C. W. Campbell, W. H. Clapham, William Clark, A. M. Cottrell, Mrs. C. B. Cottrell, C. P. Cottrell, A. J. Crandall, Miss Bessie Cross, Mrs. Samuel H. Davis, Frank F. Dodge, Joseph P. Ensign, Rev. O. D. Fisher, William Hinchcliffe, Walter E. Hope, William D. Hoxie, Thomas Lenihan, Mrs. Edward W. Man, Mrs. Eugene E. Mapes, Edgar P. Maxson, Thomas McKenzie, John O. Mills, Henry R. Milner, George C. Moore, Charles A. Morgan, Samuel F. Nardone, Max Novogroski, Fred Opie, J. M. Pendleton, Arthur L. Perry, Mrs. Walter S. Stahle, George Stone, Edward J. Simmonsen, Frank Sullivan, Arthur Trotman, Miss Louise Trumbull, Wilfred Ward, Ridley Watts, Mrs. Ridley Watts, William A. Wilcox.

The committee held its first meeting Thursday evening in the Memorial Library, Westerly, with a large number present. Chairman Utter said that he had found a remarkable spirit of enthusiasm and of readiness to cooperate on the part of those who have been asked to help in the movement to raise the building fund. This spirit will be certain to carry the campaign through to a victorious conclusion, since the entire movement has been carefully planned and is being thoroughly organized.

He mentioned the fact that $50,000 is already in hand, but pointed out that this fund is solely for endowment purposes and that no part of it can be used for construction. He emphasized the fact that within the last few days several individuals have underwritten the entire cost of carrying on the campaign, so that the exact amount contributed by the public will go directly into the construction, equipment and endowment of the new hospital.

The building plans were shown and discussed, and it was pointed out that the architects, Kendall, Taylor & Company, are well known in the field of hospital design and were the designers of the Jane Frances Brown Memorial building, added last year to the Rhode Island hospital, and of the Homepathic Hospital, now being built.

The trustees' selection of the site for the hospital on one of the highest points available in Westerly, on the William D. Wells farm, was described as particularly fortunate, and it was stated that all who have seen the sight have been enthusiastic over it on account of the continuous breeze, tending for miles around, as far as Shelter Island and Block Island.

Announcement was made of a meeting to be held Sunday evening in the hall room of the Ocean House at Watch Hill in order that the plans for the new community hospital may be outlined to Watch Hill people.

It was stated that the campaign is to be conducted in a thorough and yet a dignified and pleasant way, and that everyone who can give is to be called upon personally by the campaign workers and told exactly why the hospital is so urgently needed and why it is proper to ask everyone to help build it.

Out of respect for President Harding no cases were tried in the Third district court Friday morning before Judge Michael J. Turano.

POETRY

TO A BOY

I wish you gladness every day,
I wish you strength to push ahead;
Lay no obstructions bar your way,
No dangers fill your heart with dread.

May you be firm and unafraid
When you are mocked for being right;
May failure leave you undismayed
When you have tried with all your might.

May all the rich rewards of chance
Be placed within your reach, and all
The sweetest pleasures of romance
To you in fairest measure fall.

And better than all else beside,
More splendid than the widest fame,
I wish your watching mother pride
In every triumph you may claim.

ON A CONTENTED MIND

When all is done and said,
In the end this you shall find:
He most of all doth bathe in bliss
That hath a quiet mind;
And, clear from worldly cares,
To deem can be content
The sweetest time in all his life
In thinking to be spent.

The body subject is
To fickle Fortune's power,
And to a million of mishaps
Is casual every hour;
And Death in time doth change
It to a clod of clay;
When as the mind, which is divine,
Runs never to decay.

Companion none is like
Unto the mind alone,
For many have been harmed by speech—
Through thinking few, or none.
Fear oftentimes restraineth words,
But makes not thoughts to cease;
And he speaks best that hath the skill
When for to hold his peace.

Our wealth leaves us at death,
Our kinsmen at the grave;
But virtues of the mind unto
The heavens sweet us we have;
Wherefore, for virtue's sake
I can be well content
The sweetest time of all my life
To deem in thinking spent.

P.)—The management and employes of the four railroads over which the funeral train of President Harding is passing on its way to Washington have combined to make the handling of the train an outstanding example of American railway efficiency.

Nothing is left undone to accord the proper respect to the body of the late president, and everything is being done to afford the greatest comfort to the bereaved widow on her sad journey across the continent.

Hours before the funeral train is to pass over a division of any of the four systems—the Southern Pacific, the Union Pacific, the Chicago & Northwestern, and the Baltimore & Ohio—orders are issued which still every moving train except the funeral train. All freight trains are stopped for three hours ahead, and all passenger trains, including the crack limiteds, cease to move at least an hour ahead. Moreover, such trains are shunted onto sidings and all rolling stock removed as fast as possible from the main line. At every divisional point, a wreck train stands with steam up, waiting for any emergency.

FUNERAL TRAIN IS SPEEDING EASTWARD

Chicago, Aug. 5.—(By the A. P.)—As the funeral train sped eastward with the body of Warren G. Harding, Chicago, for the second time in its history prepared to receive the body of a nation's chief executive.

Fifty-eight years ago a funeral train bearing the body of the martyred Lincoln was brought to Chicago on the way to pringfield, where it was laid to rest. Tomorrow the body of President Harding will remain in Chicago only while the funeral train passes from one road to another, a matter of less than an hour.

Tomorrow tens of thousands of people will line the Chicago and Northwestern and Baltimore and Ohio tracks as the crepe-draped engine with its load of sorrow creeps through the maze of switches and yards, and gathers speed for its final dash to the capital.

Tonight the train sped from the mountains of Wyoming out on to the plains of Nebraska and forged eastward toward the Mississippi. Omaha and Council Bluffs, Iowa, will be passed if the schedule is maintained in the early hours of tomorrow morning.

Iowa will be crossed during the morning and the "Father of Waters" passed about noon. The afternoon will be spent in crossing Illinois.

The funeral train is expected to arrive here shortly after four o'clock, daylight saving time.

Washington, Aug. 5.—(By The A. P.)—Woodrow Wilson authorized the statement today that he "will participate as far as possible" in the funeral ceremonies here Wednesday for President Harding.

The extent of the former president's participation was not made known but the statement was taken to mean that he at least will ride in the funeral cortege from the White House to the capitol. Whether he will attend the services in the rotunda will depend upon his physical condition at that time.

President Coolidge extended an invitation to Mr. Wilson yesterday to the ceremonials, but after a conference between the president's aide, Colonell Sherrill, and Rear-Admiral Grayson, Mr. Wilson's physician, the announcement was made that because of his health the former president regretted he could not participate.

CONVENTION OF SOCIALISTS BROKE UP IN A RIOT

New York, Aug. 5.—A city convention of the socialist party of New York nearly broke up in a riot, today, when a resolution denouncing President Calvin Coolidge as a "reactionary and a foe to labor" was read by William Kariem of the resolutions committee.

All over the convention hall delegates leaped to their feet with violent protests against the spirit of the resolution and the terms in which it was couched.

"Kill it! Kill it" resounded from the auditorium of the Harlem socialist educational center. So great was the uproar that order was restored with difficulty, but not until after the chairman had ordered the resolution back to committee for revision. It was not presented again.

When things quieted down, certain delegates asked that the part of the Coolidge resolution which expressed sympathy for the widow of President Harding be re-submitted for a vote, but its sponsors refused to have it read.

Stock Markets Retain Their Stability

The Change in Presidents is Regarded With Sorrow, Rather Than Apprehension.

New York, Aug. 5.—(By the A. P.)—Although the markets of the past week have had but a half day in which to register their opinion of the business significance of President Harding's death, a certain amount of light on the subject was obtainable from the statements of business leaders. The latter, while greatly deploring his unexpected death, pointed out that our system of government is designed to achieve stability through the distribution of authority among different departments and that the country's industries have grown to a point at which they are comparatively immune to changes in the complexion of the domestic political situation. Accordingly, the change in chief executives was taken as an occasion for sorrow rather than apprehension.

Up to the time the news was received from San Francisco the markets had been behaving in an irregular manner. Stocks were moderately active and gave alternating displays of weakness and strength. Liquidation in oil stocks as a result of the cumulative of the oil market apparently led to sympathetic liquidation in other parts of the list. Sugar stocks also gave ground in sympathy with recessions in the price of that commodity. On the other hand, moderate buying at the breaks resulted in good recoveries.

The spottiness of the situation was testified to, meanwhile, by rallies in some of the more important commodities. After marked weakness as an aftermath of the collapse of the bull speculation in the July option, and in anticipation of a bearish crop report, cotton recovered sharply when the latter proved to be bullish. Instead of a condition of 70 per cent. and a crop of 12,000,000 bales, as had been anticipated, the Department of Agriculture estimated the condition at 69.2 per cent. and the crop at 11,515,000 bales. As a result all futures advanced over a cent a pound.

Wheat prices also steadied, partly in response to reports of rust damage in Canada and in certain parts of the northeastern states. Sentiment was somewhat better, emphasis being given to the fact that ample credit facilities are available to the farmer and that marketing should be orderly.

Industrial news continued to be indecisive. In some quarters of the steel industry the more optimistic view was taken, good buying for prompt delivery being regarded as a sign that consumption is continuing to run high and as a procursor of the resumption of forward buying. Attention was given to the unexpectedly good second quarter earnings statement of the United States Steel Corporation, net earnings for the three months amounting to $47,854,181, as compared with $34,786,-059 in the preceding quarter and with $27,386,945 in the second quarter of last year. The statement showed that the year's dividend of the common stock had been earned in six months with some $5,000,000 left over.

Earings statement for the second quarter also were published by automobile and equipment companies. They revealed strong cash positions and excellent inventory conditions.

French failure to accept the British draft of a reply to Germany was preceded and accompanied by marked weakness of the foreign exchanges, French francs declining to 5.70½ cents, or within ½ points of the low for all time.

DESTRUCTIVE STORM TO NORTH OF BROCKTON

Brockton, Mass., Aug. 5.—A violent thunderstorm, accompanied by an extremely high wind, cut a path of destruction 8 miles long and ¼ of a mile wide to the north of this city today. The course of the storm streteged from the Hockamock swamp district, which lies between Taunton and Brockton, southeast to North Middleboro and Lakeville.

At Raynham a barn was blown down and the unfinished frame of a house destroyed. Several orchards, including one of a hundred trees, were swept to the ground. Trees and telegraph poles among the road were also toppled over. Sunday picnickers at Lake Nippenicket, near Bridgewater, were driven to cover by a storm of large hail stones. Several trees were blown down striking several automobiles. The main highway was blocked by fallen trees and poles which also obstructed electric car lines for an hour. Power lines and telephone wires were put out of commission.

COMMITTED SUICIDE BY CUTTING HIS THROAT

New York, Aug. 5.—A gruesome record of suicide was written by the police today in official explanation of the mysterious death of Vito Sturino, whose body, with throat cut and a large hole in the back of the head, was found in a lonely blicket in the North Beach section of Queens.

As police reconstruct the tragedy, Sturino received a letter from Italy, announcing the marriage of his brother, Angelo, a soldier in the Italian army. Vito, 35, and a bachelor, became despondent. He went to the thicket, sat down and cut his throat with his long, sharp clasp knife. Carefully closing the knife and returning it to his pocket, he got up, staggered 25 feet towar dthe road, and fell dead.

The skull wound, first believed to have been inflicted by a bullet. Probably was caused by a sharp rock when the body fell, the police have concluded

THREE WOMEN DROWNED WHEN BOAT WENT OVER DAM

Gratersford, Pa., Aug. 5.—Three Philadelphia women were drowned late last night when their rowboat was swept over the crest of a dam on the Perkiomen creek near here and smashed on the rocks below. Two other women in the boat were saved by Boy Scouts and others camping along the banks of the swollen stream.

The Boy Scouts plunged into the running water and were swept several hundred yards down stream before they managed to struggle to shore with one of the women, who was unconscious. Rescuers and rescued then became lost in the dense woods that skirt the banks and wandered aimlessly for hours until found nearly exhausted, by a searching party.

The second woman was pulled from the creek almost a mile from the dam. She had managed to grasp some driftwood and was swept along by the racing waters until her cries were heard by persons along the bank.

SEVEN PERSONS INJURED BY WIND IN WEST SPRINGFIELD

Fifty Houses Were Damaged by a Freakish Tornado—Caused Property Loss of More Than $100,000—Tornado Encountered a Strong Wind Coming From the Opposite Direction nad a Tremendous Explosion Ensued.

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 5.—A freakish tornado sweeping through the the Merrick section of West Springfield at 2.30 this afternoon damaged fifty houses and one large industrial plant, injured seven persons, two of whom may die, and left a total property loss of more than $100,000.

Starting as a strong gust of wind north of the Merrick section, the tornado swiftly took shape as a whirling mass of debris and sand cutting a path of 250 feet wide and a mile and a half long through the West Springfield homes before it spent itself in the Connecticut river. A motorboat in the river was torn from its moorings and sunk by the waterspout created when the tornado hit the river.

With the roar of a tremendous explosion the tornado met a strong wind coming from the opposite direction in the center of the Merrick section. Immediately the tornado continued on its path, totally wrecking three homes of the fifty encountered, lifting the smokestack off the Wyco Electric Co. out of the new plant and setting it down in one of the wrecked houses.

Mrs. Louis Zerra and the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Estabrook were in the Zerra home when the tornado struck and completely wrecked it, burying the woman and child. The woman was found to have a broken back, and probably will die. The child was found in the debris later, when a rescuer was called by the barking of a dog. The child's skull was fractured, and there is little hope for his recovery. Napoleon Bouley, employed as a hostler, in a livery stable that was wrecked, suffered minor injuries.

Three horses were killed when the sudden wind took them off their feet, carried them along several yards and dropped them, a mass of twisted and broken bones. A score of hens in a poultry yard near the livery stable had their heads severed by the tornado.

When the two powerful winds met with the resulting explosion, spectators for miles around saw a column of dust, sand and debris shoot far up into the sky. The column of milling, continually blowing sand and dust seemed to connect the earth with the heavy clouds far above, and stayed in that whirling position for more than ten minutes.

Though the intense heat has in the past caused minor tornadoes in tobacco fields in western Massachusetts, none in recent years has caused any appreciable damage.

As near as can be learned the tornado started a mile off the Merrick section. A vacuum, probably created by the rapid raise of excessively heated air, gave room for a rush of air from all sides. Pushed along by a breeze, the whirling tornado sped south through Merrick with such a force that a score or more of automobiles were stopped in their tracks, and several narrowly escaped being overturned.

Scores of Merrick residents saw the approaching tornado and started a desparate dash for safety. All but nine escaped the zig-zag course of the destructive wind, which hopped from one street to the other, ripping off one roof and leaving untouched another right next to it, of three houses side by side, one middle one was half destroyed, and the two others were scarcely touched. A woman in one of these fortunate two reported that the tornado had simply lifted from the dining room table, the table cloth, dinner and all.

The tornado virtually encircled the Railroad Y. M. C. A., but didn't damage it. It crossed and recrossed streets, blocking traffic effectually. Great branches were hurled yards away, miraculously missing the people who were running in all directions for shelter and safety.

Ernest Estabrook, whose infant son lies in the hospital with a fractured skull as a result of the tornado, tonight told of the rescue of Mrs. Zerra and the child, as well as Mr. Estabrook, who was slightly injured. Though at work in the railroad roundhouse a mile away when the tornado came, Mr. Estabrook said he heard a rumbling noises and soon the air was dark blacker than smoke. I went outside and saw the roof of my house flying up in the air, much higher than the house was. I was stunned, but I kept on running and found my wife had way out in the field from the house (a distance of about 100 yards), picked her up and then they found the baby in the wreckage."

Another railroad man reported a curious bit of luck. Sitting in a locomotive car a good half mile away from the path of the tornado, he felt a sudden blow on the tip of his head, and found the window of the car broken. At his feet was a gold watch and part of a chain, apparently blown to him from some less fortunate soul in the path of the tornado.

A Grand Army veteran, Henry Woodman, who is partially paralyzed on one side, was severely shocked by his experience. Just as he was about to step out of his house, the tornado took the screen door out of his hand, knocked him down and rolled him up in a rug. He was powerless to move until neighbors assisted him to the free air.

DAMAGE BY ELECTRICAL STORM IN WEST PHILA.

Philadelphia, Aug. 5.—Parts of roofs of houses were ripped off, limbs of trees torn down, fences blown over, and cellars flooded in West Philadelphia today by an electrical storm accompanied by torrents of water which fell for several hours. Water was as deep in places that people had to go about in row boats. Automobile parties stranded in the streets were rescued by men in bathing suits. Several houses were struck by lightning.

Nearly an inch and a quarter of rain fell during the storm, most of it the first hour.

Heavy damage was reported from south Jersey, crops were washed out in many sections and scores of telegraph and telephone poles were blown down. Lightning damaged several transformers at the power house of the public service corporation in Camden, and for a time tonight many suburban towns were without electric light or power.

PENALTIES IMPOSED BY FRENCH IN DUSSELDORF

Duesseldorf, Aug. 5. (By the A. P.)—The Germans are as outspoken as the French in condemning the throwing of a hand grenade yesterday at a military band, but the penalties imposed last night by the French authorities will be continued until further notice, and additional restrictions are promised as soon as the investigation of the crime is completed.

Restaurants, cafes, theatres and moving picture houses must close at 10 o'clock at night, and all circulation in the streets after 11 o'clock is prohibited.

A German student named Rabt, who was arrested near the scene of the crime immediately after the bombing, will be courtmartialed, with the possible penalty of death by shooting. The French have also arrested the Duesseldorf chief of police, as responsible for any disorder and are holding several German witnesses. Rabt denied the bombing, but the French say they have German eyewitnesses who declare they saw the student throw the grenade, and the French assert that they found in Rabt's pocket a part of the grenade's mechanism.

Colonel Degoutte, according to the Rhenische Westfalische Zeitung has issued an order authorizing the Franco-Belgian engineers to confiscate the stocks of coal and coke in the Ruhr and all property connected therewith, including the houses of workmen who refuse to work for the French. The newspaper says this indicates an intention on the part of the French to operate the mines and coke ovens themselves, importing French workmen for this purpose, if necessary.

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office
31 Church Street Telephone 1062

Jail sentences were imposed on six men in the police court Saturday morning when five of them were found guilty of trespassing on railroad property and another of vagrancy. Early Saturday morning the police received a telephone call from Constable Prevost of Moosup that a quintet of young men was acting in a suspicious manner and had boarded a freight train en route to Willimantic over the Providence division of the New Haven railroad. At 2 o'clock Saturday morning two members of the force were in waiting when the train arrived and the quintet were taken from the "side-door special" and locked up. They gave their names and addresses as: Thomas Kelso, Hartford, 25; Francis King, Waterbury, 21; James Bucci, Albany, N. Y., 22; John Welch, Shelton, 22, and Charles Hoffman, Montreal, Canada, 21.

Kelso claimed that he lived in Hartford but when questioned as to the names of some of the officials of that place his answers were a little vague and he lost his chance to obtain a suspended jail sentence to give him time to get out of town. Another one of the party who said that he came from Waterbury was at a loss when asked what the place looked like and who were some of the prominent men there. John Welch pleaded not guilty on the grounds that a brakeman had given him permission to ride on the freight. Judge Frank H. Foss imposed a thirty-day jail sentence in each case and the men were later escorted to Brooklyn. While they are there an investigation will be conducted in regard to their actions at Moosup.

Afforemski Nalauchauko, a Cossack, did not know what was being said to him when he was charged with vagrancy. With some effort he told the court that he had recently lost a job in a New Haven restaurant because he made too much noise while engaged in washing dishes. When the man was arrested Friday afternoon by Officer Tripp, his coat pockets were filled with clams and mussel shells and he could not tell where he had procured them. Nalauchauko was sentenced to spend thirty days at the county jail.

With special interest in the international egg-laying plant, a party of thirty-five members of the West Virginia Poultry association, touring in nine automobiles, visited the Connecticut Agricultural College at Storrs last week. The party arrived late Friday afternoon and left Saturday morning to resume their trip, going on to New London where they boarded the boat for Sag Harbor, L. I. While on the way to New London, stops were made at some of the larger poultry farms between that city and Willimantic. The visitation at the egg laying plant at Storrs proved most interesting. They spent Sunday at Patchogue, L. I., where the big farms were inspected. The party will continue to New York city this (Monday) morning.

One case was disposed of in the juvenile court, Saturday morning, Judge Frank H. Foss presiding. A 15-year-old boy, charged with the theft of a bicycle during the early part of last week admitted his guilt but promised to go straight in the future. His mother as present and interceded for her son, saying that she would do her best to keep her boy from misbehaving. The lad was sentenced to the state reform school but udgment was suspended, the court placing the boy on probation for six months.

Due to heavy traffic and recent heavy rainstorms, several of the city streets are showing signs of wear and Street Superintendent Irvin M. Ford is keeping men at work, patching up the wornout sections and filling up depressions. Temple and Clark streets were greatly improved by the laying of a six-foot dressing of gravel.

She was a friend of Charles Dudley Warner, of Woodrow Wilson and intimately acquainted with Samuel Bowles, editor of the Springfield Republican. At the age of ten, she began to write verses and for many years her works appeared in publications and newspapers. It was through one of these poems that she became acquainted with the man she later married, Charles T. Preston, an eminent lawyer and writer.

Ever stop to think of this?

We are what we eat!

It's a startling fact, yet a simple truth.

This is the reason every one should know that his food is really nourishing—not merely filling.

Grape-Nuts—made from wheat and barley—is one of the few cereal foods that includes the vital mineral salts so necessary for supplying proper nourishment for nerve and bone structure.

In Grape-Nuts, too, is retained the important vitamin-B of the wheat.

No food has greater influence in strengthening the body of a growing child than Grape-Nuts. And remember, children need the very best there is in the way of nourishment.

Grape-Nuts is just as delicious as it is healthful, whether served right from the package as a breakfast cereal with milk or cream, with fresh or stewed fruit, or made into an appetizing recipe. Try the suggestion given below.

GRAPE-NUTS ICE CREAM

Prepare plain flavored ice cream in the usual way. Just before the cream hardens in freezing, add Grape-Nuts as it comes from the package, in the proportion of one-half cup of Grape-Nuts to one quart of ice cream. If you buy ice cream ready made, add Grape-Nuts in place of nutmeats. You'll find the resulting flavor unique.

Your grocer has interesting details of our offer of over $7500.00 for Grape-Nuts Recipes. Ask him about it; or write to Recipe Dept., Postum Cereal Co., Inc., Battle Creek, Mich.

POETRY FOR THE WIDEAWAKES

Spark Plug

When first from out that mystic realm called baby-world he came,
His mother whispered John—and they made record of the name.
But mother-names must humbly bow to Youth's laconic rule—
Real boys are all rechristened on the day they start to school.

What other name than Spark Plug could her red-crowned baby bear?
His eyes ash fire, his smiles flash fire, flame glorifies his hair!
A little human dynamo he seems,
somehow to be:
One not yet insulated with the shams of vanity.

Spark Plug has power to magnetize
new comrades by the score—
Old playmates seem the happiest when they are at his door.
He keeps joy-motors running—keeps them "hitting on all six"—
And puts new spark in troubled hearts when they get out of fix.

Eyes dulled by unremitting toil are made to beam anew
When Spark Plug's flaming arcs of life come suddenly to view.
Gloom can not be where he abides—
God made him a device
With heart-glow bright enough to flood all Earth and Paradise!

FATHER'S COMING

Jane and Lucy, and Charley dear,
All love the noisy Tray;
And quick they spring his bark to hear,
At close of summer day.

For when Tray jumps the orchard wall
Their hearts are full of bliss;
And forth they scamper, one and all,
To gain a father's kiss.

Dearly the farmer loves to take
His babies upon his knee;
While one calls for "patty cake!"
Another shouts with glee.

Jane runs to bring his milk and bread,
While Lucy takes his hat;
And Charley shakes his silk head,
At sight of pussy cat.

The happy boy and Lucy, too,
Will father's supper share;
Ere Jane unties each little shoe,
And mother combs their hair.

And this is why, at set of sun,
They every one will hark
To hear who first will call, "Run, run!
For Tray begins to bark!"

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO WIDE-AWAKES

I hope that many of the Wide-awakes—all of them if possible—may some day have a chance to visit Concord and Lexington, where the first shots were fired in the Revolutionary war, when the minute-men, as the American soldiers were called, drove back the British soldiers who had marched from Charlestown to seize the Americans' supply of powder. If you have not done so already, you will learn of this as you study American history, but to visit the spots where events took place is quite a fascinating way to study history, after you have read of it in a book.

At Concord, you will remember, the British soldiers had to cross a bridge and it was here that the minute-men fired upon them so hotly that they were forced to retreat to Lexington. It will be this bridge, I am sure, that will be the big center of interest for you when you visit Concord. Of course the old bridge that stood there 148 years ago has long since been replaced, but the present low, narrow concrete structure gives you a perfect idea of how the bullets from the muskets of the minute-men came whistling across it to stop the British soldiers. You approach the bridge through a grove of tall trees, just off the main road, and at once have your attention attracted to a granite obelisk with an inscription that tells you this is the spot where "the embattled farmers stood and fired the shot heard round the world." Off to the left under several trees is the place where the British soldiers who fell were buried. A single slab of stone set in the bank marks the spot and bears the inscription: They came three thousand miles or more to keep the past upon the throne; far off across the ocean's roar, their English mother makes her moan.

Then you will see the noble bronze statue of the minute-man in its commanding position on the bridge. In his right hand he holds his musket and his left is just leaving the handles of his plough from which he has turned away, having tossed off his coat, which hangs across the plough. The poise is so alert and lifelike and the face so full of vigor and expression that the statue is known as one of the finest works of the sculptor, D. C. French, a native of Concord.

On the road just before you turn in to go to the bridge you will pass a house where you will have pointed out to you a little diamond shaped pane of glass in a frame that encloses a bullet hole made in that house at the time of the battle, and in an old tavern in Concord you can still see the small curved bar at which Pitcairn, the British major, stood when he drank his toddy and swore to "stir the Yankee blood."

Then you will want to go to Lexington along the road over which the British soldiers retreated. The place where the planted their cannon is marked by a stone cannon standing on a lawn, while on the village green is another fine brone statue of a minute man, also by the sculptor, D. C. French. Farther along the road is the place where Paul Revere stopped when he made his famous ride to "spread the alarm through every Middlesex village and farm." All these things happened, you know a good many years ago, April 19, 1775, but they can never fail to be of deep interest to every true American.

STORIES WRITTEN BY WIDE-AWAKES

Our Sunday School Picnic.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write and tell you about our Sunday school picnic. We had it over at the Pachaug fair grounds and there were three Sunday schools united—Voluntown, Bethel and the most from Jewett City. We all enjoyed it, both old and young. For refreshments we had sandwiches, cake, lemonade and ice cream. We played games. We had it on Saturday afternoon and just before we were ready to leave for home there was a very hard electrical storm, very large hailstones, but not much thunder and lightning. The wind did no damage over there but elsewhere it was pretty bad. It came just so as to break up our good time. There were over one hundred in all and all enjoyed it very much.

Hope we will all be able to meet together another year.

My Home in Maryland.

Dear Uncle Jed: I have not written to you in a long time so I will write now.

I am eleven years old and I live in Maryland. It is a very nice place only it is very hot. It is shady and cool in some places, so we take our lunch and stay there on warm days.

My home is 44 miles from Washington, D. C., and I go there twice every week.

We were in Washington to see the Shriners' convention. It was a wonderful time. The Shriners were all dressed up in their costumes and they looked very nice.

We saw all the ships and flags, boat races, swimmers and everything. We also saw the large boat, The Langley, and we saw an aeroplane land on top of it.

We have nice times in Maryland and the schools are nice.

I am visiting my grandmother in Norwich and I expect to go back home in August. I am

How Crabs Grow.

Dear Uncle Jed: I haven't written to you for a long time and so thought I would tell you about crabs. As you and all the Wide-Awakes know, crabs are a shellfish that lives mostly in salt water. I live at Gales Ferry right beside the river and so know something about fish.

The crab is good to eat and its meat tastes similar to lobster meat. Crabs do not grow as many of the Wide-Awakes probably think they do. The crab has a very queer way of growing. From the time that they are little ones they keep shedding their shell until they are larger ones. You may say, how do they shed their shell? In the first place the crab eats all the food he can get until he grows so large under this shell that the shell begins to crack and open. It takes a crab about one hour to shed its shell. When they come out they are very soft. That is the time people like to eat them best because every bit of the crab is good to eat. They are fried like meat is and they are much better than boiled hard shell crabs.

After a crab sheds he begins to turn hard again. The shell gets harder and harder until it is perfectly hard. So you see Mother Nature performs many wonderful and interesting things.

Catching Groundhogs.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first letter to you. I am going to tell you how my dog Bugs and I caught a huge groundhog. One hot day last week I heard Bugs barking in the next lot. I went over to see what was the matter. I found that Bugs had caught a large groundhog away from his hole. I helped Bugs kill it. It weighed eight pounds. He has caught many groundhogs this year.

The Captive Crow.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about a bird called a crow. One day he was out in a sudden rain and his feathers got wet so that he could not fly very well. A bad boy caught him and carried him away. He clipped one wing so that he couldn't fly and he kept him shut in the house all winter. In the spring the first time he could get out he started for his old home seven miles away. He could not fly but he walked the seven miles through mud and wet so tired that he was almost dead. When his master saw him coming he went to meet him, took him up and petted him and talked to him. The poor fellow was so happy it seemed as if he could not live. But he was taken care of, and got well, and lived many years. But never after that would he leave the place, though when his new feathers came in he could fly as well as ever. I hope all the Wide-Awakes are kind to the birds and never do a naughty thing like that to them.

My Vacation.

Dear Uncle Jed: I have a large garden planted this year. I have planted tomatoes, potatoes, peas, beans, cucumbers and corn. I do all my own hoeing in my garden. When I harvest it I am going to sell the produce and buy some things for school, such as pencils, ink, note books, etc. I am going to have a bank book this year. That is what every Wide-Awake should have because it teaches us to save and not to be too extravagant in buying.

I will close, hoping to hear from some of the Wide-Awakes with gardens.

Celebrating the Fourth of July.

Dear Uncle Jed: I thought that I would write and tell you about how I celebrated the Fourth of July.

My father, mother, sister and I all went to my uncle's home. As soon as we reached there my cousins and I began to enjoy ourselves firing fireworks. We had great fun with the fireworks until dinner.

The dinner consisted of chowder, peas, clams and many other things, which tasted very good to us as we all were very hungry. After dinner we played croquet and then my cousins and I went for a walk. We told stories and fortunes and had a great time.

When we returned to my cousin's home, after our walk, we had watermelon. My cousins asked my father and mother if I could stay all night. They finally said that I could, which made me very glad. In the evening after my father and mother had returned home my cousins and I went to their neighbor's home where we fired off skyrockets, Roman candles, firecrackers, pinwheels, sparklers, and many other things. We arrived at my cousins' home about ten o'clock in the evening.

The next morning I started and arrived home about ten o'clock, after having a heap of fun.

An Eventful Day.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about our adventure. One day last summer, my boy chums and I went for a hike to a distant farm house. We started out on the country road stopping here and there to gather a few berries or flowers. At last we reached our destination. The fruit trees were loaded with apples and plums. The owner of the farm house said that we would have as many apples as we wanted. We began to get the best fruit. We were making ourselves at home when one of the boys slipped. When we looked again we saw that he was hanging onto the tree with his hands. Shouting to our friend to gain strength by being courageous, we ran to the farmhouse and borrowed a blanket. We called to the boy to let go. Then we gripped the edges of the blanket with grim determination One, two, three, and the boy was in the blanket. You can bet that after our adventure, we were content to pick the apples up off the ground.

Surprising Auntie.

Dear Uncle Jed: One day during my vacation I was very lonesome and I didn't know what to do with myself. So I thought I would dress up and go and call at auntie's house. So I put on my uncle's cap and sweater and took an old umbrella under my arm and my suit case, and went over and rang the door bell. She came to the door very much surprised. She didn't know me at first. She invited me in to stay a few minutes and then I went home after we had a good laugh.

The New Carpet.

Dear Uncle Jed: Mother Earth's pretty white snow carpet had all melted away. So she was very busy working on a new one. "I must have this one very pretty so that the children will love to play on it," she said, as she began to make her carpet. She worked underground. When she wanted nice green places she wove grass roots. In some places she put roots of clover, violets, daisies, buttercups and hundreds of other flowers. It is a great deal of work to make such a beautiful carpet, but I'm sure everybody will be pleased when they see it. So many people didn't like my white carpet, they thought it looked cold. This carpet will be so soft that the smallest children can play on it.

Birds.

Dear Uncle Jed, I thought I would write and tell you that I have joined the bird club in my school. We have got to pay ten cents to join it. I got a pin and six various kinds of illustrations of birds. Miss Hayes came and exhibited all kinds of birds to us. She gave us good advice about feeding the birds. I have seen many different kinds of birds during my summer vacation. We have got a small brook near our house. It is so nice to watch the little birds taking a bath in the brook. The swallows are very fond of bathing. They sit on my mother's clothesline and splash their little wings when it is raining. I will close hoping that the Wide-Awakes will take my advice and be good and friendly to the birds, as I am.

Dear Uncle Jed: My cats' names are Snipe and Ladybug. Snipe will follow me up in the woods or anywhere. We have fun playing together. Snipe will go to bed with me. One night I lifted the covers and he went under. Then he got as close as he could to me. I like him because he is a good hunter.

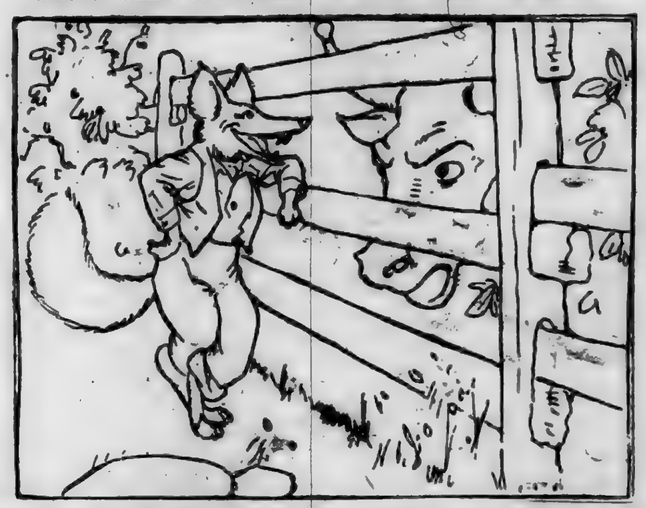
THE LITTLE JACK RABBIT PICTURE FOR COLORING



"Look out! Look out for Danny Fox. He's sneaking round in his tip-toe socks,
If he should see you first, look out!
You won't have time to even shout!"

whispered Billy Breeze to all the little people of the Shady Forest and the Sunny Meadow. He didn't exactly whisper it, you know. He did it in even a better way, a way by which no one heard a word. He carried the smell of the wicked old fox to the nose of every little animal. Yes sir, that's how Billy Breeze whispers bad news.

"Dear, oh dear!" sighed Mrs. Grouse, hiding her brood under her wings amid the brown underbush.

"Goodness gracious," cackled Little Henny Jenny, "I'm glad Old Sic'em the farmer's dog is around. I hope the Farmer's Boy won't whistle to him."

"Heigh, ho!" yawned Mrs. Cow, shaking her head slowly till the little bell on her collar went ting-a-ling! "So old Danny Fox is out hunting!"

Then, the motherly lady cow walked over to her little calf and rubbed her nose against the long-legged little animal's silky ear.

"But you needn't be afraid of that old robber. He only eats little defenseless bunnies and chickens. He's no real hunter. Oh my, No! He's only a sneak thief."

"What's that? all of a sudden, quick as a lightning bug or a tornado. "What's that you're saying about me?" asked a voice.

Mrs. Cow turned her head quickly. There stood Danny Fox himself, close by the Old Rail Fence.

"Moo-oo! moo-oo!" answered Mrs. Cow, lowering her head till her horns pointed right at the fox's head.

"S-s-s-c-o-h!" whispered the old robber, "maybe the farmer will think you're calling him!"

"I don't care if he does," answered Mrs. Cow, giving her head a toss, and then lowering it again till the tips of her horns were even with Danny Fox's eyes. "Don't you bother me, you old thief."

"Ha, ha!" laughed Danny Fox, carefully peering here and there, however, for fear some one might be coming by. "I'm not afraid of you. Besides you have a thimble on each of your horns."

They weren't really thimbles, you know. They were little brass caps which the Farmer had fastened on, but Danny Fox thought they were thimbles. Mrs. Fox used a thimble you see when she mended Bushytail's coat or Slyboot's trousers.

"I don't care nor do I mind what you say, you old robber," answered Mrs. Cow with a moo! moo! moo-oo, walking up to the fence as brave as a fireman of a policeman. "Get out! or I'll toss you over the Bubbling Brook or maybe farther."

"Now, don't be disagreeable," said the old fox, "I'm going along. Maybe I'll find a nice little rabbit for supper" and away he ran right into the next story, which I will write, dear boys and girls, while you color as well as you know how the illustration to this story. Send it to David Cory, the Jack Rabbit Man, care of this paper. Little Jack Rabbit books will be given away to the best little artists.

OVER 80 HORSES HERE FOR BAY STATE MEETING WHICH OPENS ON WEDNESDAY

Over 85 horses, some of the fastest steppers in New England on the half mile track, are quartered at the Fairgrounds waiting for the word on Wednesday afternoon when they get away to three days of fast racing. As soon as the Bay State meeting at Worcester was over the horses were immediately sent to the local track and during Saturday and Sunday they were continually arriving. It is expected that a few more will arrive today and Tuesday until the total will reach pretty close to 100.

The regular horse barns are taxed to their capacity and some of the horses are being stabled in the cow barns. John Connell is the stable superintendent and is being kept busy assigning quarters and looking out for things in general. This is the largest number of race horses that has ever been quartered at the local Fairgrounds and from all indications there will be some fast racing during the three day meet here.

Thursday will be the big day when there will be four events, the main feature being the free-for-all in which some horses with marks of 2.01, 2.02 and 2.03 are entered. Fast time is expected in this event as the track is in prime condition and very fast, due to the careful work of Elmer R. Pierson, track superintendent.

The entry list follows:

GIANTS RALLY AND STILL LEAD NATIONAL

New York, Aug. 5. — Apparently ready for a tumble down the pennant wall a week ago, the New York Giants rallied their heavy hitting combinations and in the week's games shook off both the Pittsburgh and Cincinnati clubs. Today after three victories out of five starts with the Pirates and two straight credited to them over the Reds, the Giants are five games in the lead.

The Giants had one of the heaviest hitting weeks of the season. Cincinnati and Pittsburgh are hanging on well, but the Reds must win the three remaining contests with the Giants in order to make the race close.

In the American League the Yankees managed to hold a big lead. Cleveland continued to play excellent winning game, while the Athletics kept along their losing way, failing to account for a victory during the week. Ruth's hitting continued a factor in the Yankee attack. His two homers today, making his total 27, placed him within one of Cy Williams of the Phillies, who cracked out his 28th yesterday.

TAFTVILLE BEATEN BY RIVERVIEW LOSES GAME TO CORBIN RED SOX

Taftville lost its two week end games one to the Riverview club on Saturday, 8 to 1, and the other on Sunday afternoon to the Corbin Red Sox 8 to 6. Both games were marred by errors, especially the game at the State Hospital when the Taftville players made 10 misplays all at critical times.

The game Saturday started off like a real contest, but after that inning there was no resemblance of a baseball team on the part of the Taftville boys. Poor fielding, throwing and dumb base running made the Taftville team look like a grammar school team and not a very good one at that. The Taftville team made every conceivable misplay and the Riverview club was not slow in taking advantage of these bones by any means. West was a problem to the Taftville team with his sharp breaking outcurve which completely fooled the Taftville heavy hitters. West's first ball to every batter was a wide out that broke sharply across the plate and nine of ten times the Taftville hitters would not take their bats off the shoulder. The Riverview hurler was wild at times and issued 8 passes but in the pinches he was strong, fanning 15.

Getterson, the Hartford spit-ball artist pitched good ball but his support was so ragged that it was impossible to hold the Riverview club. Another thing that marred the game, besides Taftville's poor playing, was the disgusting remarks of a number of Hospital supporters, who indulged in personalities seeming to think that a game gave them license to call names to the players that they would never have the nerve to call if they were face to face with thetir target for their nasty remarks.

The real sensational play of the game was executed by Harry Mills, a product of the sand lots of Taftville. This came in the eighth inning when he grabbed a high foul fly over third base. Harry misjudged the ball completely and in his gyrations while trying to get under the dropping sphere he stuck out his gloved hand in a last desperate attempt to grab the ball and was successful, the ball nestling in the glove. Sunday's Game

The game on Sunday was not quite so ragged as on Saturday the errors in the first inning accounting for 5 of the Red Sox runs. In this frame there was some hectic throwing the ball around and as a result runner after runner crossed the plate. After the first inning it was a good fight, Morin pitching exceptionally good ball and allowing only 7 hits.

In the second inning Bill Liberty was injured and forced to retire from the game, Jim Murphy taking his place and playing a good game. Morin outpitched Blanchard but ragged support lost the game for him. The score by innings:

SLOAN WEAKENS IN NINTH AND WATERBURY WINS

Waterbury, Aug. 5—A single and an infield error, following three passes in the ninth, won a 4 to 2 struggle for the Brasscos from Hartford after the game had temporarily lost in the first half of this stanza, when Lou Gehrig crashed a homer into deep center scoring Hauk who had singled. The Brasscos led until the big first sacker registered his wallop, and it looked like a bloomer for the home players until Sloan exploded in the last inning. Score by innings:

DEMPSEY TO START ACTIVE TRAINING TODAY

White Sulphur Springs, Saratoga Lake, N. Y., Aug. 5—Today was a day of rest and relaxation for Jack Dempsey, world's champion heavyweight, who yesterday pitched his training quarters on the shore of Saratoga Lake. The champion, weighing around 195, very evident in physical trim and anxious to be doing something, spent the day in swimming, short strolls and a motor trip to Saratoga Springs, 11 miles away.

Boxing fans today began finding their way to the champion's quarters and his guests numbered about 5,000. Jack Kearns, the champion's manager, keeps an eye on his protege, however, and the wear and tear of handshaking and introductions is reduced to the minimum.

It is expected that tomorrow erection of a new training ring will be begun, the one used by Frank Moran years ago and by eight victorious fighters so far this year, apparently being a bit too shaky for the champion's tread. Dempsey's living quarters, "Fern Lodge," on the lake shore a few yards from the ring, and the camp of his sparring partners adjoining, will be fenced in to keep out the curious.

Firpo very apparently is regarded as a serious contender. The champion plans the usual hard daily workout and business starts in a week.

OUR NEW PRESIDENT.

On the old family Bible in the hands of his father, a justice of the peace, Calvin Coolidge took the oath of office that made him the thirtieth president of the United States. The simple ceremony took place in the sitting room of the modest Vermont farmhouse in which he had grown up as a boy and from which he had gone away to college. It has its counterpart in hundreds of others on the hills and in the valleys of New England. No circumstances could have been a more forceful illustration of the simplicity of American democracy in its essentials.

Like Warren G. Harding, President Coolidge is a son of the soil. He was brought up on a farm and has the vigorous virtues that we associate with such an early environment. He believes with his whole heart that the "destiny of America, the greatness of America lies around the hearthstone." He holds that "if thrift and industry are taught there, and the example of self-sacrifice oft appears, if honor abide there and high ideals, if there the building of fortune be subordinate to the building of character, America will live in security, rejoicing in an abundant prosperity at home and in peace, respect and confidence abroad." To lose these virtues, as he believes, is to lose these blessings. Those whose privilege it is to know him best are solemnly aware today that the power of his example in the White House will point in the same direction.

He comes to the presidential chair in closer touch with national problems than most vice presidents have enjoyed because of Mr. Harding's wise provision that he should attend cabinet meetings, an experience that gave him an unconscious preparation for what the future had in store for him, although he could scarcely have dreamed that his "chief and friend" would be taken away. In his administration of public office in Massachusetts, Mr. Coolidge has shown that he is strong, determined, trustworthy. In the swift sweep of events, when a sudden crisis finds a man like Coolidge ready for instant service, we may well believe that a Divine Providence watches over the affairs of the nation and recall the faith that Garfield expressed to Wall street when Lincoln was shot when he said: "God reigns and the government at Washington still lives."

NAVAL AVIATION RESERVE.

Through guarantees made by New Englanders, when congress refused to make the necessary appropriation, the first naval aviation training station under the reserve system is to be opened in Boston about Aug. 15 and will serve as a model for the thirteen naval reserve districts into which the country is to be divided, according to the announcement of Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the bureau of aeronautics of the navy department.

At this station a beginning will be made in the training of the many thousands of young men that the navy will need whenever a national emergency develops. Patriotic New England citizens are doing a part in making up for the short-sighted action of congress.

What can be done at Boston will be only a small beginning but it should serve to call the attention of congress to the fact that aviation reservists need to be trained annually if this means of national defense is to be adequately maintained. In any event, the regular air force would be only a nucleus of what would need to be recruited in case of war. Forty thousand flyers would be needed in case of war, but the navy has only 400 aviators today. Naval aviators cannot be made overnight, and it can be readily seen that systematic training of civilians presents the only possibility of an adequate force. It is a fact that aviation is a progressive science in which too much reliance cannot be placed upon the veteran flyers. It is a young man's game. It takes only a few years for a man to pass his period of maximum usefulness. A new generation must be constantly in training in the science of the air.

It is to be hoped that the example of New England in making this possible will be followed by congress and the country.

CHILD LABOR GROWING.

Miss Grace Abbott, chief of the United States children's bureau, is making an appeal for a constitutional amendment granting congress full power in the regulation of child labor on which she offers statistics showing a vast increase in the employment of children. It is her contention that utter failure in the course of attempts to regulate child labor by national legislation and regulation by the states, which in some cases is nil or grossly inadequate, have produced just the conditions that might have been expected.

There were 1,000,000 boys and girls between the ages of 10 and 15 at work in this country in January, 1920. A third of these were under the age of 13. Figures indicate an increase of 100 per cent since then, chiefly in cities. The general increase since June, 1920, is about 57 per cent.

Technically speaking, these working children are wage earners, but they do not own what is paid to them. In too many cases it may be that their status is not so different from the slaves who were hired out and could be punished for disobeying their masters. The spectacle of a mother and a father living on the earnings of a brood of children is not so uncommon as it ought to be in some states.

A philosopher might say truthfully that it is a good thing for boys and girls to learn to use their hands, a good thing for them to acquire habits of regular industry. There is no protest against reasonable home work or reasonable farm work. Parental love and care and interest may make even hard work tolerable, even enjoyable. But this much is certain; a minor under 16 should not be economically an industrial unit in esse, but an industrial unit in posse. In other words, the end society ought to aim at is child-development, with wages, if any, regarded as an incidental matter.

KEEP MEN EMPLOYED.

While the republican party has always tri dato keep down the cost of living, that has not been its first effort. To keep all the people employed has been one of the fundamental principles of republicanism. Whether the cost of living be high or low is of little interest to men who are out of jobs, for they haven't the money to pay the cost in either event. Under the republican policy of "buy it Made-in-America," our own industries are built up and jobs are provided for American workmen. When there is a job for every man, wages are certain to be good, for it is a lack of job that brings wages down. With steady work and good wages, people may growl a lot over the cost of living, but they are immeasurably better off than they would be with low cost of living and no jobs and no wages.

There you have a statement of one of one republican policy that differs from the democratic. Our democratic friends are always concerned for the welfare of the consumer—they want him to buy where he can buy the cheapest, in America or elsewhere. Republicans are concerned for the welfare of the producer. That is why the republican congress passed the bill reviving the war finance corporation for the aid of farmers, and passed the bill a second time after President Wilson had vetoed it. While the bill did not bring everything that the farmers desired, it did save them from far worse conditions. But for the republican tariff law, we would now be flooded with Canadian grain and with European manufactured goods. Our mills would be closed and our people would have a very small purchasing power. The plight of the farmer is bad, but it is immeasurably better than it would be if our people were buying cheap products of Europe and letting our own products go without any market at all. The mechanics of the cities are getting high wages, and, therefore, they are liberal buyers of all classes of American goods. This situation is due in large degree to the republican policy of looking after the welfare of the producer, thus enabling him to be a buyer for consumption.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Sunday was true to the August weather type.

King Tut's tomb is closed for the summer but his fashions carry on.

The nation gives sympathy for her loss and admiration for her bravery to Mrs. Harding.

If a dictator to curb profiteers is suggested, who is going to keep the curb on the dictator?

Crops destined for prize competitions at the county fairs need to make the most of August.

Charlie Chaplin served a useful purpose for Pola Negri in giving her a few days of newspaper headlines.

Currency printing in certain parts of the world has become less a function of government than a habit.

The man on the corner says: Idle curiosity is at work sixteen hours a day, Sundays and holidays included.

Unless the miners and operators agree the popular refrain next winter may be "Yes, we have no anthracite."

The democratic party may need traffic regulations to keep so many presidential band wagons from colliding.

The senate chamber at Washington is to have a new system of ventilation. Senatorial hot air will find a new outlet, in other words.

Underwood says he is willing to throw his hat into the ring and Ford declares you never can tell when he may not do the same.

An Ohio city got its jail so full that it decided it was useless to try to enforce law any longer because somebody else might be arrested.

Movie picture actresses protest against the suggestion that a woman should have a new husband every three years. The period is too long.

If America has an oversupply and Europe a shortage of grain there ought to be some way of getting the supply where it will meet the demand.

Only 1 per cent of the liquor seized by the government in raids is genuine, according to Prohibition Commissioner Haynes, showing how hard it is to keep the real stuff on hand.

United States investments in Canada are estimated at $2,500,000,000, which does not take account of current expenditures by tourists from the dry side of the boundary line.

According to New York figures, the cost of material for an average house has gone up 200 per cent. since 1915, but it is expected that in time the material people will find out how much behind some other people they have fallen and make the necessary increases.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

In cleaning carving or any raised woodwork, a brush is absolutely necessary.

Hollandaise sauce is excellent with hot asparagus, and vinaigrette sauce with cold.

Oil paint is an excellent finish for kitchen walls because it can be cleaned and is very durable.

Heat your lemons before squeezing them for lemonade. You will be able to get all of the juice that way.

A clean piece of old black cotton stocking is excellent for applying a cleaning fluid to dark materials, or for sponging dark wool fabrics.

Pour a little turpentine in the corners of your closet and your bureau drawers and trunks if you wish to keep the moths away.

To clean ordinary jewelry wash it in neutral soap suds with a soft brush, then dip in alcohol and rub with soft tissue paper or with chamois.

To remove grass stains from flannels, take equal parts of yolk of egg and glycerine, apply to the stains and let remain for two hours. Then wash the flannels in the usual way.

You can remove rust stains from white goods by applications of lemon juice and salt. After each application, place the material in the sunlight until dry.

It is no longer considered good form to make a display of your table silver, and those pieces that are not in frequent use are best put away where they will not tarnish.

A waxed floor can be kept in good condition by sweeping it with a brush with hair bristles and dusting it with a mop. This gives a soft lustre possible by no other treatment.

Grease spots may be removed from wall paper by covering the spot with clean white blotting paper and rubbing over with a hot iron until the grease is absorbed. As soon as the blotting paper is soiled it should be replaced by a new one.

LOOK TO THE NAP.

In velvet, plush and similar fabrics the pile should run up in each piece so that it will fall out and give the full depth and richness of color to the material. In panne velvet, broadcloth, etc., the nap should run down in each piece. If it runs up it will roughen up and wear badly.

In cutting a kimono sleeve garment the nap will run different ways at the front and back. Use the best effect for the front, for it is more conspicuous than the back and receives closer scrutiny.

SAVE BREAD.

All crumbs, all bits of bread and heels of loaves should be dried thoroughly, ground fine with a bread roller or through a meat chopper and turned into a glass jar. They may be used for breading cutlets, making pancakes, may be substituted for potatoes in hash and are better than cracker crumbs.

SOUP.

Left-over gravy makes a good starting point for a soup. Dilute it to proper consistency, season, add any left-over vegetable or even a spoonful of cereal from breakfast which will thicken it somewhat. Simmer for a couple of hours, strain, add croutons or noodles and serve.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

To remove fruit stains from the fingers, wash them with a nail brush in strong tea and then in clear warm water.

When there is a great deal of lime in the water it is a good plan to put a few egg shells in the teakettle so the lime deposits will settle on them instead of on the teakettle.

If the ticking of a watch in the sickroom disturbs the patient, nurses place a tumbler over the watch. It's very effectual in stopping the disturbance.

There is nothing more soothing for either a burn or a scald than the white of an egg. It is contact with the air which makes a burn so painful, and the egg acts as a varnish and excludes the air completely, also preventing inflammation.

Massage will not entirely take the place of physical exercise yet it produces excellent results when properly done. When a person has a bad heart, and consequently is unable to take vigorous exercise, massage is the only substitute. But it is ineffective as compared with actual work which the patient does himself.

HELPS THE HANDS.

A writer on the subject of bodily poise makes the following helpful suggestion to the nervous person who does not always know what to do with hands:

"The girl who is self-conscious about her hands, who is always moving them about restlessly, always remembering that they are there, and that she must do something with them, will find it helpful to exercise them occasionally. Stretching the fingers far apart and curving them into the palm of the hands, over and over again, is always good. In this way they will become used to moving with a purpose, and some day, after these exercises are practiced, the self-conscious girl will find that they are moving naturally, not in the quick, jerky, restless movements of before."

SAVE YOUR HANDS FROM BLUING STAINS.

A toilet-water or hair-tonic bottle which has a device in the cork for permitting only a few drops to come through at a time makes an excellent container for liquid bluing. The amount of bluing added to the water is thus easily controlled and the fingers do not get stained, as usually happens with the ordinary bluing bottles.—Delineator.

VARIETY OF PERFUMES.

Where one perfume bottle used to sit in lonely state on the toilet table, there are a dozen now. Women have given up to a large extent, the effort to choose one perfume and identify it with their personalities. They have realized that one perfume no more represented a personality in all its moods than does a red flannel petticoat. Moreover they have begun to realise that a single perfume was not appropriate for a score of toilettes. A yellow frock worn with a red smell, they have discovered, clashes as thoroughly as do the colors themselves.

Therefore today, women are choosing their perfume to match their gowns and are using as much care in the selection as in the matching of hose, gloves and other toilet accessories.

DICTATES OF FASHION.

Just the thing to wear with organdie frocks are hats of leghorn covered with lace frills and tied with narrow ribbon.

New hats of lacquer red are of straw or felt and are flower trimmed.

Hats of black taffeta have black velvet crowns and are trimmed with white flowers.

Hats of felt and straw are trimmed with a single large velvet flower or a cluster of small ones in many colors.

Sport hats of ribbon match the prevailing color of the sweater design.

Hats of pleated chiffon in flower colorings have parasols to match.

Never leave any metal spoons or forks in your mayonnaise or French dressings.

For fall wood greens and bottle greens, with dashes of scarlet or orange, are to be the leading color.

Cunning little frocks for the small girl are of white china silk or pongee smocked in rose, blue or green.

Long neckchains of big beads of ivory, amber, crystal or imitation precious stones are very popular at the moment.

Mohair scarfs of fine wool with a lace edge ornamented with brilliant rainbow stripes are being introduced for early fall wear.

Changeable taffeta is used to make some of the smartest of the bouffant frocks. Ruffles and puffings of self-material are the most favored trimmings.

White felt sport hats of the mushroom and short back type are very popular for midsummer. Usually they are all-white, but occasionally a bit of metallic ribbon makes the trimming.

For a young girl with fair complexion and blue eyes, Dame Fashion recommends a bouffant dancing frock of baby blue taffeta combined with a frilled top of white organdie.

The raised waistline is a feature in fall fashions. Whereas it has not entirely returned to normal, it is much nearer that goal than it was six months ago.

Whatever your fall frocks may or may not have, it is quite safe to prophesy they will have lace somewhere, probably in great profusion.

THE DECORATIVE RUFFLE.

The vogue for ribbons has led to a demand for ruffles and some of the newest summer frocks are bedecked with ruffles of every conceivable width and color and form, and put on at every conceivable angle. Organdie ruffles are edged with sweet pea shades of narrow ribbon. Pleated ruffles have many rows of ribbon stitched on before the accordion pleats are laid. Wide ribbon ruffles are themselves edged with tiny ruffles or narrow ribbon. They are particularly good on the bouffant skirt, but are also employed by such designers as Lanvin to break the lines of the slender silhouette.

CHILD'S KNITTED GOWN.

Hand-knit, one-piece dresses for children continue to grow in popularity. The dresses are made low in the neck and are knitted of the lace stitch, making for beauty. They are also very, cool. Another advantage of the worsted yarn dress is that it washes easily and requires no ironing.

LAUNDRY HINTS.

Put a little borax on the tea or coffee stains before placing them in cold water and they will be removed very easily.

Hot water dampens your clothes more evenly than cold when you sprinkle them preparatory to ironing them.

Wring chamois out of soapy water without rinsing; when it dries it is soft and serviceable, instead of stiff.

New stockings will last almost twice as long again without wearing into holes if they are shrunk before wearing. Wash them in warm water, to which a little ammonia has been added, then wring out and dry and you will be delighted with the result. Silk or lisle thread ones should be treated in the same way.

SAVES THE BUTTONS.

To avoid the annoyance of broken buttons on children's wash blouses try this plan: Make buttonholes in the hem on which the buttons would usually be sewn. Then sew your buttons on a piece of tape, slip through the buttonholes and secure the tape on the wrong side with a few stitches. When sending the blouse to be washed it is the work of a few seconds to remove the tape and buttons.

PACKING CLOTHES.

Before packing a trunk preparatory to a long journey, cut several pieces of cardboard a little smaller than the length of your trunk. Wrap the dresses you do not expect to need frequently in tissue paper and attach them to the cardboards. They will be fresh and unwrinkled when you unpack them.

CLEANS WHITE GLOVES.

White kid gloves that are not very badly soiled can be quite well cleaned at home with a mixture of finely powdered fuller's earth and alum. It should be rubbed over with a clean piece of flannel and then thoroughly brushed off with a soft clean brush.

TO MEND WALL PAPER.

To patch wall paper, tear a piece slightly larger than the portion to be covered, to match, but torn with rough edges and without any definite shape. Then, paste over, and the patch will not be noticeable.

WIDE RIBBON SASH.

A one-piece frock made by the straight chemise pattern may have drop shoulders and bustle sash all made of one length of wide ribbon. The ribbon is carried across a bateau neckline in the back, drops over the shoulders, is brought to the center front, where the two ends cross, continuing to the back where they are tied into a large bustle sash. Two-toned satin ribbon is very good for this purpose.

FOR PAINT BRUSHES.

When paint brushes have been laid aside for some time they become very dry and hard. To remedy this, heat some vinegar to the boiling point, immerse the brushes and then allow them to simmer for about 15 minutes or more in strong soap suds. They will be as new again.

GLASS TOWELS.

Cheap Turkish towels, in the small size, make good towels for glasses, because the rough surface of the towel brings out a good polish on the glass.

CONCERNING WOMEN.

Of the 468 members of the German Reichstag, 35 are women.

There is a preponderance of women in every boro of London.

Since 1916, women in the professions have increased 34.5 per cent.

Nearly 3,000 women in the United States are employed as elevator operators.

When her husband resigned as treasurer of Ojibwa, Wis., Mrs. W. R. Crane was elected as his successor.

Women in Germany are now admitted to every profession to which a man is admitted.

Mrs. Frederick W. Bentley, mother of the first Chicago man killed in France during the war, has been appointed the only woman member of the American battle monument commission.

When the mad dollar refused to help repair a road, 20 women of Glasgow, Ky., donned overalls and with pick and shovel begun repairs on a five-mile section. It so shamed the men that they, too, joined the army of women workers.

RHUBARB PIES.

In baking rhubarb pies it is a good idea to bake the bottom crust for about five minutes before you put the rhubarb in. Then your lower crust will not be soggy. This is advisable with berry pies as well.

RECIPES.

Pineapple Dainty. — Put a round slice of pineapple in each of three dessert dishes and cover each round with flaked pineapple (flake it with a fork). Now make a syrup by boiling together for five minutes 1-3 cup of pineapple juice, the juice of one orange, 1-4 cup sugar, two tablespoons of any kind of red jelly or jam, and 1-2 cup of water. Let cool, then pour this syrup over the fresh fruit. Top each portion with raw egg-white, beaten stiff with one tablespoon of sugar and some of the flaked pineapple. Other stewed fruits may be combined with this simple dessert.

English Orange Sauce.—This recipe was contributed by a Reader-Friend. "Mix together 1 1-2 cups of granulated sugar, one cup of best New Orleans molasses, one cup of butter or lard, 1-2 cup of warm water, one tablespoon of ginger, one tablespoon of salt, one teaspoon of soda, the grated rind and the juice of one lemon (or one teaspoon of lemon extract) and flour enough to roll very thin. Bake till crisp in a hot oven, and keep crisp by storing the snaps in tin cans."

TO HOLD MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR PRES. HARDING

All denominations in Woodstock will join in a union memorial service Friday morning in respect for the late president, Warren G. Harding. The service will start at 11 o'clock, the same hour set for the service at Marion, Ohio.

The oration is to be delivered by Congressman Richard P. Freeman of New London and Hon. Herbert W. Bowen, former minister to Venezuela is to read the memorial poem. Prayer will be offered by Rev. Henry T. Baker of East Woodstock.

The committee in charge comprises State Senator Clarence Harding Child, Albert H. Williams and Rev. Fosdick B. Harrison.

President Harding's ancestors were old Woodstock residents having lived in that place until about 100 years ago when the family moved to the west. Descendents of the Harding family still live in Woodstock. Among them is State Senator Child.

It is expected that people from many surrounding towns will attend the memorial service to pay final tribute to this honored member of an old Woodstock family.

Horse Railroad Time Table.

One of the old time tables of the horse railroad of Norwich back in the '70s has been placed on exhibition in the Main street windows of Reid & Hughes by Charles J. King. The exhibit has attracted considerable attention and recalls to the minds of the older residents of the city the days when trolley cars and automobiles were unknown quantities.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. William H. Clark.

The death of Honora Carroll McVey, wife of William H. Clark, occurred on Sunday evening about 8 o'clock at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Michael J. Carroll of 36 1-2 North Cliff street after a few days' illness.

Mrs. Clark was born in Ireland about 78 years ago, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Carroll, and came to this country when about 18 years of age, making her home in Norwich for about 60 years.

In St. Mary's church fifty-nine years ago she was united in marriage with Patrick McVey, who died in 1890. About twenty years ago she was again married in Brooklyn, N. Y., to William H. Clark, who survives her with two daughters, Mrs. Michael J. Carroll and Mrs. James T. Egan of Norwich and a step-daughter, Mrs. Edward Colgan of New Haven. There are also six grandchildren, Sister Cecelia of St. Agnes' Home, Hartford; Helen, Alice and Rose Buckley of Hartford, daughters of the late Mrs. Nellie Buckley; and the Misses Mildred L. and Margaret M. Carroll of Norwich.

Mrs. Clark was a member of St. Mary's parish and took an active interest in church affairs. She was a lover of her home and her children were her joy, being her greatest comfort during her last days. The news of her death comes as a shock to her many friends in this city, and the family has the sympathy of all in their hour of sorrow.

Mrs. George A. West

After an illness of about a week, following a shock, Agnes J. McNaught, widow of George A. West died Sunday morning at 10 o'clock, aged 74 years.

Mrs. West was born in Norwich April 8, 1849, the daughter of James and Janet Cluny McNaught and practically her entire life was spent in this city. Shortly after the Civil war she was united in marriage in this city with Geo. A. West. One child was born to them but lived only a few years. Mr. West died in Norwich about 10 years ago.

About ten years ago Mrs. West moved to Worcester, Mass., and made her home with her sister, Mrs. William Webb, but returned to Norwich a little over a month ago and made her home at 60 Boswell avenue.

She is survived by one sister, Mrs. Webb of Worcester, one brother, William McNaught of the Fall River line and several nieces and nephews.

INSTANTLY KILLED IN AUTO
CRASH AT WESTCHESTER CROSSING

Jack Jospe of Pleasant street Hartford, was instantly killed and nine other occupants of a Chevrolet truck driven by Meyer Dobin of Hartford, were injured about 8.15 o'clock Sunday morning, near the foot of Chamberlain hill at Colchester, when the truck collided with a Ford touring car driven by Harry Solomon of North Westchester.

The injured people were rushed to a Hartford hospital. Coroner Jeremiah J. Desmond of Norwich was summoned to Colchester and investigated the accident and gave permission to remove the body of Jospe to Hartford.

Dobin with a party of friends was on his way to Ocean Beach from Hartford and it is said, went tearing down the long steep grade above the Air Line railway crossing at a fast rate of speed. At the foot of the hill his truck began to overtake a Ford truck and Dobin realizing that he could not stop took a chance of going between the Ford truck and the Ford touring car of Mr. Solomon which was headed in the opposite direction. He failed to make the space between the passing automobiles, sideswiped the Solomon car and went for some distance befors the truck, then out of his control, overturned throwing the occupants to the ground.

According to Dobin he did not notice that one of his passengers was riding on the outside of the truck and Jospe who had taken the risk was hurled from the truck by the force of the impact with the Ford received a crushed skull, death being instantaneous.

Medical Examiner Cyrus E. Pendleton rendered medical aid until the Hartford people could be rushed back to Hartford. A New London ambulance arrived shortly afterwards and finding the injured cared for by the Hartford hospital returned home. The occupants of the truck escaped with cuts and bruises on head and arms, none being seriously injured.

The truck was considerably damaged losing a fender and dash board and other broken parts from overturning, and the Ford car was considerably damaged, Mr. Solomon escaping unhurt. Dobin was given a hearing befor Justice Fred E. Baker of Colchester at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and is being held on bonds of $3,000 charged with manslaughter. The hearing is to be held pending the recovery of the passengers in the Dobin truck. The state police at Hartford were notified and immediately took charge of the affairs, later announcing that the Dobin car was being driven with defective brakes.

The Chevrolet truck was owned by Smith and Kalman, a Hartford company and the party in the truck were friends of Dobin, all men, en route for an outing at the shore. The wreck attracted the attention of hundreds during the day.

HELD FOR DRIVING AUTO WHILE UNDER INFLUENCE

Albert J. Nutting, 49, of this city, was arrested in Norwich Town about ten o'clock Sunday night by Constable Fenton on a charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. Charles Doyon, 45, a native of Switzerland, who was in the machine, a Ford, with Nutting, was also arrested, the charge against his name being intoxication.

Nutting claimed at the police station that ignition trouble had developed in the machine and that he had drawn it up alongside the road intending to remain in it all night.

According to Constable Fenton the two men had a quart bottle of liquor with them in the machine and that they were both seen drinking from the bottle, and that Nutting attempted to operate the machine without lights, contrary to his order.

The two men were brought to the police station in the patrol wagon which was sent to Norwich Town in response to a request from the constable.

As the result of an escapade Friday night two Jewett City young men will be presented before Justice of the Peace William R. Palmer of the town of Griswold this (Monday) evening to answer charges preferred by two young ladies who are staying at a summer boarding house in Griswold.

From what can be learned of the case the two swains invited the girls to go for an automobile ride. After riding for nearly eight miles the girls became anxious to go home. Finding the only way was to get out of the machine and walked, they walked nearly a mile to a farm house from where they sent in a telephone call to Jewett City for assistance in returning home. Later in the evening an automobile took them to their boarding, and a grand juror, justice of the peace and a state officer started an investigation of the stories told by the girls.

FLAMES BURN HOLE IN STORE AWNING

Shortly before 8 o'clock Sunday evening the fire department received a telephone call for a fire at The Woman's Shop at No. 248 Main street, conducted by Harry Mandell. A can of chemical was used in extinguishing the blaze which burned a good sized hole in the awning.

A passerby noticed the fire and informed a police officer on Franklin square who sent in the call to the fire department through police headquarters. A man who was reading by an open window on the second story of the building knew nothing of the blaze until several of the firemen entered his room with a can of chemical which was used on the blaze through the window. It is thought that a lighted match dropped from the window was the cause of the blaze.

FUNERALS.

Archibald Mitchell

Tribute to the memory of Archibald Mitchell, one of the founders of The Porteous & Mitchell Company was paid Saturday afternoon when all stores in the city remained closed from 2 to 3.30 o'clock during the funeral services which were held at the late home at No. 315 Broadway.

Attending the funeral were many prominent business men, relatives, friends, employes, all gathered in respect for a man who has done much for the good of Norwich.

The services opened at 3 o'clock with the reading of the Scriptures and prayer by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, D. D. of New London.

Representative bodies in attendance were delegations from the Retail Merchant's association, employes of Porteous & Mitchell Co., in a body, directors of the Chelsea National bank, trustees of the Otis Library and a representation of the trustees of the Norwich Free Academy.

The beautiful floral tributes bore testimony to the esteem in which Mr. Mitchell was held. Burial was in the family plot in Yantic cemetery where Rev. Dr. Danforth conducted the committal service.

The honorary bearers were Gen. William A. Aiken, Charles E. Chandler, Henry A. Tirrell, Calvin H. Frisbie, John M. Lee, Zebulon R. Robbins, Frederick W. Lester and Charles D. Gallup. The active bearers were department men of The Porteous & Mitchell company and included the following: Frederick Sudlow, Willis T. Rogers, J. Fred Fleming, Arthur D. Hinkly, Eugene Gibson and J. Todd Hynd.

The Otis Library was closed during the hours of the funeral in memory of Mr. Mitchell.

Archibald Mitchell was born in Cupar, Fife, Scotland, September 13, 1844, and received his early education in that country. In Dundee, Scotland, he served his apprenticeship in the dry goods business and when a young man came to this country and entered the employ of Brown, Thompson and McWhirter of Hartford, now Brown-Thompson Co. It was in Hartford in 1877 that he married Miss Mary Foley of that city.

In March, 1873, with James Hislop and John Porteous, Mr. Mitchell came to Norwich and shortly afterwards leased the store at 170 Main street in the Richards' building.

It was a small store as stores go now, having about 1,300 square feet of floor space, but at that time it was considered a store of some size and the landlord, Charles L. Richards, since deceased, said to the new tenants, "You have all the room you will ever need." Five clerks in addition to the proprietors, constituted the entire working force of the new firm. Mr. Mitchell exercised a general supervision over the financial interests of the firm and with an executive ability of a high order he proved a wise and at the same time a conservative financier. His conservatism and wisdom in determining the early financial policy of the firm contributed largely toward establishing the position of stability which the present company occupies in the mercantile world.

Within a short time the seemingly big store became too small for the business and additional room was needed. This was gained by taking room in the old Bulletin building which additional space was devoted to the dress fabric department. A few years later a further extension was made by taking in the store in the Rockwell building, formerly occupied by N. and L. S. Winslow. This was an important step as it not only gave the firm a material increase in store area, but added a large frontage for display purposes. The firm's business increased even more rapidly with the addition mentioned and soon demanded further extension of store space.

The next step was the taking over of the two Main street stores of the Bulletin building formerly occupied by the post office and the stationary store of Charles A. Burnham, and a little later the quarters in the Richards building where had been the First National bank. This gave the firm a continuous frontage on Main street of 150 feet. Again in 1906 the firm made another enlargement, one of the most important additions of its mercantile career.

It leased the entire five floors of the Bulletin building and proceeded to fit up the additional room in the most up-to-date way. A modern elevator was installed, new departments were added and practically every department in the store was enlarged.

This big change provided for the people of Norwich a department store which in stock and equipment ranks first among the department stores of Eastern Connecticut.

In the meantime while they were developing the retail end of the business, a wholesale department had been added, occupying quarters in the Richards and Bulletin building on Water street, which was gradually built up on a corresponding scale with the retail department. It now occupies four large stores in the two buildings named and the stock carried is a very large and varied one. While naturally not so familiar to the regular patrons as the retail branch, it supplies many dealers in Norwich and vicinity with their entire stock of goods.

Three years after the opening of the Norwich store a New London branch was opened in charge of James Hislop who handled the firm's interests in that city. This was but a forerunner of many other departures. In March, 1885, a new store was opened in Grand Rapids, Mich., which is conducted under the name of Charles Trankla Co., and which has become one of the leading stores in that busy city of the middle west. Charles Trankla, a native of this city who gained his training in the local store of the company, is managing partner of the Grand Rapids store and he has directed its affairs with signal ability. In March, 1906, another store was established in Portland, Maine, being known as The Porteous, Mitchell & Braun Co., and was under the management of Robert Braun and the late John B. Porteous, both natives of Norwich, who gained their knowledge of the business with the parent house in this city.

At different times other stores have also been owned and operated in Fort Wayne, Ind., Saginaw, Mich., Detroit, Mich., and Middletown, Conn.

The progressiveness of the store was always noticeable and in character with the policy of the store in 1906 the business was incorporated under the title "The Porteous & Mitchell company," and several of the employes of the firm who had served a number of years were taken into the company at that time.

Mr. Mitchell did not confine his interests to his business alone but reached out and touched many civic interests of Norwich. He was at all times ready and willing to assist anything that was for the good of this community. He was a director of the Chelsea Savings bank and gave careful and businesslike advice in the affairs of this large banking house.

He was for a long period treasurer of the Otis library and at the time of his death he was a member of the board of trustees of the library. He was also an incorporator of the Norwich Free Academy.

A lover of music Mr. Mitchell at one time possessed some of the rarest violins in this country. These were gathered from all over the world and at different times articles on his collection appeared in the leading musical journals of the country. Among them were the "Bott" Stradivari, 1723; the "Earl" Stradivari, 1732; the "Jarnowick" 1741 and the "Healy" Stradivari, 1711.

The "Bott" is probably the most widely known violin in the United States. Its history during the last decads has been filed with startling incidents. At one time it was owned by the Duke of Cambridge, afterwards Louis Spohr. It was finally secured by the late Prof. John Bott, who when, a young man, had been a pupil of Spohr.

The "Earl" is typical of the period when it was made. There is a massiveness and weight which easily distinguishes it from any previous or later work of Stradivari. It was purchased about 1820 by the founder of the London Royal Academy of Music, the Earl of Westmoreland, while he was ambassador at Vienna.

The "Jarnowick" is a splendid specimen of the last type of the master. It is contemporary with the 1743 "Paganini" Guernari now preserved in the Municipal Palace at Genoa, which, in the hands of the great Maestro delighted so many thousands in Europe.

The "Healy" is one of the very few perfect Stradivari violins in existence.

Mr. Mitchell, at the time of his death still retained several of the rarest violins although he at different times had disposed of some of his collection.

Mr. Mitchell loved music for himself and also for others and the famous "Mitchell Course" was an outcome of his desire that others should hear the best in music, these concerts being held in Slater Memorial hall. He would book in these concerts the greatest and most noted musicians in the country and would sell tickets oftentimes for the course at a loss to himself. In this way Norwich has become known as a musical centre, Norwich lovers of music have thus had an opportunity to hear Geraldine Farrar, Alma Gluck, and other world famous artists at prices that could not be equalled anywhere in New England.

Besides his interest in music Mr. Mitchell was a nature lover and at one time his collection of butterflies contained some of the rarest types, following his custom of purchasing nothing but the best for his collection. He also was an ardent fisherman and again he showed his love for nature. He would spend hours at a time angling and studying the haunts of the fish. On several occasions he was known to have been a true sportsman by putting back many a fish that others would have gladly brought home to show.

Mr. Mitchell was the inventor of several different types of fishing tackle and flies which he used in salmon fishing expeditions to the Restigouche river in New Brunswick, where he was one of the owners of a salmon preserve and spent a few weeks almost every year.

For many years Mr. Mitchell was a resident of the West Side section of Norwich, but for the past dozen years or more he had resided in the old Lafayette S. Foster mansion on Broadway, which he purchased from Frank W. Browning after the homestead had been renovated. Here he entertained the musical artists whom he brought to Norwich and invited the musical lovers of Norwich to meet them.

He was raised in the Masonic order in Dundee, Scotland, and his interest in this order has been extensively carried on in Norwich by his son, Archibald Mitchell, Jr. He attended the old Broadway Congregational church now the United church.

In his death Norwich loses a citizen whose loss will be felt keenly. He was a staunch republican but never allowed politics to interfere with the welfare of the community. He never sought public office but was a citizen who at all times expressed his political beliefs by taking advantage of the vote. He also took an active interest in the welfare of Norwich boys, particularly the Boy Scouts and during one of the Liberty loan drives purchased a $5,000 bond from the boy in Troop 13 who passed a test given by the Scoutmaster, unknown to the boys, with the highest mark. In his death there is taken from the business, civic and social life of Norwich a most valuable citizen.

Surviving Mr. Mitchell are his wife, three children, Archibald Mitchell, Jr., Miss Isabel Mitchell, of Norwich, and Mrs. E. A. Olds of Englewood, N. J., and three sisters, Mrs. John Jamieson, Washington, D. C., Mrs. Donald MacPhail, Coatbridge, Scotland, and Miss Annie S. Mitchell of Cupar Fife, Scotland. There are also surviving eight grand children.

Out of respect for Mr. Mitchell the store of Porteous & Mitchell in this city remained closed Thursday, Friday and Saturday of last week, and the retail stores were closed Saturday afternoon during the funeral hour.

Miss Elizabeth Cummings

There was a large attendance of relatives and friends at the funeral of Miss Elizabeth Cummings held on Saturday morning from the late home on Washington avenue. DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Congregations assembled in Danielson's churches Sunday morning had their thoughts directed to the loss the nation sustained during the past week by the death of President Warren G. Harding.

At St. Alban's church the service at 10.45 was opened with prayer for the dead president and in the course of his sermon, Rev. Albert Jepson referred to President Harding's kind disposition and fine character and said that he had undoubtedly given his life for his country. Rev. Mr. Jepson also recalled the prophetic words of Mrs. Harding following President Harding's election that she feared that his term of office would bring tragic years for them.

At the Methodist-Congregationalist union service at the Methodist chuhch Rev. C. C. Tibbets made reference to President Harding's death in his prayer and of the nation's bereavement and asked the blessing of God on the government in these trying days.

Rev. J. W. Houck at the service at the Baptist church, of which denomination President Harding was a member, spoke with special reference to the dead president's Christianity and of his seeking guidance in prayer when considering momentous decisions. A flower-decorated flag in the president's memory was a feature at the Baptist church's services.

At St. James' church at all the masses of the day, Rev. John Roux, M. S., read President Coolidge's proclamation and asked the congregations to pray especially at the solemn service of the Forty Hours' devotion, opening at the high mass and continuing through to Tuesday morning, for President Harding and for President Coolidge and his counsellors. Especially Father Roux requested his parishioners to refrain during the present week from all amusements, as a mark of respect and mourning.

As a great economic question, the matter of a hard coal supply slipped into the nethermost background of great pressing issues on Sunday, when it was hot enough to silence the man given to asking that intolerable question—Is it hot enough for you?

There are lots of more or less reliable thermometers in this little town that went on record about 11 a. m. as registering the temperature at 96 and 98, and just a few of the reckless and unrestrained ones put the reading at an even 100.

That's the kind of weather that brings the icemen into the picture of pressing needs and makes the bathing resorts a Mecca of all who have a bathing suit and the energy to get where it is permissible to take a cooling plunge.

Following on the heels of Saturday's terrific heat, that of Sunday was extremely trying. At some of the church services instances were noted of worshippers collapsin. Some, too, were slightly overcome in their homes.

Instancing what real torrid weather will do to the enthusiasts who might so somewhere every Sunday or burst a rivet, it may be said that the motor traffic through Danielson was the lightest of any of the summer Sundays. Few drivers were willing to risk the discomforts attendant upon an alleged joy ride under such high temperature, not to mention the likelihood of blowouts or the need of changing a tire for any other reason. Trip after trip planned by local people were abandoned.

There was barely any breeze throughout the day, a fact that added to the general discomfort.

Danielson motorists who were at Providence Saturday afternoon to see the motor races at Narragansett track got fully as much as they bargained for—and then some more. It was baking hot on the grounds. The races were delayed in starting. Finally, in the big event, there was a serious accident. Getting off the grounds with a car was a wilting and trying experience in the jam of traffic. And on the way home one party of local man came across a wrecked car on the Hartford pike, off which the machine had dashed, going down a bank and killing a woman passenger in the plunge.

Officer Palmer of Groton came here Sunday to take Frank Rogers, of Dayville, into New London county to answer there today to a charge that he operated a motor vehicle thereabouts a few weeks ago without having a license to do so. Rogers it appears from officers' statements was allowed to go at the time with the understanding that he would return to face court charges and it is alleged failed to do so. He was arrested Saturday by state officers from the local barracks and held here until he could be turned over to the New London county officer.

There were indications at the week end that Danielson and all the surrounding country served by the People's Light and Power company, now owned by the Eastern Connecticut Power company, will get a lower rate on electricity. At the present time the KW price is 17 cents, with a discount allowed for prompt payment. The rate that one hears quoted is as low as 12 cents, and there will be great rejoicing here if such a rate is announced. The power company is understood to have had a very prosperous six months period in the first half of the present year and that a reduction in rates is forecasted.

Gypsies have a way of getting special information of interest to each other, from one band to another. This is said to account in a measure for the fact that gypsies are not so numerous in the territory hereabouts as they were earlier in the summer. Several bands of them have been hurriedly shooed away and kept on the move through eastern Connecticut because of some of their sharp practices being complained of by citizens. Apparently they have gone into new fields, at least for the time being.

Kermit Dizon and Max Bretschneider were at Crescent Beach over the week end.

Henry R. Samson of Fall River spent Sunday with friends in Danielson.

Prayers of the congregations at St. James' church were asked Sunday for a former pastor, Rev. P. J. Guinet, M. S., who is seriously ill in Fitchburg and whose condition has been regarded as critical for the past week.

Up to late Sunday afternoon, no arrests had been recorded in Danielson for the week-end period.

This week is expected to bring special activity in this section in the interest of the Windham House fund of Connecticut college.

Thunder storms in surrounding country late Sunday afternoon brought some relief from the sweltering heat of the day.

PUTNAM

Captain of Police William Jarvis when asked if certain proprietors of pool rooms were to be brought before him to show cause, if any, why their licenses should not be revoked intimated that this was so but was loath to give any specific information regarding the matter. Several proprietors of pool rooms have been in trouble with the law within the past month and it was rumored that their pool room licenses might be revoked. Under the statute, all proprietors of public pool rooms are required to procure a license from the chief of police and the license is subject to revocation for cause.

Nathan Eccleston, for several years a salesman of automobiles in Putnam and surrounding territory, has resigned and is going to Worcester in a similar line. Mr. Eccleston is succeeded by Earl Hughes.

George Farquar, of Putnam, has been in Boston the past week attending a meeting of the Massachusetts Caledonian societies. Mr. Farqua was one of the judges of the "pipers." Mr. Farqua is himself a piper of ability.

James Heenan, whose quotations from Shakespears proved a factor in having his case continued when he was in the city court two weeks ago, was before the court again Saturday morning on a charge of intoxication. James was not effervescing with oratory Saturday morning. Possibly he drank a different brew. He was not at all in his former good spirits, in fact the spirits he had imbibed had made him a sick man. He was sentenced to 30 days and costs for the immediate cause of his appearance and will also have an extra 20 days in working out the balance of his former fine, which had not been paid.

The fund being raised for the nurses' home at the Day Kimball hospital is now on the last quarter of the $20,000 desired. A total of $15,050 has been paid in or pledged. Every week sees various entertainments put on for the fund benet and soon a street fair will be held. This, it is hoped, with the addition of contributions expected, will round out the sum needed to start and complete the work of building the home.

Judge Clarence H. Child, of the probate court of Woodstock, is investigating the claims made by three people as heirs of Frank W. Gordon who died suddenly in Woodstock two weeks ago, leaving an estate estimated at from thirty to forty thousand dollars. Mr. Gordon left no valid will and as he talked little about himself no one knew of any relatives. During the past week three persons have given notice that they intended to make a claim as heirs —Mrs. Jeanette Doane of Hartford, who says she is a half-sister, Vaughan Brown of Monson, Mass., and Gordon Brown of Winfield, Mass., sons of William J. Brown, who, it is alleged, is a half brother of Mr. Gordon. Judge Child said Saturday tha these are the only claimants to date. In a safe deposit box in the First National bank of Putnam securities valued at $30,000 were found. These were made up of Liberty loan bonds, town and municipal bonds, real estate mortgages, certified bank checks and notes on which money had been loaned. Mr. Gordon also owned the farm in Woodstock on which he lived alone.

In response to a call for bids for the transportation of children of the town of Thompson to and from school, the contract has been awarded to William Haggerty of Webster. The contract was on a three years' basis, Mr. Haggerty was the lowest bidder but neither his bid nor the bid of others was made public by the selectmen.

Leon N. Walker, formerly of North Grosvenordale, now of Putnam, on account of his removal to this city has tendered his resignation as first selectman of the town of Thompson and the resignation has been accepted. As only a few weeks remain before the the annual town meeting, no special meeting to fill the vacancy will be called.

Mrs. Silas M. Wheelock spent Friday in the city, returning Saturday to her summer cottage at Pleasant Vity, R. I.

Richard M. Holmes of Worcester spent the week-end with his grandmother, Mrs. A. W. Macdonald.

Work is being done on the Tourtellotte Memorial echapel in the Grove street cemetery. It is hoped to have the building completed before winter.

At a meeting in the rooms of Anselm Mayotte Post, American Legion, Friday evening, Rev. Charles F. Bernard, pastor of St. Mary's church, Mrs. Lillie Leach of the Woman's Relief Corps, George L. Padgett of the Observer, R. C. Jenkins, superintendent of schools, and Dr. E. F. Perry, past president of the legion, were appointed a committee of arrangement for a memorial service for President Harding, at the Bradley theatre, on the day of the funeral in Washington. The memorial will probably consist of music, an address by some prominent speaker and other tributes.

Miss Yvonne Roi of Smith street is spending a week with relatives in Nashua, N. H., and Worcester, Mass.

Can any member of the geography class bound Dobrudja?

For the benefit of those who can't, it is a province of southeastern Roumania, bounded by the black sea, the Danube and Bulgaria and it is the locale of Dorothy Dalton's latest Paramount Picture, "The Law of the Lawless," which will be the big feature at the Strand theatre for 3 days beginning today.

According to the geographies and Konrad Bercovici, the Gypsy author who wrote the story of "The Law of the Lawless" directly for the screen, the province is the melting pot of the near-East, populated by Tartar tribes and wandering bands of gypsies, and it is of these that Bercovici writes in this picture.

Dorothy Dalton plays a role of a young Tartar girl, daughter of a once wealthy Tartar landowner who, through reverses, has been forced to pledge his entire worldly possessions including his daughter to the local money lender. The latter offers to cancel the debt in return for the hand of the daughter. But the girl has a sweetheart and refuses the offer.

As a result of this rebuff, the money lender forecloses his loan and orders the girl's father to be sold on the auction block. His daughter offers herself in his father's stead and Costa, the leader of a wandering band of gypsies, buys her after a spirited bidding contest with the money lender. Her Tartar sweetheart follows the gypsie tribe but proves himself a coward. The girl discovers that she is in love with her gypsie master who has married her, gypsie fashion, but has respected her wish to remain aloof.

Eventually the gypsies led by the girl capture the Tartar Village, destroy the treacherous money lender and all ends happily. It is a story of stirring action, rioutous color and romance. The star is supported bythree of the screen's most capable leading men—Theodore Kosloff, who plays the Tartar sweetheart, Charles de Roche, a French star who makes his American debut in this Paramount Picture as the gypsie chief, and Tully Marshall, who has the part of the money lender.

Other members of the cast are Margaret Loomis and Fred Huntley. Victor Fleming directed.

Round No. 9 of the famous H. C. Wetwer's Fighting Blood stories will be the second feature and a comedy and news round out this fine program.

BREED THEATRE

The reappearance on the screen of Francis S. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, after several years of highly successful work on the speaking stage, is announced at the Breed theatre today and Tuesday, when the gifted stars will be seen in "Modern Marriage," a brilliant drama of high society produced under the supervision of Whitman Bennett, and only recently completed.

The cast is in keeping with the significance of the event. It includes, besides the stars in roles perfectly suited to their gracious personalities and undisputed ability, Ernest Hilliard, Roland Bottomley, Zita Moulton and Arnold Lucy, all very well known on Broadway stages as well as Pauline Dempsey, the colored commedienne, and Blanche Craig, with a score of minor players and last, but far from least, Frankie Evans.

He is a child actor of conspicuous ability who adds much to the emotional situations in the story. His acting is such that the most conservative New York critics predict that a few more pictures of equal opportunity will place him among the leaders of juvenile screendom. He is only three-and-a-half now and has appeared in but one previous picture, yet the child displays a lack of self-consciouaness which many a veteran actor never achieves, as well as a fresh, unspoiled charm which never can be acquired but must be born in the child who elects to do screen work.

Frankie Evans probably comes by his talent through inheritance though neither of his parents is connected with the stage or screen. His father, however, had a youthful passion of theatricals which had to be indulged secret as his family is high in church circles, Frankie's grandfather being bishop of Montreal, and his uncle dean of the Episcopal church.

The boy's uncommon ability is thus traced, while his apparent familiarity and complete at-homeness in the first motion picture studio he visited are things that cannot be accounted for. It is enough to record the beginning to what promises to be a bright career.

Other pictures on the bill include the Pathe news and Educational comedy.

Good Morning Mr. Garage Man!

The Confidence of your customers is a valuable business asset. We don't know of any better way to earn it than by recommending Converse Compression Tread Tires. Delaney's Garage, for instance, writes:

"Converse Tires have created a great demand for themselves on their merits and aristocratic appearance and have been instrumental in creating many friends for us. We would not consider our garage complete without a liberal stock and have yet to have a customer find fault with the mileage or service Converse Tires have given him."

YOU can SAFELY recommend

Converse COMPRESSION TREAD Cord Tires

No Other Tire Has It

Converse Compression Tread Principle means added miles in every Converse Tire. When inflated the sidewalls expand, bringing tread downward and compressing it about 8%, squaring the tread with the wearing surface. The weight of your car increases this compression, giving more rubber where the wear comes.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

AT THE GRAY CASTLE.

In the last story I told you how Little Jack Rabbit's magic horn blew the leaves off the trees, frightening away the robbers who had tried to steal his purse. Well, after that, the little bunny boy put the horn back in his pocket and hopped along till by and by, after a while he came to a lonely spot in the woods where a great castle stood, gloomy and dark.

A little sleepy yellow bird began to sing.

But when he knocked on the door no one answered, so, turning the lock with a great key which hung on a chain, he entered. All was still and dark inside, but after a while, he grew accustomed to the darkness and saw a bird cage hanging from the ceiling. On touching it, a little sleepy yellow bird began to sing, very soft and low as if it feared to make a noise.

"Turn back, turn back, brave bunny boy,
Within this castle do not stay,
A band of thirteen wicked thieves
Will come at break of day."

Then, nestling its head under its wing, the little yellow bird went to sleep. But Little Jack Rabbit wasn't dismayed and being a curious bunny boy, he hid behind a great stool. Pretty soon, not very long, a little cricket chirped softly:

"Go away, go away, while yet there's time,
For thieves live here who deal in crime,
And if they find you in this house
They'll kill you like a little mouse."

And, goodness me, wouldn't you have thought the bunny boy would have hopped out the door? But no, he just sat there, grinning at the friendly little cricket.

All of a sudden, there came a great tramping of feet and in came the band of thieves.

"Has any one been here?" asked one, tapping on the little yellow bird's cage with his finger, but the little bird kept her head under her wing and made believe she was asleep. Then the big robber came over to the fireplace and shouted:

"Come out of your hole little black cricket and tell me if anyone has been here!"

But the little cricket stayed where he was, for he didn't want to tell a lie, you see.

"Well, now we'll count our money," said the big robber and seating themselves at the table, he and his comrades emptied the money which they had stolen from travelers during the night. After that, they all went to bed except the big robber, who began to look in all the corners and under the chairs. At last he came to the spot where Little Jack Rabbit was hiding behind the big stool, and then, all of a sudden, he spied him.

"Ha, ha, ho, ho!" he laughed on seeing the little rabbit, "I knew there was somebody here!" and, reaching down, he was about to seize him, when, quick as a wink, the little bunny boy slipped between his legs and hopped out of the door, but, Oh dear me, just as the frightened little bunny reached the last step, his foot caught and down he fell and before he could hop away, the robber with a yell picked him up, and now what happens after that tomorrow's story will relate, so please be good till then and wait.

CHELSEA SAVINGS BANK

Franklin Square Norwich, Conn.

At a special meeting of the board of directors of the Chelsea Savings Bank, held August 4, 1923, the following minute and resolution was unanimously passed:

Minute: Mr. Archibald Mitchell was elected an incorporator of this bank September 16, 1896; and on September 18, 1907, a director.

In the ensuing sixteen years and up to the time of his last affliction he has been a faithful attendant at the meetings of the board, taking a deep interest in them, and giving his valuable advice from time to time on the matters coming before the board. He was ever ready to do his share and give of his best.

Starting as he did from small beginnings, he reached a well deserved success in business and when this was secure, giving time for other things, he was not satisfied to sit by and rest but mingled with and quickened our community life by his efforts in the field of music, of which he was passionately fond.

Through his death this community loses with us a companion, well-wisher and friend.

Therefore, Resolved, That we tender our sympathy to his family, attend his funeral in a body, cause this minute to be entered on the records of the bank, published in the newspapers of this city, and a copy sent to his family.

Attest:

FRANK HEMPSTEAD, Secretary.

RESOLUTIONS

At a special meeting of the trustees of the Otis Library, held on Saturday, August 4, the following resolutions were unanimously voted:

The Trustees of the Otis Library desire to express thier deep sorrow at the death of their honored and beloved companion, Archibald Mitchell, for the past fifteen years a member of this board; and for the past four years, its treasurer.

His deep interest in the library was shown by the regularity of his attendance upon the stated or special meetings of the Trustees and by an appreciative participation in all its proceedings.

Norwich has lost one of its most valuable and patriotic citizens.

This Board extends to his family their most heartfelt sympathy.

It was voted to engross the above upon the permanent records of the Library and to send a copy of the same to the family of Mr. Mitchell.

Harbor Flags

A tramp in ballast from Le Havre's quay
Is kicking slowly up the crowded bay,
While o'er her stern the Union Jack swings wide,
A splendid stain across the Raglan dusk.

Along the Brooklyn piers a barkentine
Ill from Palermo on the orangest isle
Displays the national colors, red and green.
Whose folds are lifting in the rising breeze.

Down through the Narrows swings a freighter trim—
Oil for the Orient—and we can note
From leaning taffrail where her colors swim,
The streaming, rising sun of old Japan.

These banners riding on our Western gales
Hint of exotic lands that stretch away
Beyond the steamer smoke and sunset sail,
Deep in the splendor of a sunrise day.
—Thomas J. Murray.

The Memory

Down the little crooked street that went to meet the sea
The torn nets were drying on the fence—
(She was bending at the old nets—she never looked at me—)
On a blue September morning with a West wind blowing free.

She never raised her head to watch me pass.
'Tis all I took away with me—a blue September morning.
The little street, the green grass, and one girl's scorning.

I've forgot my father's house—the house that saw me
Forgot my mother's blessing at the last;
There's nothing but the old nets tangled like and torn
And the head that bent above them, yellow-colored as the corn.

That never raised to watch me as I passed.
I wish I'd be forgetting it—a blue September morning,
The blowing grass, the torn nets—and one girl's scorning.
Theodosia Garrison.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Mrs. Knagg—When we were first married you used to say you loved the ground I walked on.

Husband—So I did, that ground. But we've moved six times since then.—Boston Transcript.

"I want a pair of the best gloves you have," said Mrs. Nurfitch, at the glove counter.

"Yes, ma'am," replied the polite salesman. "How long do you want them?"

"And the difference between you and a glass," said the sharp girl, "is that the glass is polished."—Pathfinder.

Hospital Caller—"Poor man, you certainly have been all shot up."

The Victim—"Yes, I had so many bullet holes bored through me that the boys behind me complained of the draft."—American Legion Weekly.

He—"I know Janie has been engaged to Jim for fifteen years, but why don't that make he the greatest optimist in the world?"

She—"Well, he's 40 now and making $30 a week and she swears she'll never marry a man unless he's making $30,000 a year."—New York Sun and Globe.

"I'm afraid, dearest," said young Mr. Justwedd, "we shan't be able to afford any help at first."

"Oh, Tom, what ever will the neighbors say if they see me doing my own work?"

GIRL HAS NARROW ESCAPE AT LAKE

Miss Katherine Hickey, daughter of Sheriff Michael J. Hickey of Montville narrowly escaped drowning Sunday afternoon at Gardner Lake when she became frightened and went down in about 8 feet of water.

Miss Hickey was near a raft when she suddenly went down and grasped the leg of a boy swimming nearby dragging him under with her. A Boy Scout who was nearby grasped the rail of a boat which was anchored nearby and reaching down pulled the Hickey girl up by the hair, endeavoring to hold her out of water until aid could reach them. Other swimmers went out and held Miss Hickey and the boy until a rowboat came alongside and both were taken into it.

Dr. Jer J. Manwaring of Norwich was at the lake and rendered first aid Miss Hickey later being taken to the home of Arthur C. Brown, owner of the grove, where she regained her strength. Only for the quick action of the boy whose name could not be learned Miss Hickey would have lost her life. The near drowning cast a gloom for a time over the annual outing of the Norwich & Fish & Game association which was being held at the grove at that time.

Power Yacht Disabled

The power yacht on which Prof. Fred D. Mabrey of Englewood, N. J., is cruising with two young sons of a wealthy Paterson silk manufacturer, broke down in New London harbor at the week end and had to be towed to Scott's to be repaired. The yachting party sleeps on board the craft, but have been guests of Mr. Mabrey's father, Louis Mabrey and Mrs. Mabrey, at Ocean Beach. During Saturday afternoon they motored up to Norwich that the boys might visit a number of historic places; they stopped at the D. A. R. museum, saw the Mason monument, Uncas monument, the graves of the French soldiers in the ancient burial ground at Norwich Town and other points of interest.

Today they will visit Camp Templeton Niantic later motoring to Newport. Prof. Mabrey's 13 year old son, John was a member of the motor party to Norwich Saturday.

General Pedro Nel Ospina, the president of Colombia, was once a student in the engineering school of the University of California.

INFANT'S BODY FOUND IN WOODS NEAR EDWARD'S HILL

The body of an infant boy was found Sunday afternoon about 4 o'clock in a clump of bushes near Edwards Hill, off Talman street. The discovery of the infant's body was made by Santos Raggato of 117 Talman street and Chanel Latasoge of 136 Talman street, who were taking a walk through the woods in that vicinity. Mr. Raggato noticed what appeared to be a bundle in the bushes and stopping to investigate found that the bundle contained a child's body.

Leaving the body where they found it the two men started for the city and on the way met Officer Daniel O'Neil and told him of the finding of the body. Officer O'Neil and the two men went to the police station where Chief Linton was notified and he detailed Officer O'Neil to secure the body. The two men directed the officer to the spot and the infant's body was taken to the police station.

Coroner J. J. Desmond was notified and will conduct an investigation today (Monday). The body was loosely wrapped in Brown paper and indications are that it was left in the clump of bushes within the past 48 hours. The child was fully developed. There is no clue to the identity of the parents.

Medical Examiner C. C. Gildersleeve viewed the body at the police station early Sunday evening and gave permission for its removal to undertaking rooms of Henry Allen and Son company.

THE H. E. BOLLES COLLECTION OF ANTIQUE FURNITURE

In a pamphlet issued by the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York, concerning "An American Wing," the gift of Robert W. and Emily Johnston deForest, a section is devoted to a description of the Bolles collection of furniture placed in that wing.

H. Eugene Bolles, of Boston, a lawyer by profession, was a cousin of George S. Palmer, fromerly of Norwich, and began collecting old furniture when, as the pamphlet says, "there were still many sections of the country uncombed by the dealer and the itinerant collector. Enjoying association with men like Albert Hosmer and Irving P. Lyon, recognized authorities as well as pioneers in the art, he succeeded in enlarging his collection beyond the bounds of contemporaries —including at length many pieces from the former's collection and all of the seventeenth century pieces in the latter group.

"His collection was bought by Mrs. Russell Sage, in 1910, and was presented by her to the Metropolitan Museum in the same year. Thus, representing the industry and knowledge of three collectors of distinction, it finds a permanent home where it is available to students of the industrial arts for all time.

"The total number of pieces of furniture—not including the examples of pewter and other metal work, leather work and textiles which it also embraces—is 434. Of these, six pieces dating from the sixteenth century were brought into the country by the first settlers, 144 pieces belonging to the 17th century are partly of native workmanship and partly of English make; and 258 pieces belong to the 18th century, when the local craftsmen's shops were in full operation, but when many fine pieces were still imported. Thirty-four pieces of the collection are of early 19th century make."

After enumerating the articles of the Bolles collection—chests, court and press cupboards, tables, chairs, stools and boxes, walnut and mahogany highboys, lowboys, chests of drawers, desks, mirrors and clocks—everything, in fact used in the households of the period—Henry W. Kent, of Norwich Town, secretary of the museum, who writes up the collection, concludes: "While emphasis may be laid upon the value of the Bolles collection in connection with the study of the development of the craft of cabinet-making in America—it may be used to illustrate a chapter in the yet-to-be-written history of our industrial arts—it ought to be remembered that this is not the only point of view from which the collection should be considered. It furnishes just as valuable material in another field, which has not yet received the attention of the writers of books, the history of our national arts of design. Here may be seen the give and take in inherited forms and motives of design among the different crafts, and, what is more interesting and important, the local variations of the inherited styles, and the original contributions—for these have been made—to the general grammar of ornament."

In the museum collection is included a number of Norwich pieces, notably the Ebenezer Huntington desk, a W. W. Backus chair, and others.

TROLLEY HITS AUTOMOBILE NEAR TAFT'S STATION

An automobile owned by John Lesemann of 3 Shipping street was badly damaged about 7.45 o'clock Saturday night when struck by a south bound trolley car near the curve just above Taft's Station.

The Lesemann car was parked on the trolley tracks and was empty when a Taftville extra returning to the car barn at Greeneville swung around the curve. Motorman Murphy had the light on his car dimmed and before he could stop the automobile had been struck and a right forward wheel broken and fender badly bent.

There were no passengers on the trolley which was in charge of Conductor Casavant.

The wrecked car was pulled from the tracks and the trolley proceeded to the carbarn where the accident was reported.

ENTERTAINED IN HONOR OF DAUGHTER'S BIRTHDAY

Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Schwartz of 23 Maple street entertained recently at their cottage at Ocean Beach in honor of the 9th birthday of their youngest daughter, Gertrude Virginia Schwartz. A number of relatives and several of her friends were present and enjoyed playing games. Refreshments of ice cream, fruits, cake and candy were served by Mrs. Schwartz. The young hostess received several beautiful gifts. The party broke up about 6 o'clock.

Pianist at Y. M. C. A. Service

Earle L. Sparks played the piano for the pictures and also played the accompaniment skilfully when George A. Turner sang "Some Day the Silver Cord Will Break," at the Y. M. C. A. service Sunday afternoon.

DISTINGUISHED GUESTS AT FISH AND GAME OUTING

The Norwich Fish and Game association has held several annual outings, but not all have been attended by as many distinguished guests as were present at the fourth annual outing Sunday at the old fishing grounds at Gardner Lake.

As guests of the association were Lieutenant Governor Hiram Bingham, who dropped in for several hours, coming from his summer residence in Salem; J. Fred Baker, a former Norwich boy, clerk of the last state senate; Prof. Harry W. Foote, of Yale university, Robert B. Chappell, New London county game warden; E. S. Teft, secretary of the New London Fish and Game association, and William H. Hawes of Canterbury, that grand old man who still handles the rod and can whip the fly out for better than 100 feet, a feat not often equalled by men half his age.

The affair was entirely informal and until the afternoon programme it was either fish, go boating, enjoy the delightful music being furnished by the band directed by John M. Swahn, or sit in the grove and enjoy the comradeship of friends.

Many took advantage of the fishing but evidently the bass had heard that the Norwich association anglers were coming, for they gave up biting almost entirely, only a few good catches being made.

Lieutenant Governor Bingham and his party joined heartily in the activities. Lieut. Governor Bingham's ancestors years ago lived in and around Norwich, and Mr. Baker at one time was with The Norwich Bulletin.

Shortly after one o'clock an excellent chowder was served by the dinner committee in Brown hall, the meal being topped off with soda water, watermelon and roasted green corn. Before the members enjoyed the dinner America was softly played by the band and all stood with bowed heads as a tribute to the memory of President Harding.

In the afternoon the various contests were run off, members competing for prizes offered by the association for skill in bait casting and fly casting. The first event was bait casting for distance, first prize going to L. LaPage, distance average for five casts, 113 feet; second, George W. Dolbeare, average 90 feet; third, Lewis J. Oat, average 86 feet. Second contest, bait casting, 50 feet for accuracy; first, H. Bamer, average for five tries, 1 foot 1 inch of the mark; second, B. Barnes, average 1 foot, 3 inches; third, George Dolbeare, average 1 foot, 10 inches. Third event, fly casting for distance; first, George Dolbeare, best distance 62 feet; second, Lewis J. Oat, distance 56 feet. Fly casting for accuracy, first George Dolbeare, average in five tries, 4 hits, 1 miss; second, Louis J. Oat, 3 hits, 2 misses.

The prize of President E. Louis Young, a casting reel, for best average in all events, was won by George Dolbeare. The prize for the largest catch for the day was won by John J. Parsons with a bass weighing 2 3-4 pounds; second to William Huntington with a bass weighing 2 1-2 pounds.

The judges of the events were William H. Hawes, R. B. Chappell, J. B. Oat, W. B. Young and Q. S. Sanford.

During the afternoon Mr. Hawes gave an exhibition of fly casting for distance and although handicapped by a cross wind this grand old knight of the road and line whipped the tiny fly through the air and dropped it lightly into the water 90 feet away from the float.

The success of the outing was due to the untiring work of the committee in charge comprising William W. Ives, John H. Carney, E. Louis Young, George W. Dolbeare, Joseph L. Oat, Daniel Polsky and Dr. J. J. Donahue.

BIG RUSH ORDER FOR HEAVY BLACK CLOTH
(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Aug. 5.—Niantic is to furnish a good portion of the mourning display in the business section of New York city for the Harding funeral. The cloth furnished is what is known by the trade as decorative bunting and is a weave that, dyed a heavy black, is exceptionally desirable for mourning emblems. The Thames Dyeing and Bleaching company has an order for 60,000 yards that must be supplied before Tuesday night at which time the body of the dead president is to reach Washington. The order has kept the mill at work day and night for about three days. The cloth will be in the hands of the agent as soon as it can be gotten there. It is believed the display of mourning in New York the coming week will be on a more general scale than has ever been known.

CITY MANAGER GOVERNMENT NOT LIKED BY ALL NEW LONDONERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Aug. 5.—This Monday evening, the city council is expected to thrash out the question of automobile parking on the business streets of the city. It is a matter that has aroused as much discussion as any topic that has come to the front in years.

The police have been ordered to restrict parking on Bank street at night, but as there is an ordinance that allows unlimited parking on the west side of that street now the police simply wink when asked where they get authority for trying to enforce any such rule. The fact is that the police have been defied in this matter and the officers, realizing that they have no authority, simply make a bluff at enforcing the order.

The police were informed tonight that a Huntington street man was beating his wife. Patrolmen George Laboue and George Perkins speeded to the house, but when they arrived there the man had disappeared.

The annual picnic of the Knights of Columbus was held today at Red Top and was attended by about 200 members. The day was spent in feasting and participating in athletic events.

An automobile, owned and driven by Howard F. Harvey of Providence and a machine, owned and driven by Robert W. Mackay of Waterbury, were in collision this afternoon at Ocean Beach. The former machine was considerably damaged.

The annual picnic of New London lodge of Elks will take place Sunday, Sept. 16th when the members will spend the day at Paradise Point on Long Island and near Greenport. The members will go to Paradise Point by steamer Nelseco and will be accompanied by either the Fort Wright or the 192nd Co., C. A. C. band.

Anthony, Jr., the 20 months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Bettencourt of No. 157 Crystal avenue developed a case of infantile paralysis. Other contagious diseases reported to the health department during the week were seven of measles and one of mumps.

Harry Manheimer and family have moved from Starr street to Tilley St.

George A. Darrow has sold a building lot on Darrow street to Byron E. Wilkinson of Waterford.

A woman will seek to sit in the city council the next two years, for Saturday Emily C. Speirs was nominated for the office. Mrs. Speirs' petition was circulated by Mrs. Mary E. Bishop and contained the signatures of many women voters. Another petition nominating William C. Fox for the office was filed Saturday with City Clerk Julian D. Moran. Mr. Fox is at present a member of the council and his friends desire that he be retained in office. The filing of the petition makes four candidates to seek election, the other two being Lucius E. Whiton and Waldo E. Clark, both seeking re-election. The election will take place next month.

An automobile owned and operated by William Smith of No. 33 Wall St., was in collision on State street Saturday morning with an automobile owned and operated by Victor V. Visca of Niantic. Both machines were damaged.

Harry Hildebrandt of Quaker Hill, Janet Gagnon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Gagnon of Ocean avenue and Hina Eggleston of Uncasville, were patients discharged at Lawrence hospital Saturday.

Mrs. Mary A. F. Cogan, widow of James Cogan, died Friday night at her residence, 8 Union street, after a brief illness. Mrs. Cogan is survived by two sons, James O. and Hugh A. Cogan and by two daughters, Misses Mary A. and Frances D. Cogan.

The funeral of Laura Fitch, wife of Robert H. Clark, was held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at her home, 39 Waller street. The services were conducted by Rev. Frederick Haste, rector of the Asbury Episcopal church, Groton. The bearers were Charles and Hugh Prentis, Frederick Fitch and Alfred Colt. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Funeral services for George L. Holdridge were held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at his home, 78 Bayonet street, Rev. Joseph R. Elder, pastor of Huntington street Baptist church, officiating. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Rachael, widow of William P. Anderson, 549 Main street, died at Lawrence hospital Saturday morning. Mrs. Anderson was under treatment at the institution but a few days.

State's Attorney Hadlai A. Hull is indisposed at his home on Vauxhall street, Attorney Hull has not had sound health in some time.

City Manager Barlow made it known a few days ago that he would consider applications for appointment as supernumerary policeman, but since that time but one candidate has sought appointment. An ordinance provides that the city manager appoint twelve supernumerary officers so that their services will be obtainable in case of an emergency, but to date there are but four such officers.

Ralph Shock, Western Union company messenger, residing at 86 Pearl street, was painfully injured Saturday afternoon when thrown from his bicycle on State street, landing on his head and sustaining severe bruises and shock. As the cyclist neared the intersecting streets, Lawrence P. Marshall of Springfield, Mass., stepped from the walk to cross the street. As Marshall walked from in front of a parked automobile he stepped directly in front of the cyclist with the result that Shock's cycle collided with Marshall. The jar caused the lad to be thrown to the pavements. Traffic Officer Walter Rehn caused the youth to be taken to the office of a physician for treatment.

George Gates, formerly of New London, now residing in Minneapolis, Mo., is spending a few days with relatives in this city.

The present city manager form of government will have been in operation in New London two years, October 1st. Whether it will be continued another two years will be determined by the voters next month for Saturday it became known that a petition will be circulated next week for the purpose of securing the signatures of the voters requesting the city council to call a special election to act on the matter. The disclosure of the plan to do away with the present form of government came as a surprise to the advocates of the abolishment of the old form of government. However, many voters and taxpayers desire a return of the old municipal government and they believe that a majority of the voters are of the same opinion, contending that the operation of the city's business has been a failure during the past two years. The petition prepared will be circulated throughout the five wards.

As soon as the required number of signers have been obtained, the petition will be presented to the city council, probably at its meeting the 12th or 20th inst. Two thousand five hundred and forty signatures will be necessary to make the petition a valid one.

The automobile owned and operated by John T. Hooper of Ocean avenue and a truck owned and driven by James L. Shaw were in collision Saturday evening at the corner of Huntington and Jay streets.

Myles Leary reported to the police Saturday evening that he had been robbed at the Y. M. C. A. According to Leary he went to the rooms of the association late in the afternoon and later decided to take a plunge in one of the pools. While he enjoyed the swim the thief went to Leary's locker and stole $17 from the pocket of his coat.

The police were summoned to the home of Miss Julia Driscoll, 202 Broad street this forenoon when Miss Driscoll complained that a woman was at her house and acted as though she was mentally unsound. Detective Sergeant Charles Hammond and Patrolman Augustus Ray found Katie Lynch, a domestic, about 30 at the Driscoll home. She was brought to the police station, where she was treated by a physician, then allowed to go to the home of a relative.

An automobile owned and driven by Frank Saunders of 14 Whittlesey street and a machine, owned and operated by James F. Mileski, 98 Fifth street, Norwich, were in collision on State street this forenoon.

An automobile, owned and driven by Otto Vois of Brooklyn, N. Y., and a car owned and driven by Miss Zara Tertes of New Britain, collided this afternoon at the corner of Broad St., and Jefferson avenue.

Miss Margaret Crabbe, a camper at Camp Mystic, was arrested Saturday afternoon by Traffic Officer Clyde Murphy, charged with violation of the automobile law in parking her machine more than a foot from the curb on State street and for failing to be possessed of operator's license and registration. She will be presented in the police court tomorrow morning.

John Manning of Colman street was arrested Saturday evening by Patrolman Clarence Wells and George Labouse, upon complaint of his father, James Manning, charged with breach of the peace. Later the elder Manning appeared at the police station and became security on a bond of $50 for the appearance of the young man in the police court Monday morning.

Max Winters of Hartford, was arrested by Motorcycle Officer William Babcock this morning, charged with violation of the automobile law in failing to reduce the speed of his automibile when passing an intersecting street, on Broad street and for failing to give proper signals.

Steamer Plymouth brought the largest crowd of excursionists of the season to New London this afternoon when close to 2,500 diversion seekers from Fall River were passengers on the boat.

Arthur Baker, a sailor stationed at the submarine base, was arrested by Motorcycle Officer William Babcock, charged with violation of the automobile law this afternoon. Baker was operating an automobile, but had failed to provide himself with an operator's license and registration.

The police raided two houses of ill fame shortly before midnight, the places being of the "black and tan" variety conducted by colored parties. About 11.30 o'clock Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Patrolmen John Cavanaugh, Howard Sloan, George Labouse, William Manica and George Perkins visited the house at 16 Hill street. Larney Brewer, employed by the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad as a freight handler, was arrested, charged with being the proprietor of the place, Viola Mayo and Lillian Hazard, both colored and Robert Bingham, of Hartford, a soldier in camp at Camp Templeton, Niantic, and Harvey Turner, a sailor aboard the U. S. S. Camden, were also taken into custody, charged with frequenting. The Mayo woman furnished a surety on a bond of $200 for her appearance in the police court Monday morning, but the others were locked up being unable to obtain a bondsman.

Following the raid at the Hill street house, Sergeant Murphy and Patrolmen Cavanaugh and Labouse went to 11 Church street and arrested the proprietress, Alice Scott, together with Charles Truell, a freight handler and Edith Small, the two being charged with fornication. The Scott woman obtained a surety on her bond of $200 but Truell and his companion, were locked up, as they could not secure bondsmen.

Maria R. Corr, alias Maria Naiso, was found drunk on Sparyard street Saturday evening by Patrolman Henry Hick. She was locked up.

On the 31st of July the period expired within which taxpayers could settle their bills with the city for the year without the added interest of 9 per cent. per annum. The receipts were larger than ever before known in New London for a single tax levy. They were $98,780.29 in excess of a year ago, and in total amounted to $787,267.39. In July alone the collections were $52,896.14. That was the period in which the taxpayers were hurrying to escape the added interest. The taxes known as "personal," formerly called poll taxes, amounted this year to August 1 to $10,937.90, or a little over $1,000 more than was collected a year ago. The tax rate has been reduced, but the sum in dollars and cents which property owners have paid is greatly in excess of what they ever paid before.

In the police court Saturday Stefan Yankowsky, a dock laborer, was charged with abusing his wife. He admitted the accusation, but said he only gave her a good slap in the face and that only a few times.

He has been accused before of the same conduct so he was committed to jail for ten days. Mrs. Yankowsky wanted to pay the costs while she was in court so that as soon as the term of committal expired Steve could come back to her. This was not allowed. She can pay the bill of costs at the jail, though.

Edward Yanesky when charged with beating his wife declared that he was provoked to do it. He said he saved his money and gave it to his wife, but that when he wanted any of it she would not give it to him. The testimony did not show wilful abuse of the wife and judgment was suspended that the pair might go to their children and adjust their differences.

Percy Rogers, an East Lyme resident, arrested a week ago on the charge that he was operating an automobile while drunk and when he ran his machine into that of Sergeant Hick of the police force was Saturday charged with reckless driving. It was represented by the prosecutor that the accident was occasioned by slippery rails and he said Rogers had paid for all damage he occasioned to the Hick car.

Cecil Delmar, a negro, has been in jail a week charged with attempting to blackmail by writing threatening letters to a resident of Groton. The state police have the case in hand and they are seeking evidence of the guilt of the accused. Delmar has been a caddy at the Shennecosset Golf club and the person he is said to have attempted to extort money from is the proprietor of a small store at Eastern Point.

NATIONAL CAPITAL, DRAPED IN MOURNING, AWAITS IN GRIEF THE ARRIVAL OF THE FUNERAL TRAIN DUE AT 6.30 P. M. TODAY

Expression of the Greatest Reverence That Humanity Can Conceive is to be Bestowed Upon the Memory of President Harding Wednesday—All the Military and Civil Honors That a Great Nation May Accord Its Dead Will Mark the State Funeral Ceremonies—Preparations for the Sad Ceremony Have Been Completed Under the Guidance of President Coolidge.

Washington, Aug. 6.—(By the A. P.)—All the military and official honors that a great nation, in sorrow and prayer, may bestow upon its dead will be paid to the memory of President Harding in the state funeral ceremonials here tomorrow and Wednesday.

Preparations for the saddest ceremony in the life of the country since the martyred McKinley was brought from Buffalo twenty years ago, were completed today under the guidance of President Coolidge. Tonight the national Capital, draped in mourning, awaited in grief the arrival of the funeral train.

President Coolidge, cabinet members, Chief Justice Taft and Senator Cummins, of Iowa, President Pro tempore of the Senate, will meet the train as it draws into the Union station at 6.30 P. M. Members of the guard of honor—soldiers, sailors and marines—will remove the body from the car where it has rested since the long trip from San Francisco, and bear it to a black draped caisson at the entrance to the President's room. As the casket is taken through the station concourse, the marine band will play a funeral dirge.

Military Arrangements

On the broad plaza outside will be drawn up a squadron of cavalry and battery of field artillery. As the casket is lifted to the caisson they will play as the casket is draped into place. On signal the cavalrymen will swing away in column, leading the way to the White House. Then some members of the party that made the fateful journey with the dead chieftain, President Coolidge and other officials and the battery of artillery.

Passing through streets cleared of traffic, the cortege will run southward to the Capitol grounds, down the winding roadway to Pennsylvania avenue and then over the historic route that has witnessed every great moment of joy or sorrow in the nation's life. The caisson alone will enter the White House grounds, the troopers swinging aside to line the broad avenue before the executive mansion, sitting motionless and with sabers at "present" until the casket has been lifted down and carried into the stately east room where it will rest until Wednesday.

Mrs. Harding Not In Procession

Mrs. Harding will not ride in the procession from the station, accompanied by such members of her party as she may designate. She will go to the White House immediately after the train arrives and will be received by Mrs. Coolidge and the wives of the cabinet officers who will await her the arrival of the body.

While the casket is in the White House there will be placed on the bier a wreath for Mrs. Harding, one for the supreme court by Chief Justice Taft, some for Congress by Senator Cummins and Speaker Gillett, of the House of Representatives, who is accompanying the body, and wreaths also from the heads of foreign and state governments.

On Wednesday at 10 A. M. the casket again will be placed on the caisson for the journey over Pennsylvania avenue to the Capitol, where will be paid the last rites of loving remembrance. The historic thoroughfare will be cleared of all traffic and will be roped off with cordons of police on guard as the funeral cortege moves slowly to the muffle of drums and funeral dirges by army, navy and marine corps bands.

Gen. Pershing Will Head Escort

General Pershing and his staff will head the military escort, consisting of the First Battalion, Thirteenth Engineers and Band; the Twelfth Infantry and Band; the Marine Band; the Fifth Regiment of Marine, the Navy Band; a composite regiment of sailors; a battalion of the District of Columbia National Guard; the First Battalion, Sixth Field Artillery; the Second Squadron, Third Cavalry, and the Army Band.

The caisson will follow the troops and then will come Mrs. Harding and other members of the mourning family, with President Coolidge immediately behind. Following the line will be cabinet officers, Chief Justice Taft and justices of the supreme court; former President Wilson, senators and representatives and other government officials, state governors and representatives of many military, fraternal and civic organizations.

Assistant Secretary Davis will lead the officers of the army; Assistant Secretary Roosevelt, the officers of the navy; Assistant Secretary Moss of the Treasury Department, the commissioned officers of the Coast Guard and Public Health Service and Assistant Secretary Dralg of the Commerce Department, the commissioned officers of the Coast and Geodetic Survey.

On the plaza of the Capitol the troops will swing into the lead facing to westward as the casket is carried up the long steps to the east entrance through a double rank of non-commissioned officers standing at attention about it, motionless except for occasional changes in position made to ease the strain of the vigil.

All government departments will be closed half an hour before the body arrives in Washington and will remain so until the day after the burial. The commissioners of the District of Columbia issued a proclamation today requesting all places of business to close tomorrow when the funeral train arrives, and Wednesday and also on Friday.

Orders also were issued today for the closing of the Lincoln Memorial and the Washington Monument on Wednesday and Friday and also for the closing of all public athletic fields and the municipal bathing beach here.

HARDING'S BODY WILL REPOSE IN EAST ROOM

Washington, Aug. 6.—(By the A. P.)—In the chill stateliness of the White House East Room the body of President Harding will be placed on its arrival here tomorrow. There, with the cold gleam of the room's giant central chandelier above the bier, it will remain until it is taken to the capital rotunda for services Wednesday morning.

Tonight the stiff gilt incrustations of the chamber's ornaments and furniture had disappeared behind masking masses of greenery, touched with the softer glow of funeral flowers.

Again the East Room, which has been held apart a full century for the more notable ceremonies in which presidents have represented the nation will hold watch over the dead. Presidential death is not new to the East Room; the bodies of Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley rested there.

Tomorrow the body of President Harding will rest on the spot where he stood many times during more than two years of service, the chief actor in significant bits of national drama. In the East Room, he pinned on the breasts of scores of uniformed men, the awards of honor to betoken heroism, self-sacrifice, or extraordinary service in the latest war. Recently there, too, he gave to a French woman, Madame Curie, a tiny vial of the most precious substance garnered from the earth, as spokesman for American womanhood whose dollars had accumulated a treasure of radium to aid its discovered.

Repeatedly the President Harding welcomed his guests for dinners of state and likewise those attending occasional receptions held at the White House during his administration.

Even before presidential honors came to him, on one freezing night of the early spring of 1919, Mr. Harding with fellow member of the senate foreign relations committee, sat late in an East Room conference at which President Wilson opened the long and embittered struggle over participation of the United States in the league of nations.

MESSAGE FROM COOLIDGE TO KNIGHT OF COLUMBUS

Montreal, Aug. 6.—A message from President Calvin Coolidge, hailing the Knights of Columbus as "a patriotic order steadfastly devoted to American principles and ideals," was read at the forty-first international convention of that organization, in session here today.

In the message, presented by William C. Prout, state deputy of the Massachusetts K. of C., President Coolidge said:

"The Knights of Columbus is in every sense a patriotic order. You have established great war charities, you have helped to fill the national treasury with your contributions to the various Liberty loans and you have sent your dearest and best to bear the heat and brunt of battle.

"Your order has ever shown its steadfast devotion to American principles and American ideals. You are Knights of Columbus, a name of great significance, representing not only a great discovery, but the eternal principle of all discovery and progress. When all the world doubted when his own followers sought to turn back, he sailed on, daring to follow the truth, there is no finer knighthood.

"In it your noble order stands resisting all evil counsel, supporting every patriotic cause; following the eternal principle that 'the truth shall make you free.'"

TAXI DRIVER HELD UP AND ROBBED NEAR BRIDGEPORT

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 6.—Harold Rehn, 149 Albutis avenue, Corona, L. L, a driver for a taxi company of New York was early today held up and robbed by a passenger who engaged him at the Grand Central Station last night. Rehn was ordered to drive to this city by an unidentified man, about 25 years of age. When in a wooded section near this city the man drew a revolver and ordered Rehn into the bushes, where he compelled him to partially disrobe and robbed him of $38. The passenger also made Rehn give him instructions in driving the car, in which he escaped with clothes and money.

PAIR OF RUNAWAY HORSES DID NEARLY $1,000 DAMAGE

Bridgeport, Aug. 6.—A pair of runaway horses, dragging a heavily laden ice wagon, galloped down a crowded street this afternoon, ran down and killed a mule valued at $600 and crashed into and extensively damaged an automobile owned by Detective Sergeant George Slason. Police estimate they did damage totalling nearly $1,000. They ran several miles to their barn.

Sullivan Swims The English Channel

Lowell, Mass., Man, Completed Task in 27 Hours and 25 Minutes.

Calais, France, Aug. 6, (By the A. P.)—Henry Sullivan of Lowell, Mass., today achieved an ambition he has had for years—that of swimming the English channel and duplicating the feats of Captain Webb and T. W. Burgess, the only two men to perform the feat.

Sullivan took the water at 4.20 o'clock Sunday afternoon at Dover, England, and finished here tonight in front of the Calais casino at 8.05 o'clock.

Just how far Sullivan was compelled to swim in battling his way across the choppy waters, buffeted by the waves and carried hither and thither by the succeeding tides, has not yet been definitely ascertained. One report tonight was to the effect that he had swum a distance of 90 kilometres of 56 miles.

Sullivan was taken to the casino, where he was examined by a doctor. He took light refreshment and rested for half an hour. A large crowd assembled on the beach and cheered the swimmer when he came out of the building with Enrique Tirabocchi, the Italian swimmer, and those who were on the convoying boat. He took the night steamer back to Dover.

The examination disclosed that Sullivan was in good shape, considering the great strain of his prolonged exertions.

The latest announcement of Sullivan's time fixed it at 27 hours, 25 minutes, as compared with Captain Webb's 21 hours, 45 minutes and that of Burgess, 22 hours, 35 minutes.

Henry Sullivan is the third man to accomplish the hazardous feat of swimming the English channel. The first man to make the passage across the narrow but always extremely choppy course, with its rushing tides and swirling eddies, was Captain Matthew Webb and the second T. W. Burgess. Both were Englishmen.

Webb made the swim on Aug. 24-25, 1875, covering the 22 1-2 miles between Dover and Calais, in 21 hours, 45 minutes. Webb was drowned July 24, 1883, while attempting to swim the rapids at Niagara Falls.

T. W. Burgess accomplished the feat September 6, 1911, swimming from South Foreland, England, to Le Chatelet, France. His time was 22 hours, 35 minutes.

Those present was Sullivan's seventh attempt to make the swim. In all his efforts he had made notable marks, in 1921 coming within five miles of the French shore after having been in the water 189 hours and 5 minutes.

Sullivan went to England last year to make his seventh attempt, but owing to unpropitious weather conditions during the swimming season he failed to make a try.

Among the numerous persons who have tried to duplicate the feats of Captain Webb and Burgess, have been several women. They, however, have never been able to set any notable marks.

There has been standing for a long time an offer of a London publication of a prize of $5,000 for the successful crossing of the channel by a man or woman swimmer.

TRIDUUM IN HONOR OF BLESSED SISTER THERESE

Lisieux, France, Aug. 6.—In the presence of Cardinals Dougherty, Bourne and Touchet, and sixteen bishops and mitred abbotts, the grand triduum in honor of the beatification of Blessed Sister Therese began today with a solemn high mass in the church of St. Jacques. Afterwards the reliniguary containing the ashes of Sister Therese was conveyed in a procession to Carmel Chapel, which is to be the last resting place of the ashes, in the presence of vast throngs from the surrounding country.

Sister Therese was beatified by Pope Pius April 30 last. "The Little Flower of Jesus" as she was known to English-speaking people, died at Lisieux twenty-six years ago. Cardinal Dougherty has known her family for years.

During the World War hundreds of thousands of French soldiers carried pictures of the saint in their army identification books. To them it was Therese who thrust back the Germans from the gates of Paris, saved Verdun and even brought the United States into the war. Therese entered the carmelite ranks at the age of sixteen and made herself beloved by her constant friendship with the poor in the little villages of Normandy. She died from pneumonia, contracted during a mid-winter walk to attend a dying person.

ITALY APPROVES BRITISH REPARATIONS PROPOSALS

Rome, Aug. 6.—(Bq the A. P.)—The Italian reply to the recently British note on reparations as published in Rome shows that Italy generally approves of the British proposals. It sets forth, however, that the Italian policy is still inspired by the Italian views expressed at the London conference in December, 1922, where Premier Mussolini gave prominence to two important questions—the interallied debts and productive guarantees.

Concerning the question of the cessation of passive resistance, as well as that of the occupation of the Ruhr, the Italian government, says the note, "adheres to the opinion on this subject which is expressed publicly on many occasions, namely that it is opposed to passive resistance, that it is opposed to all ulterior military occupation of the Ruhr and that it favors a gradual reduction of the Franco-Belgian occupation of the Ruhr, when a general understanding shall have been reached and guaranteed."

INFLUX OF 600 FARMERS FROM SCANDINAVIA

New York, Aug. 6.—Six hundred Danes, Norwegians and Swedes, all farmers, and most of them with their families, arrived today on the Frederick VIII en route to farms in the west, northwest, and Canada. Some of them were said to have brought from $20,000 to $30,000 with which to purchase land.

Three stowaways were found on board. All were from Copenhagen and said they had intended taking a trolley trip from New York to Minneapolis, thence to California and Alaska, all of which they thought were close to New York.

In North Carolina there are just two grounds for divorce: infidelity and ten years' abandonment if there are children.

Our New President Had an Arduous Day

A Constant Stream of Visitors Kept President Coolidge Busy Yesterday.

Washington, Aug. 6.—A constant stream of visitors kept President Coolidge busy today and gave him an insight into some of the governmental problems requiring his early attention. Conferences were held on a variety of subjects but they all were subordinated to the preparation of plans for the funeral here of President Harding.

Many called at the hotel suite occupied by Mr. Coolidge simply to pay their respects, Chairman Hammond of the federal coal commission and President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, however, discussed various phases of the coal situation with the new executive. In neither conference, it was said, was the possibility of a strike in the anthracite field discussed.

The agricultural situation was taken up with the President by Fred Starrk, director of the War Finance Corporation, who submitted a summary of tentative plans to afford further relief to farmers.

Other callers included Secretary who returned here today from New Hampshire; acting Attorney General Seymour; acting Secretary Roosevelt of the Navy department, and Chairman Farley of the Shipping Board. Senator Cummins, of Iowa, President Pro tempore of the Senate, and several other senators, also called, as did Chairman Adams of the Republican National Committee. There was said to have been no discussion of things political by the President with any of his visitors.

A few hours respite from callers was obtained late in the day by the President. Throughout the day he remained in his suite.

WALL STREET SHOWS CONFIDENCE IN COOLIDGE

New York, Aug. 6.—Wall street's confidence in President Coolidge, which has been voiced by many of its banking and business leaders, found expression in today's stock market, the first full day session since the death of President Harding, when prices recovered the ground lost Saturday and mounted upward to higher levels than those prevailing at the close of business last Thursday.

The rally, which really began in the late trading on Saturday, originated in the buying orders of professional operators, who either covered stocks previously sold short or bought for a turn on the theory that the market had been temporarily oversold. The volume of sales was relatively small, a number of the large traders showing no disposition to extend their commitments pending a definite announcement of the new administration's policy and the outcome of developments abroad. Commission houses reported little public participation in the day's business.

The net gain in the averages of 20 leading railroad stocks and the 20 leading industrials was about 1 1-4 points each. U. S. Steel, Baldwin and Studebaker, often referred to as pivotal stocks, showed net gains of about 2 points each.

OBTAINS FACTS OF $5,000,000 FAILURE IN WALL STREET

New York, Aug. 6.—At the end of a 48-hour period when the whereabouts of E. M. Fuller and W. F. McGee, confessed bucketeers and federal prisoners, continued a secret, U. S. Attorney Hayward announced tonight that he had obtained "a complete and truthful" statement concerning affairs which accompanied the partners' $6,000,000 failure in Wall street.

The federal attorney refused, however, to reveal his big secret—whether the ex-brokers were still out of jail, in his custody, or had been spirited away to some newly designated government prison.

Further than that he had the "complete and truthful statement" of the brokers' affairs, understood to involve the names of wealthy higher-ups whose connection with the bankrupts authorities long have sought to disclose, Mr. Hayward would say nothing. Nor would he reveal where the prisoners were incarcerated tonight.

To do so might defeat the ends of justice, Col. Hayward declared. The information he gained will, however, "be of great benefit to the government in matters pending and, in addition, to ocials interested in the administration of the bankruptcy estate of E. M. Fuller & Co., he said.

MASS OF HUMANITY ALONG RAILROAD TRACKS AS THE HARDING FUNERAL TRAIN ENTERED CHICAGO AT 5.50 P. M. YESTERDAY

A Dirge of Tolling Bells and Sounding of Steamboat Sirens Marked the Passage of the Train Through the Western Section of the City—Five Airplanes, With Long Black Streamers Blowing From Their Wings, Flew Above the Train—The Train is Five Hours Behind Time—Funeral Party Was Met by a Special Aldermanic Committee Headed by City Officials, With a Great White Wreath of Roses and Lilies as a Floral Tribute.

Chicago, Aug. 6.—(By the A. P.)—The Harding funeral train from San Francisco arrived at the Kedzie station of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad in the western part of the city at 5.50 P. M., central time, two hours and twenty minutes behind time. One of the largest throngs that has gathered in Chicago in many years, was massed about the station and along the tracks.

There were no accurate estimates of the number in the mass of humanity that was literally packed and jammed along the tracks for several miles. There were other thousands in smaller crowds assembled at other vantage points along the Chicago and Northwestern and Baltimore and Ohio tracks. It was said nearly 10,000 persons had stood and watched at Gary, Indiana, since 1 P. M. They had about two hours waiting ahead of them, it was estimated.

Aboard the train with the mourning party and the body of the President, was Dr. George T. Harding, Jr., brother of the President, Dr. Carl W. Sawyer, of Marion, Ohio, son of Brigadier General C. E. Sawyer, personal physician to the President, who had been taken from Chicago this morning on a special train which met the funeral train at Dixon, Illinois.

The party was met here by a special aldermanic committee headed by city officials who had been stationed at the Kedzie avenue station to go aboard with a great white wreath of roses and lilies.

Leaders in the state and municipal governments, business men, General Henry C. Dale, commanding the Sixth Corps Area, U. S. A., and staff, American Legion Posts, United Spanish War Veterans, a few aged veterans of the Civil War, boy scouts, and other military or semi-military organizations, as well as various fraternal organizations were represented in the throng.

A dirge of tolling bells and sounding of steamboat sirens were heard as the train slowly passed through the western section of Chicago. Salutes of 21 guns were fired by the 122nd and 124th Field Artillery, Illinois National Guard. Except for those mournful sounds, the city was unusually quiet.

The brief halt at the Kedzie avenue station to receive the Chicago delegation and its floral offering, required eight minutes and at 5.58 central time the train moved out of the station bound for he Wood street station near Twenty-second and Rockwell street, where the train was turned over to the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

That railroad ordered out two engines to pull the funeral train eastward.

The route of the funeral train covered approximately 20 miles within the city limits. Along this long stretch of tracks there were few places where spectators were not out in numbers. Because of the greater crowds in the western part of the city, other thousands in lesser throngs had gone to the far south side, as far as Ninety-Fifth street, where the Baltimore & Ohio runs in a southeasterly direction through south Chicago.

As the train passed through western suburbs and in the western section of the city, five airplanes from the Air Mail Field at Maywood, with long black streamers blowing from their wings, flew about the train.

At the Kedzie station where the first of the two scheduled stops within Chicago was made. Besides the city's floral wreath, another floral piece some six feet in length, largely composed of goldenrod and bearing the letters "K. K. K." made of the blossoms, also was placed aboard. A card aboard indicated that it represented an Illinois organization but there was no names on the card.

The funeral train, drawn by two locomotives left the Twenty-second street station of the Baltimore & Ohio road at 7.15 P. M., heading southward and east toward the national Capital.

Despite the crowds, and it was estimated that those who saw the funeral cortege here numbered 200,000 to 250,000 persons, there was scarce a sound as the train rolled by. People stood with heads uncovered and almost breathless as they witnessed the spectacle for which some had waited more than four hours.

Airplanes dropping flowers circled overhead as the train entered the city.

In making the trip through Chicago the train passed through the section commonly designated by the nationalities inhabiting them. It was a significant fact that through these quarters of the city, so often termed "foreign" the train was met by the same throwing thousands that greeted it elsewhere. Italians, Poles, Greeks, Jews, Germans, negroes, Slavs—they all were Americans mourning the passing of Warren G. Harding as the funeral cortege swept by.

Mrs. Harding at a window near the casket of her husband, for a part of the time watched the sympathetic sorrowing faces of the crowds, the tear stained cheeks of men, women and little children.

Two pullman coaches laden with floral offerings to a point which made passage through them impossible gave mute testimony of the outpourings of love which has been America's response to the death of its leader all the way from the golden gate to Chicago.

Tonight, far behind its schedule the funeral cortege wound its way around the tip of Lake Michigan and across the level stretches of Indiana. Before morning the train was expected to cross the borders of the President's own Ohio.

SCENES OF POIGNANT SORROW AND SYMPATHY

On Board Harding Funeral Train at Chicago, Aug. 6.—(By the A. P.)—The heart of America—that great prairie region between the Missouri river and Lake Michigan—was filled anew with sorrow today as the funeral cortege moved eastward through the states of Iowa and Illinois, and then onward toward Washington.

Leaving Council Bluffs on the banks of the Missouri in the early morning hours, the special train bearing the body of President Harding traveled steadily eastward to arrive late in the day at Chicago. Transferred from the Chicago and Northwestern railroad to the Baltimore and Ohio here, it sped eastward into the darkness and the last portion of the long and sad journey from the Golden Gate.

Never in the history of any nation, perhaps, have such scenes of poignant sorrow for the dead and such manifestation of deep sympathy for bereaved loved ones been witnessed as during the day when countless thousands marked reverently the passing of the funeral train. To those aboard the train it seemed as though the American people had moved into the two states traversed and were standing silently with uncovered and bowed heads. Eyes grew misty and throats choked at the unconcealed display of emotion by a stricken people.

The old and the young, the weak and the strong, and the rich and the poor were there. It was a proof of patriotism and loyalty that America will not soon forget.

Those who stood mourning the passing head included among their number some who remembered the passing from Washington to Springfield, Ills., fifty-eight years ago of the funeral cortege of the martyred Lincoln. There were more who recalled the sad days of 1901 when a similar train bore the body of McKinley from Buffalo to Washington and thence to Canton, Ohio.

Mingled with the expressions of grief always were the manifestations of sympathy for Mrs. Harding, who during the day left her room and spent some time in the black-draped and flower-walled chamber of the last car where rests the bier of her husband. Through it all she remained the bravest of those aboard the train in keeping with her promise not to break down.

The bereaved widow was joined in her sorrow during the day by Dr. George T. Harding, Jr., brother of the late president. Dr. Harding, accompanied by Dr. Carl W. Sawyer, of Marion, Ohio, met the funeral train at Dixon, Ills., having come there from Chicago on a special train.

Much of the day was spent by Mrs. Harding in rest, preparing herself for the trying hours to follow the arrival of the train in Washington tomorrow. She also has been giving some thought to her plans for the future. While no definite decision has been reached it was thought probable by some of the closest friends with whom she has talked that she will make her home at least for some time after leaving Washington with her brother, C. E. Kling, of Marion. Mr. Kling for several years has spent the winters at Rockledge, Fla., and the President and Mrs Harding visited him there last March during their southern vacation trip.

As the train drew near to Chicago, the largest city through which it has passed and in which Mr. Harding was chosen by his party in the 1920 national convention as its leader, there were many touching incidents, all expressive of the sorrow of the great city.

Steel mills, along the tracks became silent and their workers, leaving their machines, formed a line outside the buildings, along the railway, on top of freight cars and even on the roofs. All stood reverently with bowed and uncovered heads as the cortege passed.

LABOR OPPOSED TO THE CANDIDACY OF UNDERWOOD

The resolutions were attested and made public by Robert R. Moore, the chairman of the meeting, and Archie B. Warner, secretary-treasurer of the committee.

WOULD LEAD NATIONAL COALITION GROUP IN GREECE

Athens, Aug. 6 (By the A. P.)—The veteran statesman, Alexander Zaimis, former premier and foreign minister, in a statement to the press declared his willingness to accept the offer of the revolutionary government, which has been conducting affairs since the abdication of King Constantine, to take the leadership of a national coalition group. This would include the moderate members of both the Venezilist and anti-Venezilist parties, and the assumption of its leadership by M. Zaimis would be with a view to restoring the country to peaceful, constitutional government.

If this national coalition materializes M. Zaimis, it is forecast, will become the premier.

There was but one casualty to mar the spirit of the camp. When Private John Arnold was run down by an automobile at the camp in East Haven and sustained a compound fracture of the leg besides other injuries. He is now a patient at a New Haven hospital.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

The month of July fell a little behind the average for the preceding months of 1923 in building operations but is well up to the normal average for the month. The total value of new building filed with Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton is far ahead of the normal average for the month in preceding years although the number of permits issued is not so great. During the first week in August four building permits have been issued by the fire marshal for a total valuation of nearly $12,000. These permits include one new house, a brick addition to a business house in the center of the city and two garages.

A large amount of work has been accomplished on building projects that are in the process of construction. Several buildings in the process of erection in the outskirts of the city have been brought to the completion stage while others have made marked progress. The work of remodeling the old Main street fire station is practically completed as is the work on the Pasnik block. The new front for the store of Savard Bros. on Main street is well on toward completion.

The new Palace theatre work has been rushed along during the past week and at the present time the plasterers are at work. The floor has been laid in part of the building and it is expected that within a short time the decorators will be at work and the theatre be ready for use by the middle of September or the first of October if all goes well.

The following building permits were issued at the office of Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton during the past week:

To Dominic Lamoureux, Jr., of Taftville to build a house on Convent avenue for Herbert Keeley. The house will be of frame construction on a concrete and stone foundation. The main part of the house will be 24x28 feet with an ell 9x9 feet. There will be eight rooms and bath.

To Clarence E. Peterson to erect a frame garage on West Thames street. The garage will be 10x21 feet, with stone and cement foundation. The exterior finish will be in red cedar shingles with a composition roofing.

THE STATE SITUATION.

Compared with previous years the volume of building seems to be holding up fairly well, although there are but few new projects being put on to the market at present, says The Commercial Record. The buyers' strike, if such it may be called, apparently has had the effect of lowering prices of materials somewhat, quotations on some lines shading off considerably compared with recent figures. For the past week there were 295 permits granted in the larger centers of the state for buildings costing $870,449, these figures comparing with 221 permits in the same week of 1922, for buildings costing $941,800, and 199 permits in 1921, for buildings costing $593,478.

At the Ladies Aid Meeting Yesterday

Mapl-Flake was the big subject of conversation. Mrs. Brown said:

"The thing I like about it is that there is enough bran in the whole wheat to keep my family regulated, and they don't even know they are eating bran."

In addition to the bran in Mapl-Flake, it is a perfectly balanced food, rich in phosphorus and lime for making brain, nerve and bone; in iron for making good red blood, and in the life-giving vitamins so necessary to good health.

Good for Children

Mapl-Flake is selected whole wheat, sweetened, flaked, and toasted to a delicious brown. It is so appetising and tasty that you would never guess it is 25% bran—enough to be a harmless, natural, non-habit-forming laxative. Be a "Mapl-Flaker"—it's the food that keeps you "right."

$1000 in Prizes for Jingles

Somebody is going to win $250 for four catchy, jingling, rhyming lines, that tell how good Mapl-Flake is and how good it is for you. You stand as good a chance as anyone. 165 prizes in all. ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre.

Beverly Bayne returns to the screen with Francis X. Bushman and will be seen as co-star with him in "Modern Marriage" at the Breed theatre today. The picture recently completed, is a story of New York society life and was produced under the supervision of Whitman Bennett, with Ernest Hilliard, Roland Bottomley, Zita Moulton, Arnold Lucy, Pauline Dempsey, Blanche Craig and the new child actor, Frankie Evans, in the admirable cast.

Almost everyone who knows the personalities of the screen at all is familiar with Beverly Bayne's part in the history of motion pictures. Her return, therefore, after several years of distinguished success on the speaking stage, proves her a more capable actress than is the case with those players whose art is confined to the movies.

Miss Bayne has appeared in more than 500 photoplays, a record even for a veteran, and is identified with that rapidly diminishing group who worked against odds to make pictures what they are today and who still are in the public eye.

Born in Minneapolis, Miss Bayne was educated there and in Philadelphia and Chicago, the latter city being where Essanay, one of the early producing companies, held forth. It was natural for her to seek an opening there and quite as natural for her to get it. At once she made an impression and was cast to play opposite Francis X. Bushman, then a favorite second to none. The combination was a happy one and they continued together for the length of their Essanay contract, after which they went to Metro, beginning their new work with a magnificent and ambitious production of "Romeo and Juliet." Other pictures followed and then came Miss Bayne's first stage venture with Mr. Bushman.

Her return to the screen will be in the nature of a return home after a long voyage into strange countries, for Miss Bayne's love for studio life has not been changed by her taste of stage life.

Other pictures on the bill include the Pathe News and an Educational comedy.

Dorothy Dalton at the Strand Theatre

A new Paramount picture, "The Law of the Lawless," which serves as a starring vehicle for Dorothy Dalton and which, incidentally, marks the American debut of the French screen star, Charles de Roche, is a romantic screen story of the gypsy and Tartar tribes of the Dobrudja, a district of the Southeastern Roumania. This production was the feature on the bill at the Strand theatre last night and proved highly satisfactory. Dorothy Dalton is seen as a young Tartar maid, bought on the auction block by the chief of a neighboring gypsy tribe. Her sweetheart sets out to rescue her only to find that Sahandie (Miss Dalton) has beome the bride of and later fallen in love with her master and refuses to be rescued. The ensuing action scenes are some of the most thrilling ever screened, with Theodore Kosloff, Charles de Roche and Tully Marshall, featured players, in the fore round throughout. Others in the strong supporting case are Fred Huntley and Margaret Loomis.

The setting of this story is unusual and picturesque, depicting the glamor and romance of gypsy life. There are two scenes of intense excitement: the arrival of Costa, the gypsy chief, just as Sahandie is to be sold on the auction block and the fight between the Tartars and the gypsies for the possession of Sahandie.

The seventh round of the Fighting Blood series proved highly entertaining. A comedy, "West is West," and a News Weekly completed the programme.

BALL GAME, PARADE AND BLOCK DANCE MARKS CLOSING OF SERIES TONIGHT

"Who will ride the goat?" is the question that is on everyone's lips not only in Preston but throughout the whole eastern part of the state. It is a well known fact that the Singlemen and Married Men play the last and deciding game of their championship series this evening. Should the Married Men win Manager Pedace of the Single Men will climb aboard Mr. Billy-Goat and do his stuff during the parade, but should the Single Men be victorious "Jumbo" James of the Henpecks will endeavor to raise his 300-pound hulk onto the bewhiskered brute and thrill his admirers with his fancy riding.

The Henpecked Aggregation

Just as a child's heaft beats with joy when a circus comes to town so will local fandom feel when the rival managers lead their well known stars, who have risen to fame in so short a time, onto the field of battle for their last game tonight. First comes "Jumbo" James, the well known manager who created his first stir with the Cuban Giants in the early eighties and who has earned a "rep" in the last six weeks with his large bag of highly selected wind. Then comes "Dutch" Leonard and "Wacko" Reily the wonderful young battery that only recently was introduced into the mysterious realms of matrimony and thereby has been making its initial appearance as members of the ancient order of benedicts. For the infield "Bugs" Desherfy who really secured his start in Lisbon many years ago will cover first. "Battle-axe" Cook, a newly acquired star will perform at second while "Pills" Randall and "Hail" Stone will wend their weary way around short and third. "Suds" Falcone and "Bert" Lamphare will explore the regions between center and left field. Last but by far not least comes Matt Delaney, the pride of the local police force, who created the first real sensation of the series by his spectacular hitting and his base running in the first three games. The good natured cop was painfully injured in the third performance and tonight will fling the sorrel-topped wonder doing his stuff once again in right field. No doubt his many admirers will receive this bit of good news with joy. This group of weather-beaten old veterans have made things lively for the younger set during the recent games and will create no surprise if they weather the last storm tonight.

The Single Men's Lineup

For the Single Men there is only one outstanding feature, the youth who in two games rose to heights that is only accorded to a few with his mystifying assortments of shoots and curves, his heavy hitting and base-running. It is no need to mention a name which has become a by-word and can be heard on the lips of any up-to-the-minute baseball fan, but for those who have fallen by the wayside this youngster will be introduced as Berger Goldberg. Unless the unexpected happens this youthful wonder will be the choice of Manager Pedace to shoulder the burden of twirling for those endowed with single blessedness. "Chatterbox" Boyens, the man who has helped Berger to his honors will be at the receiving end. "Spike" Harris will be on first; "Flypaper" Woodmansee will be at the central station with "Tanglefoot" Risley and "Hambone" Baker to fill in the rest of the infield. "Sparky" Wals, Dic Spaulding and "Snooky" Pedace will sojourn in the gardens.

George Fowler May Assist

Col George Fowler, the apple of Manager Pedace's eye, will be unable to play as he has been selected to act as marshal of the parade that will follow the game and positively refuses to drag his recently laundered white uniform through the mire of the baseball grounds, but should the occasion arise that a pinch-hitter be needed, the Colonel will lay aside his sword for the willow and render assistance to his worthy teammates.

Married Men Confident

Such a collection of performers would make even P. T. Barnum turn over in his grave. There will be plenty of money laid on this crucial game and it is rumored that the Married Men have gone into this last affair so deep that should the Single Men win it will be a common sight Wednesday morning to see local truckmen back up to some of the Henpecks' homes and take away the family furniture.

There will be plenty of music furnished during the game by Houston's band and the Italian band. The game will start promptly at 6.30 (daylight time) so as to finish the game in time for the other events of the evening. Seats will be reserved for His Honor the Mayor and the Court of Common Council. All players will positively appear in uniform.

The Parade

Final plans for the parade that will take place immediately after the ball game at 8.30 o'clock were made Monday committee. The game will be called at 6 o'clock and at 8.30 the buglers will sound the assembly. The parade will form on Fowler avenue and the formation will be as follows:

First Section
Marshal Col. George Fowler
Squad of Buglers
Colors
Houston's Brass Band
Winning Ball Team
Losing Manager and the Goat
Losing Ball Team

Second Section
Italian Band
East Side Banner Brigade
Ladies Section
City Officials

Third Section
St. Patrick's Boy Scout Drum Corps
Boy Scouts of St. Patrick's church
Rival Cheering Sections

Fourth Section
Kellner's Town Clown Band
Horribles
Autos

The Line of March

The line of march will be from Fowler avenue where the parade will form east on Main street to the Silk Mill through Stanton avenue to Hamilton avenue and then west on Main street to Franklin square, up Bath street to Broadway, down Broadway to Main street, on Main street to Franklin square, up Bath street to Broadway, down Broadway to Main street and back through Main street to Billings' corner where the parade will be dismissed.

The Block Dance

Immediately after the parade the section of the cement highway between Billings' and the Silk Mill will be closed to traffic and dancing be enjoyed until eleven o'clock. Music will be furnished by the Royal Radions orchestra and everyone is invited to join in and make merry. There will be plenty of red fire on hand for the occasion. No expense has been spared and the only thought will be to make a proper close for the big East Side series. During the block dance autos can detour through Stanton avenue.

In the first game. Errors by Bohne and Caveney gave the visitors their first two runs and bunched hits off Benton won for them in the seventh and eighth innings.

In the second game the Reds hit Scott freely and looked like winners until the Giants bunched five safeties off Donohue in the eighth for three runs and assumed the lead. The Reds tied it up off Gearin, a southpaw recruit from Milwaukee, in the eighth but the champions won in the ninth on Young's triple and a single by Bentley. The Giants played errorless and very fast ball throughout the eighteen rounds. The scores:

PIERCY HOLDS TIGERS AND RED SOX WINS

Boston, Aug. 6—Piercy allowed Detroit only five hits today, Boston winning the first game of the series, 2 to 1. Piercy was given remarkable support on many hard hit balls. The game was half an hour late in starting due to the two teams missing connections from Detroit where they played yesterday. What proved to be the winning run was scored on McMillan's walk, Piercy's sacrifice and an infield hit by Fewster in the fifth. The score:

UNUSUAL ARRAY OF FAST HORSE FLESH WILL RACE AT LOCAL TRACK THIS WEEK

Never before in the history of local light harness racing has Norwich seen such an array of fast horses gathered at the local half mill oval at the Norwich Fairgrounds. Horses with marks of less than 2.06 are entered in the numerous events scheduled for the three days of racing. Quartered at the Fairgrounds last night were well on toward 100 trotters and pacers ready to start in the three events on Wednesday afternoon.

On Mondya it was decided that the race program for Friday afternoon would be postponed until Saturday out of respect for the late President Harding. There will be no activities at the track on Friday but some fast races are scheduled for Saturday afternoon.

The track has been leveled and the water was put to it Monday afternoon and by Wednesday afternoon it will be in fast shape. It is expected that with everything favorable the local track record will be lowered during the coming meet and a record hung up that will stand for many years. The Bay State circuit is reputed to be the fastest circuit in the country outside the Grand Circuit and many of the horses that will get the word during the local meeting have stepped the mile along with the big timers.

The program for the three days is as follows:

Wednesday—2.16 trot, 3 in 5, purse $500, 15 entries; 2.14 pace, 3 in 5, purse $500, 13 entries; 2.24 trot, 3 in 5, purse $500, 15 entries.

Thursday—2.17 pace, 3 in 5, purse $500, 21 entries; 2.14 trot, 3 in 5, purse $500, 11 entries; 2.11 pace, 3 in 5, purse $500, 9 entries; free-for-all pace, 2 in 3, purse $500, 6 entries.

Saturday—2.19 trot, 3 in 5, purse $500, 15 entries; 2.22 pace, 3 in 5, purse $500, 9 entries; 2.11 trot 2 in 3, purse $500, 8 entries.

NORWICH CIVIC CENTER.

It is a growing trend in forward-looking, modern cities to bring together in one building or in one location the offices of the various departments of city government, establishing a civic center which not only facilitates the handling of business between departments but better accommodates the citizens who have to transact business with them. Within the memory of many of the present day, Norwich made possible such a future civic center when it located the court house on Union square.

The permanency and creditable character of Union square is established by the buildings that flank it, two churches, the public library and a business block, besides the court house, or city hall. But one incongruity exists there which has not been lost sight of by citizens whose perceptions have not been blinded by long association. This is the location of the city barn at the corner of Bath and Chestnut streets, where it also faces Union square, and more than once the question has arisen in the minds of some citizens whether a better use could not be found for such a valuable piece of city property. A barn is a barn and nothing else, and seems out of place in the center of a business section and on a street that is constantly improving.

Consolidation of the municipal departments in this immediate locality is already a fact to a considerable extent. The water department has its office in the court house, the tax collector and assessors are located there, and it is there that the citizens can call upon the police department in time of need. Just around the corner is the fire department while the street department offices are in the city barn. All these have a permanent abiding place.

The one city department that has no unchanging place for its offices is the gas and electric department. In the last few years these have led a more or less peripatetic existence, and there is no certainty that that experience may not be repeated. At the present time the gas and electric department offices are in the Bill block at the corner of Shetucket street and Water street, where they pay an annual rent of $1,620 under a two-year lease that expires December 1, 1924. They occupied this location from Dec. 1, 1919 to Dec. 1, 1922, at a rental of $945 when they had one less room than now.

With a view to making better use of a valuable piece of city property, bringing all the city offices near together, and providing a permanent office for the gas and electric department, the suggestion has arisen that the city barn could be used for offices for both the street department and the gas and electric department. Such strictly barn uses as the building now affords could be provided somewhere else, but the whole building could be turned into office uses for these two city departments mentioned. The lot is large enough for enlargement of the building if that were found necessary.

The question that presents itself is, Why not use an available piece of city property to provide the offices of the gas and electric department with a place of permanency?

WHO THE I. W. W.'S ARE.

There is a class of labor whose members are recruited from the floating workman. In the wheat belt the workers shift with the harvest, the sheep raising country calls for men who migrate with the shearing season and contractors for big construction work usually obtained the bulk of their laborers from the class of wandering workmen. These workers are restless in spirit and there is nothing in their changing occupations to induce them to strike roots into the ground. They shift from one job to another with little cause, except apparently to satisfy their craving for a change. Many of them are subnormal in the matter of intelligence, although among them is an occasional man who has received a good education, but has been brought to his rough estate by vice or some peculiar mental twist.

The I. W. W. organization is made up almost entirely of these floating workmen. It happens to be the only organization that ever sought them, that ever attempted to deal with their problems, that tried to provide them with a voice that would catch the public ear, to furnish rough quarters for them where they could meet, talk and feel some of the warmth of fellowship.

The organization is once more under attack, with California trying to drive all of them out of the state, Kansas putting them in jail and Chicago threatening to close their headquarters. This method of dealing with the problem is like treating a fever by casting the patient into the streets. The cause of the troubles for which I. W. W.ism is responsible remains however severe and repressive is the action that may be taken by police and prosecutors. Here is a task for someone who yearns to lift an entire class above a level determined by the character of occupations. The I. W. W. is only a trumpet for it, not a lever.

THE PRESIDENTIAL SUCCESSION.

The opinion that has prevailed in some quarters that President Coolidge is required to call a special session of congress upon succeeding to the presidency from the vice-presidency is not supported by the facts. There is a situation, however, in the presidential succession, when a special session of congress is to be called, for in the case of the death or disability of both the president and vice-president, the law provides that the next in succession must, in case congress is not already sitting, call a special session, giving twenty days' notice.

The same article of the Constitution that specifically makes the vice-president the successor of the president provides that "congress may by law provide for the case of removal, death, resignation, or inability of both the president and vice-president." Such provision was taken care of by the forty-ninth congress which passed a law providing that in such case the secretary of state should act as president and the further order of the acting succession was fixed in the secretary of the treasury, the secretary of war, the attorney general, the postmaster general, the secretary of the navy and the secretary of the interior. This was the order of the establishment of these department heads and these were the only cabinet officers at the time of the enactment of the law.

Only when the exigencies of the case call into operation the law to name an acting president is a special session of congress also called for. Only recently in the case of President Wilson the question of disability was raised and inquiry developed the fact that there is no authority either in the Constitution or in the statutes to determine the fact of disability. Vice President Marshall did not assume the presidency during President Wilson's acute illness and congress apparently has no specific power either to determine the fact of disability or to set up a judicial board to determine it.

HUNTING BEETLES.

New England has had its costly experience with the gypsy moth to check which hundreds of thousands of dollars have been spent since it landed here from alien shores a dozen years ago. Now New Jersey is struggling with another dangerous alien that has come in as a stowaway on a ship from far Japan. This unwelcome stranger is the Japanese beetle which arrived seven years ago with a consignment of Japanese iris and his inroad upon the fruit orchards of New Jersey and parts of Pennsylvania is causing concern to entomologists of all the eastern seaboard states.

Against this brilliant "colored" but pernicious stranger with an abnormal appetite and incalculable power for devastation, quarantines have been established, with state troopers riding the dead-lines and experts toiling in the sun to find ways to kill him. Help is expected from a certain parasite of the beetle of which a shipment was received the other day from Japan. These will be unleashed against him and told to do their worst.

The beetle is said to be susceptible to arsenate of lead. He curls up and dies if he mixes but a little of it with his favorite diet of fresh fruit. But he doesn't like it. He prefers Jersey peaches, and with his hungry fellows devours them down to the stone. He has an alcoholic's liking, however, for fermented juices, and this may prove his undoing. The experts are busily compounding him a mixed drink more seductive than hard cider or cherry brandy and deadlier than either at its best, for it will be strongly laced with the lethal arsenate of lead.

It is a serious situation, for the beetle multiplies rapidly, and unless the quarantine can be kept effective until some means is found to kill him off the pest will spread all over the country in a few years. The general public of New Jersey can do something to keep the beetle from inflicting himself upon their neighbors by cooperating with federal and state authorities in maintaining the quarantine.

EARNING HIS LIVING

"Right here," pointed out the enthusiastic real estate man to the dubious customer, "right here in this corner of the porch a redbird had a nest last summer and I myself counted thirteen little eggs in the nest—think of having that right on your own veranda!"

"Fine!" the dubious customer said interestedly. "Only who opens the door for them when the porch is screened in and what would we do about our good old cat who is quicker than scat?"

"The view," said the real-estate man with the instant agility of long experience, "is superb, as you will notice. See all those hollyhocks in the yard next door, which you can enjoy just as much as the folks who have to water them and tie them up and worry over them. And then the Jibbers' garage is universally conceded to be the most artistic garage that ever was."

"It would be a beauty spot to point out to our visitors, wouldn't it?" asked the undecided customer, brightly. "There's no use trying to be happy in a place that has absolutely nothing in the way of attractions to point out to people! You would say apropos of this Jibben garage, 'Look at its lines'! It is simply unanswerable when you begin talking about lines and no matter how brash a guest may be he is compelled to listen respectfully when you start out that way. Think—if the Jibbers had built it on the other side of their lot it would be invisible from here and—"

"And what if the house has two rooms more than you say you need?" put in the enthusiastic real-estate man, who somehow did not feel that the conversation was going as well as it might. "Just consider what has become of the grand old-time hospitality that once made this nation famous! Nobody can be hospitable in a two-room kitchennette apartment and two guestrooms would certainly set you apart from the common herd."

"Not a bit of doubt of it!" agreed the dubious customer. "Likewise it would set me apart from my bank account! Do you know what guests eat? Nowadays a person has so few chances to be a guest that he makes the most of them and, what with the excitement and all his appetite becomes enormous! A person who at home eats coffee and toast for breakfast can put away grape fruit, cereal and cream, bacon, eggs, coffee, cake, doughnuts and anything else within reach.

"As for dinner our guest who has his hostess' peace of mind at heart always eats three times what he really wants. If he doesn't she thinks he didn't like her food. One guestroom is bad enough, but two would be a calamity."

"Did you notice the fine lot of shelves in the basement for preserves and things like that?" interrupted the real-estate man with great firmness. "Your wife would be crazy about them—nothing so appeals to a woman as plenty of room for canned goods."

"That's true," amiably said the undivided customer. "We used to have canned fruit and jelly and things, but it was too wearing. My wife could start downstairs and say, 'What kind of jam shall I bring up Horce?' After thinking hard I would ask what kinds of jam there were and very impatiently she would retort that we had all the usual kinds. Then I would say 'Strawberry,' and she would say no, we couldn't, because there were only three cans left of strawberry, and then I would suggest raspberry, and she would cry my goodness, didn't I know raspberry was one of the scarcest jams and there was just one can of raspberry left. Let's have grap jelly. Anyway, we have abandoned stuff in glass jars."

"When that redbird builds its nest in the springtime with the lilacs all in bloom," the real-estate man began desperately, but the dubious customer interrupted him.

"As I told you in the beginning, this isn't at all the sort of house I want," he said. "Haven't you anything else to show me?"

"I'm getting kind of hoarse," said the enthusiastic real estate man, who was not nearly as enthusiastic as he had been, "but there's another one around the corner you can look at if you think it's any use!"

"Well, you never can tell," the dubious customer admitted, stepping out briskly. "Knyhow, I do enjoy original things you say!"—Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Louis Marshall, who is conducting the fight of the taxpayer's against the alleged waste of municipal funds by the Hylan administration in New York City, is an eminent leader at the bar of the metropolis. A native of and educated in Syracuse, and at the Columbia Law School, he first sought clients in Syracuse, New York City soon won him by his larger opportunities, and, once there, he began to attract attention by his ability. He has figured in many cases national and international in scope. Thrice has he sat in state constitutional conventions and served on important committees reshaping the Empire State's law. Governors and mayors have called upon him to serve on important investigating commissions in the effort of the Jews of the United States to abrogate the treaty with Russia he was a leader. He has held the highest executive position in American Jewish educational and philanthropic work, and in New York's great Jewish communal enterprises.

Sir William Hart Dyke, who celebrates his eighty-sixth birthday today, is the only surviving member of a Disraelian ministry. For many years Sir William was very much in evidence in the public and political life of England. In 1865, soon after completing his education at Oxford, he entered public life as a Conservative member of the House of Commons. From 1868 to 1880 he was whip for the Conservative party, and Patronage Secretary of the Treasury from 1874 to 1880. In 1885 he served for a year as Chief Secretary of Ireland. Throughout his long career in public life he showed himself to be a man of keen business ability and it has been said of him that in the many important positions which he filled public service was never known to make a grave error.

Wives of Famous Men

Margaret Burr, Wife of Thomas Gainsborough.

One of the most charming romances of that delightful period in English art and letters, the early Eighteenth Century, was the love affair and marriage of Thomas Gainsborough, famous painter of famous people, and Margaret Burr, a beautiful girl with a romantic history.

Margaret Burr's parentage was surrounded with a cloud of mystery. Some stories say that Margaret's father was the Duke of Bedford, others that he was an exile prince, but it is definitely established that she was not the real child of the Burr family, with whom she lived when the young artist first met her.

Gainsborough was exactly 18 years old and had just completed his studies with his first master when he fell in love with and married lovely Margaret, who was herself little more than a child. Their entire fortune totaled £200, which, combined with their youthful optimism, seemed an enormous sum wherewith to begin life. The money was Margaret's dowry.

They rented a tiny house in Ipswich, which cost them £6 a year, and for this idealistic young couple at least the "love in a cottage" plan worked out. In spite of poverty, their love remained bright and unworn, each one striving to help the other in every way. Margaret worked hard to make the little home attractive, realizing that artists must have beauty as well as comfort. She made an ideal wife for a painter, and they were to the end extremely happy. In this house their two daughters were born.

Mrs. Gainsborough's thrift and enterprise made it possible for them to move later to the fashionable resort of Bath, where her husband acquired a considerable vogue, painting all the notables of the day and becoming very wealthy. In his prosperity he loved his wife just as much as in his poverty, and lived ideally with her.

Stories That Recall Others

The Modern Daniel

It was a rather small circus and carried but one lion, one tiger, one elephant and so on down the list.

After the trainer had put the lion through his paces, an elderly lady appeared at the cage door and remarked:

"Aren't you afraid that this ferocious beast will attempt to make a meal of you some day?"

"To tell you the truth, ma'am," confided the man in the dazzling uniform, "if business doesn't get any better, I'm afraid I'll have to make a meal of this ferocious beast."

The Proper Use of Words

Mother, who had been out the greater part of a rainy morning, came in with damp skirts and dripping umbrella, and said to Gladys, three years old, standing in the hall:

"The day is so inclement it's no pleasure to be out."

Some time that afternoon, Gladys whose curly locks had been twisted and pinned in a knot on top her head by mother, approached the latter and said:

"Mother, I wish you'd remove this hairpin. It feels so inclement."

The Truth and a Joke.

Jane's mother had been explaining to her the difference between falsehood and truth. She told her she must always tell the truth. Jane listened carefully and then asked earnestly: "Well, mother, what's a joke?"

CHILD TRAINING

CORRECTING FAULTS.

Many a well-meaning mother is laboring under a false idea of what really constitutes a training in right habits and proper attitudes in her child. Often she thinks she is correcting a fault when in reality she is only nagging at the child, or at best shootingevery wildly around the mark.

Here is Edward. He is careless with his napkin. "I've been trying for six months to get him to fold it and put it in the ring," his mother observed, as we were clearing the table; "but he does it only about one time in ten." Now Edward's mother was actually sincere in her remark. Imagine! By her own admission she had struggled six months on the one little point of discipline. At the next meal I watched Edward. It was noon and before he was quite through his lunch his boy chum rang the doorbell and Edward dropped everything and dashed to school of course without folding his napkin. At dinner that night, we were going for a ride and everyone hurried, Edward included, and no one paid any attention whether he folded his napkin or not. Without elaborating any further, you mothers get the point. It would have taken perhaps a week of time and patience to elf right there at the table and keep an active boy right there also until he had learned to fold his napkin automatically. Anything worth while takes time, but very few points in children's discipline requires six months if properly handled. If we make a child do a thing himself one time in ten, and then do it for him the other nine times, it is absolutely energy wasted all around, just like sewing the new patch on the old garment which is too thin and worn to hold the stitches.

Training children is like a business proposition: we get just what we go after. If we invest patience, time and thought in the task of correcting a child's habits the results are inevitably successful. It isn't always easy, nothing worth while is; but a week spent in correcting a fault takes less attention and energy than nagging for months with no definite object achieved after all. ff ff ff ff

Another point is very important in correcting faults. Be very sure the fault is a real one, that it bears directly on character training. If it is not one on which you are willing to expend time and patience to correct, then why mention it at all? But if a habit is really annoying and one that will prove embarrassing to the child and his friends through his life, then attack it at once and definitely and finally uproot it. Concentrate on that one thing until you and the child have conquered it, and never again will you have that particular trial to meet.

MERCHANTS WILL JOIN IN DAY OF MOURNING

The Retail Merchants Association met Monday morning in the rooms of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce to consider plans for closing the day set for the funeral of President Warren G. Harding. No definite action was taken in view of the fact that Governor Templeton has not yet issued his proclamation calling on all industries and stores in the state to close out of respect to the late chief executive of the nation.

The Norwich merchants will fall in line with whatever action is taken throughout the state in regard to closing for the funeral. If the stores close all day Friday it is probable that the Thursday half holiday this week will be omitted.

TO RELIEVE PAIN AND BACKACHE

Women May Depend upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Minneapolis, Minn.—"I had heard so much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that when I realized I needed to take something to relieve my pains and headache, and to help build me up I began to take that. I had been sick off and on for years and barely weighed a hundred pounds, but now I have had such good results that I am recommending the Vegetable Compound to every one."—Mrs. J. J. Bubbar, 2939 18th Ave. South, Minneapolis, Minn.

I tried everything I could think of to help myself, and when a friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I began taking it at once. I recommend it without hesitation."

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Monday Chief Hill of the Pawtucket police came here to get four youths held at Brooklyn jail over Sunday after being picked up by Officer Hanford Bigelow, of the state police, for having stolen in Pawtucket Saturday evening a car that was the property of A. F. McNally of Providence. The car was taken from where it had been last parked for a time.

Rhode Island police promptly reported the theft of the car and its registration number, R. I., 36,282—and a chain of circumstances led to it's being recovered where it had stalled, between Central Village and Wauregan, on the state highway when the gas line became plugged. Later the four youths charged with taking the car were picked up in Plainfield. They are Lester C. Short, Mike Spano, Richard J. Barry and A. Connaughton, all of Pawtucket. Three of the boys are 16, and one is 17.

The boys got along famously with they joy riding expedition so long as the Ford went well, but when it didn't their troubles began. They asked for a tow from a Moosup man who was a bit suspicious of them, because they were grimy and tired looking and apparently too young to have an automobile. A tip went to the state police barracks and a hunt for the youths began that resulted in their arrest and the recovery of the car, which they eventually abandoned, after failing to get it going again. The youths had little to say about the affair.

Following a consultation Monday morning, it was decided that a meeting be held Friday evening, at the room of the Danielson Trust company, to formulate a plan for boosting the Windham House fund campaign in Danielson and vicinity in the interest of Connecticut college.

This is a meeting in which those interested in the college will be urged to participate. It is expected that Mrs. E. W. Higgins of Norwich, chairman of the fund, will be in attendance.

Preparations for putting this fund over the top have been under way for some time and the work is now showing real signs of developing energy. In Willimantic the Rotary club will put its multiple shoulder to the wheel. As there is no such organization in Danielson, it will be necessary to interest citizens in backing a project that is of real importance. To that end urgent request is being made that all who have an interest in Connecticut college and especially in Windham House should be present at Friday evening's meeting.

Originally it was intended to raise $50,000, and of this amount $25,000 has been obtained in cash and pledges. However, increased building costs make it seem necessary that the fund be set at $100,000. This and other matters will be discussed at Friday evening's meeting.

Completion of the Windham House fund will set an honor mark for this country. It is a dormitory pressingly needed to provide quarters for some of the several hundred girls more than can be accommodated who have applied for admission.

During the vacation of the correspondent of The Bulletin news matter for this column and matters pertaining to advertising may be taken up with Max Brettschneider, Mechanic street, Danielson. Tel. 258-2.

A mystery that has surrounded the leaving of a Ford touring car at the Joseph Chartier place here, more than a month ago, has been finally cleared up and reveals an interesting case of lost memory. At about the time mentioned, James Condos of Ship street, Providence, appeared at the Chartier place one day and asked if he might leave his car there for a time. The request was readily granted. As time went on and Condos, whose identity at that time was not established, failed to appear and it was taken for granted that the car had been stolen and abandoned.

This did not prove to be the case. Condos seemed to have suffered from some mental affliction and finally was located in a Providence hospital. In the meantime the state police here and police in Rhode Island had heard about the Condos car and it was through their efforts that the machine was restored to its owner.

At a meeting of the Danielson Rod and Gun club, scheduled to be held Wednesday evening at the Central fire station committees are to make reports. This is to be a special meeting of the club. Members who attend will hear much of interest pertaining to what the club is doing, and it has been effectively active of late.

The supply of labor for various enterprises is on the increase in Danielson. Whereas there was a shortage a few weeks ago, there is a growing supply at present, and it was stated that more men than can be used have applied for jobs on sewer construction work now underway here. This work is proceeding although somewhat slowly on account of all the difficulties that have to be overcome.

Up to Monday no definite program had been arranged for the observance by Danielson of suitable memorial exercises for President Warren G. Harding, when his funeral is held Friday. Members of the chamber of commerce were interesting themselves in the matter Monday and some announcement is anticipated today or tomorrow.

Some coal dealers here tell of the pressure that is being put on them for early deliveries of coal. Some coal is coming in and is being delivered as rapidly as it can be put out. Failure of the hard coal operators and miners to come to an agreement has much to do with the present hurry for coal deliveries against the time when the fuel will be needed.

PUTNAM

In the city court Monday morning, Peter DeCarlo, found under a tree near the Manhasset village exercising his Italian tenor, with a bottle by his side, at four o'clock Sunday afternoon, was still so under the influence of whatever brew he had drunk that he hardly knew where he was, when he stood up in the prisoners' dock. A sentence of $20 and costs was imposed after Peter was asked if he was guilty and replied "everything".

The cases of James Smith and Frank Reil, which came up two weeks ago following an argument over a crap game, were continued for three months and their bonds released. They were ordered to report to the probation officer each month.

Jacob Wolfe pleaded not guilty to failing to send in his number plates and registration after he sold his automobile. His only excuse was that he did not know he had to. A fine of $1 and costs of $13.94 were imposed and paid.

Armand Bardier was charged with driving his automobile in a reckless manner. Robert M. Smith, divisional superintendent of the New Haven road of New London, testified that in the afternoon of July 28th he was passing the four corners at the Windham County Temporary Home when the car of defendant hit his car in the rear. Smith said that he did not see the Bardier car until a woman in his car shouted for him to look out. He did not know how fast the Bardier car was coming but said that he was not going over 15 miles an hour. Mrs. D. C. Park, matron at the Children's Home, said she heard the collision but did not see it. Attorney Irving H. Miron moved that the case be dismissed on the ground that not even a prima facia case of recklessness had been made out. The motion was granted.

Harold A. Flood of Westerly was also charged with driving his car in a reckless manner July 30th. Henry J. Burbank of Danielson, whose car was badly damaged in the collision, testified that he was proceeding towards Danielson at a moderate rate of speed. On a turn on Killingly avenue a Ford car was parked on the side of the road facing in an opposite direction. Defendant attempted to pass the Ford ran over to the opposite side of the road and struck his car. Mr. Flood stated that he was proceeding toward Putnam at less than 20 miles an hour. He saw the car parked on the side of the road and started to pass it. He saw no car coming from the opposite direction; As he got opposite the Ford the driver started his car and the Flood had to pull to the left to avoid getting hit. As he did so he saw the Burbank car approaching. He applied his brake in an endeavor to swing in behind the Ford but as he turned to the right to get over on the right hand side the cars collided. Deputy Judge Archibald MacDonald, Jr., on the bench in the absence of Judge Geissler, said that the man who parked the car on the turn was doing an illegal act and he thought the driver of the Ford car was responsible for the accident as he felt that defendant had a right to pass a car parked by the roadside. Defendant was found not guilty.

Mrs. George Newell of Washington, R. I., motored to Putnam Monday, visited her mother, Mrs. Mary Burt. From here she goes to Worcester to get her daughter Barbara who has been spending a week with frinds. On the return trip to Washington Mrs. Newell's mother will accompany them; also Mrs. Newells cousin, Mrs. Mary Johnson. They will remain for a week's visit.

Misses Marie and Adeline Gallant of Stamford were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Gallant, over the week-end.

At the Day Kimball hospital, Monday Dr. Harry Foster of New York operated on 33 cases for tonsils. Dr. Foster will end his clinic Wednesday.

Archie Lacroix and his brother Alphonse Lacroix, for many years machinists at the mill of the Putnam Woolen Company, have resigned closing their work there Saturday afternoon.

At a meeting of the committee in charge of arrangements for the memorial observance for President Harding, held at the rectory of St. Mary's parish, Sunday afternoon, it was decided to abandon the plan to hold exercises in the Bradley theatre. The plan now is to have all work in the city suspended during the hour of the funeral service and to have the bells of the city tolled.

A squad of Anselm Mayotte Post, American Legion, will fire a salute and taps will be sounded in Union Square and in the outlying districts of the city. It was voted to recommend to the mayor that he issue a proclamation in accordance with these plans requesting the suspension of business and the displaying of all flags at half mast.

Mrs. Carpenter has lived in Putnam since she was 14 years old. She was born in West Woodstock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Chandler. She married John Carpenter, the first contractor in Putnam, who died 24 years ago. Mrs. Carpenter is enjoying good health and is able to get about. Besides her three children she has two grand-children, Mrs. Kenneth Ballard of Winthrop, Mass., and Miss Eleanor Carpenter of this city, daughters of J. Richard Carpenter. On account of Mrs. Carpenter's advanced years there was no special celebration in honor of her birthday but friends dropped in during the day to extend congratulations and best wishes.

A barn on the William Segur place, now owned by Henry Withey, on Brandy Hill in the town of Thompson, was partly destroyed by fire, on Monday afternoon. The Thompson fire department was called and assistance was asked from Putnam and truck No. 1 responded. There were no cattle in the barn and but a small amount of hay was stored. The firemen worked hard to save the house nearby which several times caught fire. The barn was an old one. The damage to the house was on one end where clapboards had to be pulled off. The loss was several hundred dollars. It is thought children playing with matches may have started the blaze.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gibney and family have returned from an outing in a cottage at Middletown Beach, Newport.

C. M. Elliott and family have returned after a week's camping trip in Saybrook.

JEWETT CITY

Flags all about the borough are displayed at half staff. Many are of necessity flung out on horizontal poles, in this case if shown half way between the staff tip and the buildings the purpose is accomplished. Under the ruling of what is allowed for the flag, the tying of the colors into a festoon with crepe is not proper.

Jewett City never is second, when it comes to matters that appeal to patriotism, and looks back with pride at its quota sent to the wars and its "way over the top" subscription to Liberty bonds of all issues. Now, it is believed, another duty will be conscientiously taken over Friday. There is already talk that church bells should be tolled and a public meeting be held, whereby attendance the borough people would express their feelings of sorrow.

The funeral of Charles Barber, 73, was held from Hourigan Bros' funeral parlors Monday afternoon. The services were conducted by Rev. J. W. Payne. Mrs. George Sparks and Miss Ida I. Foster sang the funeral hymns.

Mr. Barber, for many years a resident of Jewett City died Friday at the home of Mrs. Florence Moore in Plainfield.

Four brothers survive, Varnum of Dodgeville, Mass., George and Henry of Jewett City, and John of Pawtucket R. I. Two sisters are Mrs. Florence Moore of Plainfield, and Mrs. Ella Burdick of Griswold.

There were relatives and friends in attendance from Springfield, Pawtucket, Norwich. Friends acted as bearers. There were beautiful flowers.

Visiting and local drunks are being taught by Judge John T. Barry in the Griswold town court that this is not the place to pull off their rough stuff. Monday morning Raymond Guski paid $36.81 for resistance and abuse of the officer who arrested him for breach of the peace. Saturday morning Joseph Shirley of Putnam paid $14.87 for intoxication and William Johnstone of Providence paid $39.91 for resisting the officer.

The August meeting of Westerly town council was late in getting down to work Monday morning, it being ten o'clock before the council proceeded to business. A discussion previous to hte council session showed the necessity of a silent policeman at Dunn's Corners and it was decided to locate one there.

With Councilmen Utter, Fowler, Nichols and Smith and Council Clerk Whipple and Town Solicitor Ferguson present, G. B. Utter was elected chairman pro tem. The minutes of the previous sessions were read by the clerk and voted approved.

Coal and light bills for the Westerly town hall were passed over to the next meeting.

Councilman Fowler moved and it was voted that the town of Westerly take advantage of Chapter 2340 of the public laws of Rhode Island passed at the January, 1923 session, known as the mothers' aid law.

By this vote the overseer of poor is made director of Mothers' aid and one-half of expenses incurred is paid by the state. The sum of $163 was voted from the miscellaneous fund for expenses of director.

Charles E. Holland was voted a victualing license.

Superintendent of Schools Willard D. Bacon had spoken of the desirability of warning signs by motorists that there was a schoolhouse near. It was estimated that 18 signs would be necessary to care for the schoolhouses in the town. The amount appropriated for the purpose was $45.

The council then discussed the monthly bills. Councilman John Nichols directed attention to the large amount used for schoolhouse inspection.

Milk licenses were granted Rudolph A. Saunders, William Dietrich and John S. Cole.

The report of Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown showed 24 arrests for the month.

Councilman Farquhar Smith then brought to the attention of the coun men the observance on Friday of the day set apart for a tribute of respect to President Harding. Discussion among the councilmen showed a tendency to do what neighboring communities did, the closing hours being spoken of as from 10 to 2. It was voted later that Councilmen Campbell and mith constitute a committee to meet with local clergymen, Rev. Clayton A. Burdick, dean of the local corps, to be consulted. The time of closing places of business was set as 10.30 a. m. to 1 p. m.

Herbert P. Clark of the South County Poultry association, asked if $100 from the town of Westerly for the poultry exhibition was available. He was informed that it had been placed in the budget and was therefore available.

Miss Margaret W. Grant has returned to her duties at the Jewett City station of the New Haven railroad after a week at the home of her father, John Grant.

Howard Randall of Brooklyn, N. Y., representing the American Fabric Co. of Bridgeport, is spending two weeks' vacation as the guest of his mother, Mrs. Etta Randall.

Members of the Veteran Firemen, Rhode Island No. 1, Cyclone No. 2, and Alert Hook and Ladde companies of Westerly enjoyed a clambake and outing at Barnes' Point, Brightman's Pond, Sunday.

William P. Dodge of Providence passed the week end with his father, Edward M. Dodge.

It is expected that the latter part of this week repairs to the bridge at White Rock which spans the Pawcatuck river and connects with the North Stonington road will be so far completed that vehicular traffic will be resumed. The restoration to service of this bridge will lessen the congestion of traffic which is especially noticeable Sundays at the junction of Liberty and West Broad streets.

William V. Currier, formerly of Westerly, has been transferred from the Salem, Mass., store of the S. S. Kresge Co. to the Pawtucket store. Sunday Mr. Currier had as his guests in Westerly the managers of the Cambridge and Salem, Mass., stores of the company.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen K. Sullivan of Weehawken, N. J., were guests Sunday at the Rhode Island hotel, en route by auomobile to the White Mountains. Eaton Co. The schooner was eventually wrecked on Bartlett's reef, off New London.

Max Novogroski has returned to Westerly from Shelter Island and an automobile trip on Long Island.

Before Clerk M. Walter Flynn in the Third district court Saturday night Jesse McDonald was charged with intoxication. Deputy Sheriff Fred T. Mitchell made the arrest early Saturday morning. The defendant was fined $5 with costs, amounting to $7.80.

A peculiar mishap occurred to the electric street car system in Westerly early Saturday morning. About 4 o'clock the voltage was found to be low on cars when they were some distance from Westerly. A bus line service was used on the Groton Stonington line to meet the electric cars when low voltage caused a slow-down in car speed. The trouble continued till noon when men were called from Montville to locate the trouble. Everything seemed to be all right in the power plant as well as the sub-station in Westerly, but upon closer inspection the trouble was located at the Westerly sub-station which was found to have lost its polarity.

Miss Evelyn Erbig of Ashaway was taken in the ambulance of the Westerly Sanitary Corps to the Lawrence hospital, New London, Monday evening, for an operation for appendicitis.

That it is the intention of the authorities of the town of Stonington to be prompt in their cleanup campaign is evident by the following letter, received by the Stonington patrolmen in Pawcatuck, Stonington and Mystic:

To Patrolmen:

Dear Sirs: Please proceed without delay to notify all persons in your precinct who own or operate slot machines, punch boards, or gambling apparatus of any kind that they are to be removed forthwith. Let this letter be your authority.

Respectfully,

GEORGE R. McKENNA,
Prosecuting Attorney.

RESOLUTIONS

The following resolutions were adopted at a meeting of the Court of Common Council of the City of Norwich held Monday evening, August 6th, 1923, at seven o'clock in the evening:

Resolved, That in the death of President Harding the nation has lost a chief magistrate who was the exemplification of those principles upon which our government was founded and has been sustained.

President Harding as chief magistrate and in private life was guided by those principles of patriotism, sturdy manhood and fair and open dealing which won for him the confidence, love and esteem of all his countrymen.

Resolved, That as representatives of people of the City of Norwich we express our personal sorrow and the sorrow of the people of the City of Norwich in his death and confess our inability to give expression to our grief.

Resolved, That copy of these resolutions be given to the daily papers for publication and that they be entered upon our Journal, and that the offices of the various departments of the City in the City Hall be closed during the day of our late president's funeral.
